A Robot Pilot
Women Past Fifty
The Street's Merriest Day
Improving Sailors' Caps

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd.)

THANKS TO Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Miss Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, girls and women UNEMPLOYED AND UNMARRIED, from 16 to 45 years of age, will have an opportunity to enter camps and earn a living until times improve. Some women who applied past 50 and not eligible, "wept bitterly." For women past fifty the world does the least and should do the most.

COMMANDER FRANK Hawks, flying from Los Angeles to New York, "non-stop," is sitting quietly, hands idle, watching a "robot pilot" run the machine.

Twenty-five years ago few would believe that airships could ever really fly.

Suppose you had suggested that they would fly, piloted and controlled by a "robot," or artificial man. What would have been said?

FRIDAY WAS THE "maddest, merriest day of all the glad new year," 1933, in Wall Street. Stocks rose from $1 to $10 a share. "Big steel" really began to be big once more, passing $54 a share.

AND THINK OF the happy, smiling faces of brokers, when they saw stocks selling for a while at 3,000,000 shares an hour with total sales for the day 6,500,000 shares.

Sorrow is in the hearts of those that sold their stock exchange seats too cheap, and hope is reborn for those that predicted seats at $1,000,000 each.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS says "the navy department has ordered greater 'rake' and 'flare' in enlisted men's caps." They must have the "required rake in the crown," and the sides must be "padded, to give the required flare."

All that is intensely satisfactory. Words cannot express our joy, learning that our enlisted navy men will no longer wear caps which lack rake and flare. That being settled, perhaps those in charge of government defense will look into the matter of airplanes, and get a little more "rake" in that direction. That would be appreciated.

FLOYD'S BROTHER AND PALS NABBED

WEWOKA, Okla., June 3.—(AP)—Bradley Floyd, brother of Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd, notorious bandit leader; and two companions, "Blackie" Smalley and Troy Keesee, were arrested today at the former's home near Seminole and jailed. The elusive gang leader and Ivan Reichita, another robber suspect, escaped capture.

The arrests were made by Sheriff Frank Aldridge and Bill Nicholson, a deputy. The bandit suspects, including the "Pretty Boy," had fled shortly after midnight from a group of officers who encountered them on a highway.

Mrs. Charles Floyd, Mrs. Smalley and Eva Simpson, sister-in-law of the latter, were arrested later and jailed here for questioning in connection with a stolen automobile allegedly found in their possession.

Meanwhile, a posse of approximately 50 officers was attempting to close in on the "Pretty Boy," who was believed to be in hiding near Earlsboro. It was near Earlsboro that George Birdwell, Floyd's right-hand man, lived before he was slain in a bank robbery some months ago at Boley.

Mrs. Floyd said she and Mrs. Smalley did not steal the motor car found in their possession.

Man Drinks Poison In Alleged Suicide, Effort

In what was said to have been an attempt to end his life, Wayman Wallace, 47, living at a rooming house at 700 Wood street, West Monroe, drank a quantity of poison shortly before noon Saturday. He was not found until some time later and was taken to the Clinic in an ambulance at 1 p. m.

When the man arrived at the Clinic he was unconscious and there appeared to be little likelihood that he would recover. Later he rallied and his condition was declared to be comparatively good, with indications that he would survive.

No motive for the attempted suicide was given. Wallace wrote a brief note in which he said, "I am going to kill myself," it was stated.

GOLD BILL GIVEN SENATE APPROVAL BY 48-20 MARGIN

Measure Permits Contracts To Be Paid In Legal Tender Money

PASSES AFTER FIGHT

Legislation Almost Ready To Be Taken To President Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—Amid cries of "bad faith" and "repudiation," the senate today gave final congressional approval to the administration's resolution permitting payment of all contracts in legal tender money.

An overwhelmingly coalition of Democrats and western Republicans drove through by a vote of 48 to 20 the measure requested by the administration, eliminating the gold payment requirement from all contracts, public and private, either present or future.

This means that war debts, mortgages and liberty bonds, as well as all other governmental and private obligations, may be settled in legal tender money, obviating the requirement that gold shall be used.

The resolution had already passed the house and needs only the signatures of Vice-President Garner and Speaker Rainey before going to the White House.

Two attempts to modify the measure by eliminating its retroactive features, and to exclude governmental obligations, were rejected during a long day of debate, 48 to 21 and 38 to 26, respectively.

To protests that the resolution would

SENATORS STUDY MONEY CONTROL

Disclosures In Morgan Investigation May Cause New Legislation

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—Legislation to prevent the concentration into a few hands of control of industry and finance is being seriously studied by members of the senate banking committee as a result of the disclosures in the investigation of J. P. Morgan and company.

While the committee itself has taken no formal action in this direction, individual members said today it would be considered and that meanwhile they were giving thought to ways of setting up limitations.

Although most senators on the committee agreed the inquiry has disclosed no violations of law, several of them said it had raised the question in their minds of how far it was wise to permit one institution to go in extending its control over industry through financial means.

Despite the undercurrent of talk among the committee members, no specific legislative proposal was advanced, and the committeemen said they were not yet ready to discuss it publicly.

Chairman Fletcher said the committee would take up the question of legislation when the inquiry was concluded, but that it was not yet time to do so, because further evidence bearing on the situation would be presented.

Ferdinand Pecora, the committee counsel who has been steering the in-

Farley Predicts 2-Cent Postage Return Shortly

GROVE CITY, Pa., June 3.—(AP)—James A. Farley, postmaster-general, today forecast the return of two-cent postage on letter mail "within the next few weeks."

Speaking at the dedication of Grove City's new federal building, Farley said he expects President Roosevelt to sign the postage cut bill in a few days.

Farley said there are "unmistakable signs that the postal service is sharing in the business recovery which is now in the making." He said revenues for April were a "little higher" than a year ago and that many cities are reporting still larger gains for May.

State Taxation

Much valuable information for all Louisiana taxpayers is contained in the series of articles now being published by the World and News-Star dealing in detail with important state tax matters.

The articles are written by one long experienced in state fiscal affairs and tell in simple language how the state and its agencies collect and disburse the huge revenues derived from a greater variety of taxes, licenses, etc., than any other state levies.

By reading these articles, Louisiana citizens can become well informed in state tax matters. Watch for them on Sundays, Tuesdays and Thursdays in the World and News-Star.

ON LONG FLIGHT

JIMMIE MATTERN

Lone Flier Gains Four Hours' Advantage As Long Hop Begins

LE BOURGET, France, June 3.—(AP)—Authorities at the flying field here expect James Mattern, the American world flier, to arrive here by noon Sunday. An oil company has received a request to prepare to refuel the plane and to provide a place for the aviator to rest.

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—Bound around the world alone, Jimmie Mattern soared over Newfoundland and headed out over the open sea today seven hours after he lifted his monoplane, Century of Progress, from Floyd Bennett field in Brooklyn at 4:20 a. m., E. S. T.

With the wind behind him and fair weather all about, the 28-year-old Texas aviator was sighted at 11:30 a. m., E. S. T., over Lewisporte, N. F., some 1,200 miles to the north of New York.

By not landing at Harbor Grace—the customary stopping point for flyers before they attempt the Atlantic—Mattern gained almost four hours advantage on the round-the-world record of 8 days, 15 hours and 51 minutes set by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty in 1931.

Following the Lindbergh route, Mattern's first scheduled stop is Paris, which he expects to reach within 27 hours. Then, after six hours sleep, straight on to Moscow, dipping over

CALIFORNIA CITY HAS BIG DAMAGE

Seven Are Dead and Fifty Injured In Terrific Oil Explosion

SIGNAL HILL, Calif., June 3.—(AP)—The "richest little city in the world" today appraised the cost of its first catastrophe, an explosion and fire which blackened an area of four square blocks, killed seven persons, sent 50 more to hospitals and caused damage of several hundred thousands of dollars.

Signal Hill, adjoining Long Beach at the northern city limits, still watched black streamers of smoke drift from the remnants of oil derricks ravaged yesterday by concussion and flame when a little compression chamber, barely 20 feet long and three feet in diameter, loosed havoc on this rich petroleum-producing area.

Rescue workers searched throughout the night for additional bodies, but only two persons definitely were reported missing. Of those in hospitals, none was expected to die of injuries.

Latent power in the "black gold" gushing from Signal Hill became a roaring inferno as the compression chamber at the refinery on Richfield Oil company properties exploded.

Concussion added its destructiveness as fire licked at oil soaked derrick structures in the packed field, demolishing frame buildings within an area of many blocks and giving rise to frantic shouts of earthquake. Long Beach and the surrounding area on March 10 was wracked by an earthquake which claimed more than 100 lives.

At Maywood, ten miles from Signal Hill, the explosion was felt with such force that an earthquake alarm was sounded and schools were emptied.

The dead:

Stolen Car Recovered; Two Men Are Arrested

Two men alleged to have stolen an automobile from the Monroe Automobile and Supply company at 5:55 p. m. Saturday were arrested at 11:20 Saturday night, with the automobile in their possession, it was reported at police headquarters. The men were said to have been taken into custody near Sicard by State Highway Officers Keith Toombs and Grant.

At police headquarters the men gave their names as Douglas McGarity and M. P. McGarity and said they were brothers. They gave Vicksburg as their home and said they were en route to that place when arrested.

2 Members of Federal Reserve Board Named

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today named J. J. Thomas of Nebraska and M. S. Szymczak of Chicago as members of the federal reserve board.

The president also sent to the senate the following nominations:

Carroll Miller of Pennsylvania, to be a member of the interstate commerce commission; Harold M. Stephens of Utah, and Frank J. Wideman of Florida, to be assistant attorney's general; and J. C. Smith of Alabama to be district attorney for northern Alabama.

San Francisco Citizens Feel Another Earthquake

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—(AP)—An earthquake of considerable intensity was felt by residents in the outlying sections of San Francisco at about 6:45 o'clock tonight, while persons in the downtown section observed a slight temblor.

There were no reports of damage.

2 MEN CONFESS IN KIDNAP CASE

Abductors of City Manager's Daughter Face Possible Death

KANSAS CITY, June 3.—(AP)—Facing possible death on the gallows under the Missouri law, Walter McGee, 28, former Oregon convict, and Clarence Flick, 27, of Kansas City, confessed the kidnaping of Miss Mary McElroy today, police said.

The developments came as a federal grand jury indicted them and six others in the plot.

The abduction of the 25-year-old daughter of City Manager H. F. McElroy, her safe release on $30,000 ransom, the arrest of eight suspects, the return of five from Amarillo, Texas, and the indictments and confession were the events of a single week to the hour.

As Thomas J. Higgins, chief of detectives, started to question McGee upon his return from Amarillo today, the former convict replied, "I want to tell everything and get it over with."

Admitting he and Clarence Stevens boldly entered the city manager's home a week ago and forced Miss McElroy to accompany them, McGee said, "We did not intend to harm the young woman."

"We didn't even give the conse-

Court Term Cancelled Because of No Money

OPELOUSAS, La., June 3.—(AP)—Because St. Landry parish has not been able to collect taxes, and will not be able to pay the witnesses and jurors summoned for the district criminal court scheduled to convene here Monday, June 12, for a two weeks' term, Judge B. H. Pavy today issued an order cancelling that term of court.

The petit jurors who had been called to serve for the weeks of June 12 and June 19 were notified not to appear. Judge Pavy stated that he had postponed the court until the fall.

The same action was taken in Evangeline parish several weeks ago because of lack of funds to pay the jury witnesses.

ORVILLE ELMORE FOUND GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

His Mother Screams As Verdict Is Read Here Yesterday Morning

PRETTY WIFE FAINTS

Freedom Under Bond Is Denied; Judge Shell Postpones Sentence

After deliberating about 17 1-2 hours, the jury returned a verdict of guilty of manslaughter shortly after 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning in the case in which Orville Elmore of Pine Bluff, Ark., and Monroe was tried on a charge of murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Ted Reiser at his garage apartment, at 614 Plum street, last August 26. Imposition of sentence was postponed.

Elmore displayed comparatively little emotion when the verdict was returned, but his mother, Mrs. Pete Thompson of Pine Bluff, became hysterical and screamed for several minutes after the verdict was rendered. Elmore's pretty, blonde young wife did not make a demonstration in the courtroom, but fainted later while in the parish jail with her husband. She was revived by deputy sheriffs.

A number of months ago Elmore was released under bond of $5,000 and he continued to be at liberty while the trial was in progress. After the verdict had been returned his counsel asked if bond could be continued pending a decision as to an appeal, but this was denied by Judge J. T. Shell, who ordered that the defendant be remanded to jail.

The verdict of manslaughter was said to have been a compromise of the varied opinions held by members of the jury. About half of the jurors were said to have been in favor of a verdict of "guilty as charged, without capital punishment." At least one juror, and possibly others, was in favor of acquittal. It could not be learned how many, if any, were in favor of the death penalty.

In view of the strenuous fight that has already been made to clear Elmore of the charge against him, it is expected that the case will be appealed. Under the laws of Louisiana a person who is found guilty of manslaughter cannot be tried on a more serious charge in connection with the same offense. This eliminates the possibility of a death penalty, as might result if Elmore could be tried again for murder in the event the case is reversed, as can be done in some states.

Three days were spent in the trial of the case and a part of a fourth day was spent in deliberations by the jury. The case went to trial Wednes-

CATHOLIC CHURCH BANS SPANIARDS

Pope Excommunicates Government Officials For Spiritual Crimes

VATICAN CITY, June 3. — (AP) — President Niceto Alcala Zamora of Spain and other members of the Spanish government were automatically excommunicated from the Roman Catholic church today as the result of new Spanish religious laws described by Pope Pius as a "serious attack on religion and the church."

The excommunication was announced by the papal secretary of state after the pope had suddenly and dramatically issued an encyclical indicting the heads of the republican regime at Madrid of grave spiritual crimes.

Diplomatic circles here interpreted the strongly-worded encyclical as a "declaration of spiritual war" and predicted the breaking off of diplomatic relations between Spain and the Holy See.

The pontiff addressed his manifesto to all the bishops in the world. He asserted that he was making no at-

Enormous Overdrafts Emphasize State's Serious Financial Crisis

Louisiana Treasury, $3,500,000 In Arrears, Going Further Behind

Here is the tenth of a series of articles on assessments, taxation and the costs of government in Louisiana. The author, from long experience in public affairs, is thoroughly familiar with the subject and his purpose is to tell in simple language that all may understand how the state and its agencies handle the huge volume of funds derived from a greater variety of taxes, licenses, etc., than any other state has.

Illuminating Facts

The following figures, taken from the records of the state auditor, show

Expenditures, 1932	$62,846,738.30
Receipts, 1932	60,370,111.57
Excess of expenditures over receipts	2,476,626.73
General Fund overdraft, Jan. 1, 1933	$2,471,140.23
Increase for 12 months	607,100.46
Net bank balance, Jan. 1, 1932	$4,159,418.25
Net bank balance, Jan. 1, 1933	1,682,791.52
Shrinkage	2,476,626.73

At the beginning of the present calendar year, the state of Louisiana was in the position of the embarrassed business man who could have paid forty cents on the dollar, if forced to homologate. Books of the auditor and treasurer show that at that time current charges against the state, in the form of fund balances and overdrafts,

Institutions Throughout State Suffer From Depleted Revenues

were $4,439,872.37. Louisiana's net bank balance was $1,682,791.52. So, if the state had drained its cash resources, it could not have anywhere near paid its obligations.

To the public schools alone Louisiana owed at that time over $1,509,000. There would have been only a few white chips left if this money had been distributed. In fact, notwithstanding the imposition and collection of special taxes in 1932, the records show that the state was down almost to its last jitney on January 1 last. The condition has not been improved since; rather has it been

FIRE BUG WORKS IN WEST MONROE, TAYLOR BELIEVES

Five Blazes Cause Chief To Think Some Of Them Incendiary

Evidence that a "fire bug" was at work in West Monroe Friday night was seen by firemen in the fact that the West Monroe fire department responded to five alarms and the Monroe fire department sent a truck to the west side in response to an alarm at Baucom.

Two residence buildings were reported total losses and two others were damaged. One of the calls proved to be a false alarm and another was to a minor fire. Damage in all of the fires was estimated to be between $4,000 and $5,000.

Heaviest damage was at the home of J. L. Dortch, 719 North Fifth street, where the residence, valued at approximately $2,500, was destroyed. The value of furniture in the home was not given. It was stated that $2,000 insurance was carried on the house and that insurance also was carried on the furniture. Mr. and Mrs. Dortch were awakened by the smoke in time to escape from the building before their lives were endangered.

The first serious fire of the night occurred at 11:55 p. m., when the West Monroe fire department responded to an alarm at 307 Drew avenue. At that place a small, unoccupied residence, said to be owned by one of the building and loan asso-

PRIZE WINNERS ARE ANNOUNCED

Nelson Bland of Parish High School Carries Off First Honors

The annual advertisement-writing contest, sponsored by the Morning World and News-Star among the senior students of Ouachita Parish high school, Neville High school, and St. Matthew's High school, ended Saturday noon. After the vote was counted and attested the judges announced the winners as follows:

Special prize of $10 to student of Ouachita Parish High school, won by Doris Davenport, Sterlington, writer of Standard Office supply advertisement.

Special prize of $10 to student of Neville High school, won by Babs Gottlieb, writer of Palace advertisement.

Special prize of $10 to student of St. Matthew's High school, won by Rose Marie Zagone, writer of Griffin studio advertisement.

Keen competition on the part of all the contestants was displayed in the effort to obtain votes. Representatives from all the high schools supervised the count of the votes, which was not completed until late Saturday afternoon. The contest is the fourth annual event of the kind conducted by the World and News-Star with the cooperation of local business houses.

Prizes will be paid to the winning contestants on calling at the business office of the World and News-Star Monday.

ROGERS HAS HIS SAY

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 3.—(Special)—Well, I am glad to see the midgets get a break. In all my experiences around show business they are a mighty fine little breed of folks. We have had "bank relief," "big busines relief," and now we get "midget relief."

Mr. Morgan acted mighty human. He just picked up that little midget and played with it as though it was the federal reserve, or the United States Chamber of Commerce.

I'll tell you how Mr. Morgan can square this whole thing, and you will never hear another word against him: That's by simply putting everybody on the preferred list that wasn't on it already.

I haven't heard a kick only by those that were overlooked.

Yours,
Will Rogers

MRS. R. L. HALES DIES IN ACCIDENT

Local Woman Fatally Hurt When Cars Collide Yesterday Morning

Mrs. R. L. Hales, 55, of 3810 Polk street, was fatally injured at 10 o'clock Saturday morning when the car she was driving and a machine driven by J. C. Ward, of 305 Arkansas avenue, collided at Thomas and Jackson streets. Mrs. Hales was thrown from the car against a telephone post and fell against the curb, sustaining internal injuries, several fractured ribs and injuries to the head. She was rushed to a local hospital where her death occurred two hours later. No one else was injured.

Mrs. Hales was driving west on Thomas street and was alone in her car. Mr. Ward was accompanied in his car by his family, including a small baby who was on Mrs. Ward's lap. He was driving north.

Mrs. Hales' vision was said to have been obscured by buildings and evidently neither autoist saw the other until the crash was imminent.

An ambulance was quickly summoned and the injured woman was removed to a nearby hospital.

Mr. Ward and his family escaped almost without a scratch. He went to the city hall and made report of the accident.

Mrs. Hales was a native of Lincoln county, Mississippi. She had resided with her husband in Monroe for 20 years. Her husband has been for the past nine years chief mechanic for the city of Monroe at the street car barns near Forsythe park. She was active in the Gordon Avenue Methodist church. Besides her husband she leaves the following children: Clifton Hales, of San Francisco, Cal.; Troy Hales, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Lee Hales, of Monroe, employed at No. 2 fire station; Mrs. A. A. Perkins, of Monroe; Mrs. Walter Perkins, of Olla; and Mrs. Clyde McDonald, of Monroe.

The funeral is to be held this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the Gordon Avenue Methodist church, and the interment is to take place in Riverview burial park.

Mrs. Hales leaves a sister, Mrs. C. W. Bogue, and three brothers, Ed, Harvey and Morris Moak, all of Chetto, Miss.

Pallbearers are to be: R. H. Gova, Walter Rasbury, G. B. McGuffee, J. W. Faler, J. C. Bradley and B. F. Johnston.

Mrs. Richard Downes' Rings Are Recovered

Two diamond rings valued at $1,200 and $1,500 and stolen from Mrs. Richard Downes, Jr., 315 Louisville avenue, on the night of May 20, were recovered Saturday night by the sheriff's department, Sheriff Milton Coverdale said. Albert Fitzhugh, negro, night porter at the Ouachita National bank building, was arrested and was said to have confessed taking the rings.

While at her husband's office on the second floor of the bank building, Mrs. Downes was said to have left her rings in the ladies' wash room. When she returned for them they had disappeared. At first there appeared to be no clue as to who had taken the rings, but the sheriff's department succeeded in tracing them.

Bandits Abduct Arkansas Couple After Freeing Local Victims

Two men believed to be members of the band of 11 convicts involved Tuesday in a sensational prison break at Lansing, Kan., kidnaped Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Payne and two children, Euell, 11, and Maxine, 9, living 12 miles out of Monroe on the Bastrop highway, between 12 noon and 1 p.m. Friday and forced them to drive to Pine Bluff, Ark., in the Payne automobile, according to reports made Saturday to the sheriff's and police departments in Monroe.

Members of the Payne family arrived back at their home at 2:30 Saturday morning, after being released in Pine Bluff, and made their first report to officers at 11:40 a.m., when they went to police headquarters here.

Before releasing Mr. and Mrs. Payne and their children the two bandits held up another car in Pine Bluff and kidnaped the couple occupying the machine. They then released the Paynes and their automobile and forced Austin Adams and Miss Beatrice Garner of Pine Bluff to drive with them to Malvern, Ark.

In giving an account of the kidnaping here, Mrs. Payne stated that she saw two white men come into her front yard and start toward the back. Their actions aroused her suspicions and she picked up a revolver and walked to the back of the house. She found the men were forcing her husband to stand with his hands up.

When the bandits saw Mrs. Payne

PRISONER WANTED BY TEXAS SHERIFF

Jewelry Found in James Key's Possession Is Said To Be Stolen

Sheriff Milton Coverdale Saturday received a letter from Sheriff W. H. Hayes of Gregg county, Texas, stating that seven diamonds and other pieces of jewelry found on James Key when he was arrested here on May 29 were stolen from the home of John Borden of Kilgore, Texas. The Texas sheriff said he held a felony warrant for Key and asked custody of him as soon as Louisiana officers are ready to release him.

After being taken into custody here on the last occasion Key was said to have confessed to burglarizing the homes of Mrs. E. W. Smith, 265 Walnut street, and of L. C. Garrett of West Monroe. He said he obtained valuable papers and a diamond ring at the Smith residence and an alarm clock at the Garrett home. Both burglaries occurred in April.

Last July Key was sentenced to serve two years on the parish road in connection with burglaries in the homes of Dr. A. J. Emerson, 1604 Fairview, and John E. Hay, 612 Grammont street. He took a quantity of jewelry from the home of Dr. Emerson, all of which was later recovered. From the Hay home he took about $25 in cash, which was not recovered. When taken into custody on these charges Key took all of the blame and exonerated a younger brother who was with him. Charges against the younger boy were dropped at that time, partly on account of the fact that he was a minor.

After serving only 16 days of his two-year sentence here, Key escaped. He is also said to have been convicted at Shreveport and Vicksburg and to have escaped from road gangs at both places.

Shreveport Boy Drowns While Swimming In Lake

SHREVEPORT, La., June 3.—(AP)—Howard Norman, 15, drowned a few minutes past 3 p. m. today while swimming in Noyes Lake seven miles from Shreveport on the Greenwood road. His death was the third accidental drowning in the Shreveport area in four days and the fourth in three weeks.

The youth was swimming less than 35 feet from shore when he shouted to his companion, Charles Barney, 14. Barney was on the bank at the time and before he could dive into the cold waters Norman sank. The body was recovered 45 minutes later in 16 feet of water.

FLOYD'S BROTHER AND PALS NABBED

WEWOKA, Okla., June 3.—(AP)—Bradley Floyd, brother of Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd, notorious bandit leader; and two companions, "Blackie" Smalley and Troy Keesee, were arrested today at the former's home near Seminole and jailed. The elusive gang leader and Ivan Reichita, another robber suspect, escaped capture.

The arrests were made by Sheriff Frank Aldridge and Bill Nicholson, a deputy. The bandit suspects, including the "Pretty Boy," had fled shortly after midnight from a group of officers who encountered them on a highway.

Mrs. Charles Floyd, Mrs. Smalley and Eva Simpson, sister-in-law of the latter, were arrested later and jailed here for questioning in connection with a stolen automobile allegedly found in their possession.

Meanwhile, a posse of approximately 50 officers was attempting to close in on the "Pretty Boy," who was believed to be in hiding near Earlsboro. It was near Earlsboro that George Birdwell, Floyd's right-hand man, lived before he was slain in a bank robbery some months ago at Boley.

Mrs. Floyd said she and Mrs. Smalley did not steal the motor car found in their possession.

Man Drinks Poison In Alleged Suicide Effort

In what was said to have been an attempt to end his life, Wayman Wallace, 47, living at a rooming house at 700 Wood street, West Monroe, drank a quantity of poison shortly before noon Saturday. He was not found until some time later and was taken to the Clinic in an ambulance at 1 p. m.

When the man arrived at the Clinic he was unconscious and there appeared to be little likelihood that he would recover. Later he rallied and his condition was declared to be comparatively good, with indications that he would survive.

No motive for the attempted suicide was given. Wallace wrote a brief note in which he said, "I am going to kill myself," it was stated.

GOLD BILL GIVEN SENATE APPROVAL BY 48-20 MARGIN

PASSES AFTER FIGHT

Legislation Almost Ready To Be Taken To President Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—Amid cries of "bad faith" and "repudiation," the senate today gave final congressional approval to the administration's resolution permitting payment of all contracts in legal tender money.

An overwhelmingly coalition of Democrats and western Republicans drove through by a vote of 48 to 20 the measure requested by the administration, eliminating the gold payment requirement from all contracts, public and private, either present or future.

This means that war debts, mortgages and liberty bonds, as well as all other governmental and private obligations, may be settled in legal tender money, obviating the requirement that gold shall be used.

The resolution had already passed the house and needs only the signatures of Vice-President Garner and Speaker Rainey before going to the White House.

Two attempts to modify the measure by eliminating its retroactive features, and to exclude governmental obligations, were rejected during a long day of debate, 48 to 21 and 38 to 26, respectively.

To protests that the resolution would

Disclosures In Morgan Investigation May Cause New Legislation

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—Legislation to prevent the concentration into a few hands of control of industry and finance is being seriously studied by members of the senate banking committee as a result of the disclosures in the investigation of J. P. Morgan and company.

While the committee itself has taken no formal action in this direction, individual members said today it would be considered and that meanwhile they were giving thought to ways of setting up limitations.

Although most senators on the committee agreed the inquiry has disclosed no violations of law, several of them said it had raised the question in their minds of how far it was wise to permit one institution to go in extending its control over industry through financial means.

Despite the undercurrent of talk among the committee members, no specific legislative proposal was advanced, and the committeemen said they were not yet ready to discuss it publicly.

Chairman Fletcher said the committee would take up the question of legislation when the inquiry was concluded, but that it was not yet time to do so, because further evidence bearing on the situation would be presented.

Ferdinand Pecora, the committee counsel who has been steering the in-

Farley Predicts 2-Cent Postage Return Shortly

GROVE CITY, Pa., June 3.—(AP)—James A. Farley, postmaster-general, today forecast the return of two-cent postage on letter mail "within the next few weeks."

Speaking at the dedication of Grove City's new federal building, Farley said he expects President Roosevelt to sign the postage cut bill in a few days.

Farley said there are "unmistakable signs that the postal service is sharing in the business recovery which is now in the making." He said revenues for April were a "little higher" than a year ago and that many cities are reporting still larger gains for May.

State Taxation

Much valuable information for all Louisiana taxpayers is contained in the series of articles now being published by the World and News-Star dealing in detail with important state tax matters.

The articles are written by one long experienced in state fiscal affairs and tell in simple language how the state and its agencies collect and disburse the huge revenues derived from a greater variety of taxes, licenses, etc., than any other state levies.

By reading these articles, Louisiana citizens can become well informed in state tax matters. Watch for them on Sundays, Tuesdays and Thursdays in the World and News-Star.

JIMMIE MATTERN

Lone Flier Gains Four Hours' Advantage As Long Hop Begins

LE BOURGET, France, June 3.—(AP)—Authorities at the flying field here expect James Mattern, the American world flier, to arrive here by noon Sunday. An oil company has received a request to prepare to refuel the plane and to provide a place for the aviator to rest.

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—Bound around the world alone, Jimmie Mattern soared over Newfoundland and headed out over the open sea today seven hours after he lifted his monoplane, Century of Progress, from Floyd Bennett field in Brooklyn at 4:20 a. m., E. S. T.

With the wind behind him and fair weather all about, the 28-year-old Texas aviator was sighted at 11:30 a. m., E. S. T., over Lewisporte, N. F., some 1,200 miles to the north of New York.

By not landing at Harbor Grace—the customary stopping point for flyers before they attempt the Atlantic—Mattern gained almost four hours advantage on the round-the-world record of 8 days, 15 hours and 51 minutes set by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty in 1931.

Following the Lindbergh route, Mattern's first scheduled stop is Paris, which he expects to reach within 27 hours. Then, after six hours sleep, straight on to Moscow, dipping over

CALIFORNIA CITY HAS BIG DAMAGE

Seven Are Dead and Fifty Injured In Terrific Oil Explosion

SIGNAL HILL, Calif., June 3.—(AP)—The "richest little city in the world" today appraised the cost of its first catastrophe, an explosion and fire which blackened an area of four square blocks, killed seven persons, sent 50 more to hospitals and caused damage of several hundred thousands of dollars.

Signal Hill, adjoining Long Beach at the northern city limits, still watched black streamers of smoke drift from the remnants of oil derricks ravaged yesterday by concussion and flame when a little compression chamber, barely 20 feet long and three feet in diameter, loosed havoc on this rich petroleum-producing area.

Rescue workers searched throughout the night for additional bodies, but only two persons definitely were reported missing. Of those in hospitals, none was expected to die of injuries.

Latent power in the "black gold" gushing from Signal Hill became a roaring inferno as the compression chamber at the refinery on Richfield Oil company properties exploded.

Concussion added its destructiveness as fire licked at oil soaked derrick structures in the packed field, demolishing frame buildings within an area of many blocks and giving rise to frantic shouts of earthquake. Long Beach and the surrounding area on March 10 was wracked by an earthquake which claimed more than 100 lives.

At Maywood, ten miles from Signal Hill, the explosion was felt with such force that an earthquake alarm was sounded and schools were emptied.

The dead:

Stolen Car Recovered; Two Men Are Arrested

Two men alleged to have stolen an automobile from the Monroe Automobile and Supply company at 5:55 p. m. Saturday were arrested at 11:20 Saturday night, with the automobile in their possession, it was reported at police headquarters. The men were said to have been taken into custody near Sicard by State Highway Officers Keith Toombs and Grant.

At police headquarters the men gave their names as Douglas McGarity and M. P. McGarity and said they were brothers. They gave Vicksburg as their home and said they were en route to that place when arrested.

2 Members of Federal Reserve Board Named

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today named J. J. Thomas of Nebraska and M. S. Szymczak of Chicago as members of the federal reserve board.

The president also sent to the senate the following nominations:

Carroll Miller of Pennsylvania, to be a member of the interstate commerce commission; Harold M. Stephens of Utah, and Frank J. Wideman of Florida, to be assistant attorney's general; and J. C. Smith of Alabama to be district attorney for northern Alabama.

San Francisco Citizens Feel Another Earthquake

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—(AP)—An earthquake of considerable intensity was felt by residents in the outlying sections of San Francisco at about 6:45 o'clock tonight, while persons in the downtown section observed a slight temblor.

There were no reports of damage.

Abductors of City Manager's Daughter Face Possible Death

KANSAS CITY, June 3.—(AP)—Facing possible death on the gallows under the Missouri law, Walter McGee, 28, former Oregon convict, and Clarence Flick, 27, of Kansas City, confessed the kidnaping of Miss Mary McElroy today, police said.

The developments came as a federal grand jury indicted them and six others in the plot.

The abduction of the 25-year-old daughter of City Manager H. F. McElroy, her safe release on $30,000 ransom, the arrest of eight suspects, the return of five from Amarillo, Texas, and the indictments and confession were the events of a single week to the hour.

As Thomas J. Higgins, chief of detectives, started to question McGee upon his return from Amarillo today, the former convict replied, "I want to tell everything and get it over with."

Admitting he and Clarence Stevens boldly entered the city manager's home a week ago and forced Miss McElroy to accompany them, McGee said, "We did not intend to harm the young woman."

Court Term Cancelled Because of No Money

OPELOUSAS, La., June 3.—(AP)—Because St. Landry parish has not been able to collect taxes, and will not be able to pay the witnesses and jurors summoned for the district criminal court scheduled to convene here Monday, June 12, for a two weeks' term, Judge B. H. Pavy today issued an order cancelling that term of court.

The petit jurors who had been called to serve for the weeks of June 12 and June 19 were notified not to appear. Judge Pavy stated that he had postponed the court until the fall.

The same action was taken in Evangeline parish several weeks ago because of lack of funds to pay the jury witnesses.

ORVILLE ELMORE FOUND GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

His Mother Screams As Verdict Is Read Here Yesterday Morning

PRETTY WIFE FAINTS

Freedom Under Bond Is Denied; Judge Shell Postpones Sentence

After deliberating about 17 1-2 hours, the jury returned a verdict of guilty of manslaughter shortly after 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning in the case in which Orville Elmore of Pine Bluff, Ark., and Monroe was tried on a charge of murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Ted Reiser at his garage apartment, at 614 Plum street, last August 26. Imposition of sentence was postponed.

Elmore displayed comparatively little emotion when the verdict was returned, but his mother, Mrs. Pete Thompson of Pine Bluff, became hysterical and screamed for several minutes after the verdict was rendered. Elmore's pretty, blonde young wife did not make a demonstration in the courtroom, but fainted later while in the parish jail with her husband. She was revived by deputy sheriffs.

A number of months ago Elmore was released under bond of $5,000 and he continued to be at liberty while the trial was in progress. After the verdict had been returned his counsel asked if bond could be continued pending a decision as to an appeal, but this was denied by Judge J. T. Shell, who ordered that the defendant be remanded to jail.

The verdict of manslaughter was said to have been a compromise of the varied opinions held by members of the jury. About half of the jurors were said to have been in favor of a verdict of "guilty as charged, without capital punishment." At least one juror, and possibly others, was in favor of acquittal. It could not be learned how many, if any, were in favor of the death penalty.

In view of the strenuous fight that has already been made to clear Elmore of the charge against him, it is expected that the case will be appealed. Under the laws of Louisiana a person who is found guilty of manslaughter cannot be tried on a more serious charge in connection with the same offense. This eliminates the possibility of a death penalty, as might result if Elmore could be tried again for murder in the event the case is reversed, as can be done in some states.

Three days were spent in the trial of the case and a part of a fourth day was spent in deliberations by the jury. The case went to trial Wednes-

CATHOLIC CHURCH BANS SPANIARDS

Pope Excommunicates Government Officials For Spiritual Crimes

VATICAN CITY, June 3. — (AP) — President Niceto Alcala Zamora of Spain and other members of the Spanish government were automatically excommunicated from the Roman Catholic church today as the result of new Spanish religious laws described by Pope Pius as a "serious attack on religion and the church."

The excommunication was announced by the papal secretary of state after the pope had suddenly and dramatically issued an encyclical indicting the heads of the republican regime at Madrid of grave spiritual crimes.

Diplomatic circles here interpreted the strongly-worded encyclical as a "declaration of spiritual war" and predicted the breaking off of diplomatic relations between Spain and the Holy See.

The pontiff addressed his manifesto to all the bishops in the world. He asserted that he was making no at-

Family Is Kidnaped By Kansas Convicts 12 Miles From Here

ARE TREATED KINDLY

Bandits Abduct Arkansas Couple After Freeing Local Victims

Two men believed to be members of the band of 11 convicts involved Tuesday in a sensational prison break at Lansing, Kan., kidnaped Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Payne and two children, Euell, 11, and Maxine, 9, living 12 miles out of Monroe on the Bastrop highway, between 12 noon and 1 p.m. Friday and forced them to drive to Pine Bluff, Ark., in the Payne automobile, according to reports made Saturday to the sheriff's and police departments in Monroe.

Members of the Payne family arrived back at their home at 2:30 Saturday morning, after being released in Pine Bluff, and made their first report to officers at 11:40 a.m., when they went to police headquarters here.

Before releasing Mr. and Mrs. Payne and their children the two bandits held up another car in Pine Bluff and kidnaped the couple occupying the machine. They then released the Paynes and their automobile and forced Austin Adams and Miss Beatrice Garner of Pine Bluff to drive with them to Malvern, Ark.

In giving an account of the kidnaping here, Mrs. Payne stated that she saw two white men come into her front yard and start toward the back. Their actions aroused her suspicions and she picked up a revolver and walked to the back of the house. She found the men were forcing her husband to stand with his hands up.

When the bandits saw Mrs. Payne

PRISONER WANTED BY TEXAS SHERIFF

Jewelry Found in James Key's Possession Is Said To Be Stolen

Sheriff Milton Coverdale Saturday received a letter from Sheriff W. H. Hayes of Gregg county, Texas, stating that several rings and other pieces of jewelry found on James Key when he was arrested here on May 29 were stolen from the home of John Borden of Kilgore, Texas. The Texas sheriff said he held a felony warrant for Key and asked custody of him as soon as Louisiana officers are ready to release him.

After being taken into custody here on the last occasion Key was said to have confessed to burglarizing the homes of Mrs. E. W. Smith, 205 Walnut street, and of L. C. Garrett of West Monroe. He said he obtained valuable papers and a diamond ring at the Smith residence and an alarm clock at the Garrett home. Both burglaries occurred in April.

Last July Key was sentenced to serve two years on the parish road in connection with burglaries in the homes of Dr. A. J. Emerson, 1604 Fairview, and John E. Hay, 612 Grammont street. He took a quantity of jewelry from the home of Dr. Emerson, all of which was later recovered. From the Hay home he took about $85 in cash, which was not recovered. When taken into custody on these charges Key took all of the blame and exonerated a younger brother who was with him. Charges against the younger boy were dropped at that time, partly on account of the fact that he was a minor.

After serving only 76 days of his two-year sentence here, Key escaped. He is also said to have been convicted at Shreveport and Vicksburg and to have escaped from road gangs at both places.

Shreveport Boy Drowns While Swimming In Lake

SHREVEPORT, La., June 3.—(AP)—Howard Norman, 15, drowned a few minutes past 3 p. m. today while swimming in Noyes Lake seven miles from Shreveport on the Greenwood road. His death was the third accidental drowning in the Shreveport area in four days and the fourth in three weeks.

The youth was swimming less than 35 feet from shore when he shouted to his companion, Charles Barney, 14. Barney was on the bank at the time and before he could dive into the cold waters Norman sank. The body was recovered 45 minutes later in 16 feet of water.

Five Blazes Cause Chief To Think Some Of Them Incendiary

Evidence that a "fire bug" was at work in West Monroe Friday night was seen by firemen in the fact that the West Monroe fire department responded to five alarms and the Monroe fire department sent a truck to the west side in response to an alarm at Baucom.

Two residence buildings were reported total losses and two others were damaged. One of the calls proved to be a false alarm and another was to a minor fire. Damage in all of the fires was estimated to be between $4,000 and $5,000.

Heaviest damage was at the home of J. L. Dortch, 719 North Fifth street, where the residence, valued at approximately $2,500, was destroyed. The value of furniture in the home was not given. It was stated that $2,000 insurance was carried on the house and that insurance also was carried on the furniture. Mr. and Mrs. Dortch were awakened by the smoke in time to escape from the building before their lives were endangered.

The first serious fire of the night occurred at 11:55 p. m., when the West Monroe fire department responded to an alarm at 307 Drew avenue. At that place a small, unoccupied residence, said to be owned by one of the building and loan asso-

PRIZE WINNERS ARE ANNOUNCED

Nelson Bland of Parish High School Carries Off First Honors

The annual advertisement-writing contest, sponsored by the Morning World and News-Star among the senior students of Ouachita Parish high school, Neville High school, and St. Matthew's High school, ended Saturday noon. After the vote was counted and attested the judges announced the winners as follows:

Special prize of $10 to student of Ouachita Parish High school, won by Doris Davenport, Sterlington, writer of Standard Office supply advertisement.

Special prize of $10 to student of Neville High school, won by Babs Gottlieb, writer of Palace advertisement.

Special prize of $10 to student of St. Matthew's High school, won by Rose Marie Zagone, writer of Griffin studio advertisement.

Keen competition on the part of all the contestants was displayed in the effort to obtain votes. Representatives from all the high schools supervised the count of the votes, which was not completed until late Saturday afternoon. The contest is the fourth annual event of the kind conducted by the World and News-Star with the cooperation of local business houses.

Prizes will be paid to the winning contestants on calling at the business office of the World and News-Star Monday.

Louisiana Treasury, $3,500,000 In Arrears, Going Further Behind

Here is the tenth of a series of articles on assessments, taxation and the costs of government in Louisiana. The author, from long experience in public affairs, is thoroughly familiar with the subject and his purpose is to tell in simple language that all may understand how the state and its agencies handle the huge volume of funds derived from a greater variety of taxes, licenses, etc., than any other state has.

Illuminating Facts

The following figures, taken from the records of the state auditor, show

Expenditures, 1932	$62,846,738.30
Receipts, 1932	60,370,111.57
Excess of expenditures over receipts	2,476,626.73
General Fund overdraft, Jan. 1, 1933	$2,471,149.23
General Fund overdraft, Jan. 1, 1932	1,864,039.77
Increase for 12 months	607,109.46
Net bank balance, Jan. 1, 1932	$4,159,418.25
Net bank balance, Jan. 1, 1933	1,682,791.52
Shrinkage	2,476,626.73

At the beginning of the present calendar year, the state of Louisiana was in the position of the embarrassed business man who could have paid forty cents on the dollar, if forced to homologate. Books of the auditor and treasurer show that at that time current charges against the state, in the form of fund balances and overdrafts, were $4,439,872.37. Louisiana's net bank balance was $1,682,791.52. So, if the state had drained its cash resources, it could not have anywhere near paid its obligations.

To the public schools alone Louisiana owed at that time over $1,509,000. There would have been only a few white chips left if this money had been distributed. In fact, notwithstanding the imposition and collection of special taxes in 1932, the records show that the state was down almost to its last jitney on January 1 last. The condition has not been improved since; rather has it been

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 3.—(Special)—Well, I am glad to see the midgets get a break. In all my experiences around show business they are a mighty fine little breed of folks. We have had "bank relief," "big busines relief," and now we get "midget relief."

Mr. Morgan acted mighty human. He just picked up that little midget and played with it as though it was the federal reserve, or the United States Chamber of Commerce.

I'll tell you how Mr. Morgan can square this whole thing, and you will never hear another word against him: That's by simply putting everybody on the preferred list that wasn't on it already.

I haven't heard a kick only by those that were overlooked.

Yours,

MRS. R. L. HALES DIES IN ACCIDENT

Local Woman Fatally Hurt When Cars Collide Yesterday Morning

Mrs. R. L. Hales, 55, of 3810 Polk street, was fatally injured at 10 o'clock Saturday morning when the car she was driving and a machine driven by J. C. Ward, of 305 Arkansas avenue, collided at Thomas and Jackson streets. Mrs. Hales was thrown from the car against a telephone post and fell against the curb, sustaining internal injuries, several fractured ribs and injuries to the head. She was rushed to a local hospital where her death occurred two hours later. No one else was injured.

Mrs. Hales was driving west on Thomas street and was alone in her car. Mr. Ward was accompanied in his car by his family, including a small baby who was on Mrs. Ward's lap. He was driving north.

Mrs. Hales' vision was said to have been obscured by buildings and evidently neither autoist saw the other until the crash was imminent.

An ambulance was quickly summoned and the injured woman was removed to a nearby hospital.

Mr. Ward and his family escaped almost without a scratch. He went to the city hall and made report of the accident.

Mrs. Hales was a native of Lincoln county, Mississippi. She had resided with her husband in Monroe for 20 years. Her husband has been for the past nine years chief mechanic for the city of Monroe at the street car barns near Forsythe park. She was active in the Gordon Avenue Methodist church. Besides her husband she leaves the following children: Clifton Hales, of San Francisco, Cal.; Troy Hales, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Lee Hales, of Monroe, employed at No. 2 fire station; Mrs. A. A. Perkins, of Monroe; Mrs. Walter Perkins, of Olla; and Mrs. Clyde McDonald, of Monroe.

The funeral is to be held this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the Gordon Avenue Methodist church, and the interment is to take place in Riverview burial park.

Mrs. Hales leaves a sister, Mrs. C. W. Bogue, and three brothers, Ed. Harvey and Morris Moak, all of Chetto, Miss.

Pallbearers are to be: R. H. Goza, Walter Rasbury, G. B. McGuffee, J. W. Faler, J. C. Bradley and B. F. Johnston.

Mrs. Richard Downes' Rings Are Recovered

Two diamond rings valued at $1,200 and $1,500 and stolen from Mrs. Richard Downes, Jr., 315 Louisville avenue, on the night of May 20, were recovered Saturday night by the sheriff's department, Sheriff Milton Coverdale said. Albert Fitzhugh, negro, night porter at the Ouachita National bank building, was arrested and was said to have confessed taking the rings.

While at her husband's office on the second floor of the bank building, Mrs. Downes was said to have left her rings in the ladies' wash room. When she returned for them they had disappeared. At first there appeared to be no clue as to who had taken the rings, but the sheriff's department succeeded in tracing them.

TAKES OWN LIFE

NEW ORLEANS, June 3.—(AP)—Lucien L. Jarreau, 49, secretary-treasurer of the Louisiana Sugar and Rice exchange, is reported by police to have ended his life late today by swallowing poison. Relatives and friends were at a loss to explain the act.

FAMILY KIDNAPED BY TWO CONVICTS

they threatened to shoot her if she did not drop the pistol, she said. After she had dropped the weapon one of the men picked it up and remarked, "This makes us five."

While one of the men held her and her husband prisoners the other searched the place and the automobile. They then made Mr. and Mrs. Payne and the two children get into the automobile and drove by way of Bastrop, Dermott and Monticello into Pine Bluff.

After reaching Pine Bluff, according to the story told by the Paynes, they drove all over the town and finally located an automobile, which they took. They then released the Paynes and told them they would meet them on the road back to Monroe. That was the last the Paynes saw of the bandits, but they said an automobile followed them for some time and they were afraid to attempt to make a report of the kidnaping.

Mr. and Mrs. Payne said the men treated them kindly, stopping at Bonita to buy cold drinks for them and candy for the children, but warned them if they made any sign or signal that they would be shot.

Mr. Payne said the men had only $1 or $1.50 in money, and while in Pine Bluff they looked for a place to "hi-jack," but Mr. Payne said he talked them out of this, pointing out that the children might be injured. Before the Paynes were released one of the men pawned a watch, chain and fountain pen at a filling station about three miles out of Pine Bluff, obtaining in exchange $3.50 in cash and seven gallons of gasoline. He gave the money to Mr. Payne and also returned the pistol which had been taken. He said he had stolen the watch, chain and pen.

The Paynes said the men talked freely and told them they had escaped from the Lansing, Kan., penitentiary. The palms of their hands were blistered and they said they had blistered them sliding down a rope, Mr. Payne said. One of the men had a .45-calibre Colt pistol he said he had taken from a policeman. They told the Paynes that after leaving the penitentiary they "bumped off some men and took their clothes." They were carrying two pistols each.

According to the story told by the men to the Paynes, they came to Monroe, caught a ride to within one mile of the Payne home and then walked the remainder of the way. They spoke of going to Texarkana and Little Rock, Ark., and Greenville, Miss., but decided not to go to Greenville and said they were "hot" in Little Rock.

The men claimed to be brothers and said their home was in St. Louis, Mo. They said they were wanted on a number of charges, including murder.

One of the men was described as being about six feet tall and having short, light hair. He told the Paynes he was 24 years old and the other man was 20. The other man was said to be five feet six or seven inches tall and to have short, fair hair. The older man was said to weigh 150 or 160 pounds and the other 130 or 140 pounds.

Sheriff Milton Coverdale said he had communicated with the sheriff at Pine Bluff regarding the place at which the watch, chain and pen were pawned in the hope that the sheriff there might locate the owners of the jewelry and thus obtain trace of the bandits.

Pictures of eight of the eleven men who escaped from the Lansing prison were carried in Saturday morning's issue of the World. They were Ed Davis, Wilbur Underhill, Frank Sawyer, Jim Clark, Alvis Payton, Harvey Bailey, Kenneth Conn and Bob Brady. Clark, Brady, Conn, Underhill and Davis were serving life terms for crimes ranging from bank robbery to murder.

According to an Associated Press dispatch from Malvern, the couple kidnaped at Pine Bluff picked Kenneth Conn out from the group of eight as being one of the men who kidnaped them. The same group was shown at police headquarters here to Mr. and Mrs. Payne, but they were unable to identify any of them positively as being the kidnapers.

Adams and Miss Garner were kidnaped at Pine Bluff last night and were released at the railroad station here at about 10:45 this morning, and given money for their fare home. The two men left immediately in the car belonging to Adams' brother.

Adams said he and Miss Garner accompanied his brother, G. H. Adams, to the latter's photography shop at Pine Bluff last night and were waiting in the automobile when two roughly dressed men came up to the car, one on each side, and drew pistols. One of the men took the wheel of the car, Adams said, and the other guarded him and Miss Garner with the pistol.

They left Pine Bluff in a southeasterly direction, Adams said, and became lost in the vicinity of Star City. They became so confused, he said that they passed through Star City three times.

Finally getting on a straight road, the two men drove through Monticello, Warren, Camden, and started back in a northerly direction to Gurdon.

Several times, they stopped for gasoline and oil, Adams said, using money taken from him. Between Gurdon and Camden, they stopped at a farm house where breakfast for the four was bought, still using Adams' money.

Finally, Adams said, he and Miss Garner persuaded the men to let them out somewhere near Pine Bluff so they could make their way home and they were brought here.

Although they were threatened with death if they made an outcry, Adams said he and Miss Garner were "treated fairly well, considering everything."

Both Adams and Miss Garner identified Conn from a group of eight newspaper photographs, but said they did not believe the other kidnaper's photograph was among the eight.

Adams said the man he identified as Conn exhibited a woman's wrist watch with the name "Billie Wood" engraved on the back, and later told him he and his companion-kidnaper had kidnaped a mother, her daughter and a friend soon after their escape last Tuesday from the Kansas state penitentiary.

Having read newspaper accounts of the kidnaping of Mrs. M. J. Woods, her daughter, Louise, 17, and Miss Clovis Wears, 17, of Kansas City, Kansas, Adams said he led his kidnaper into further conversation and said the man identified as Conn exhibited articles of women's clothing he said were taken by him.

LOUISIANA FILLS FORESTRY QUOTA

All of State's Recruits Are Now In Camps, Stair Reports

NEW ORLEANS, June 3.—(AP)—C. A. Stair, chairman of the state emergency relief administration, today announced that Louisiana had filled its quota of 4,250 authorized by the government for assignment to the civilian conservation forestry corps.

The state had until June 7 to fill the list, but Stair said that all of the beneficiaries were now in conditioning or forest camps, four days before hand. The last contingent left Natchitoches yesterday. All except 300 were taken from the standing unemployment lists of the state relief administration and these 300 are to be trained woodsmen chosen by federal and state foresters to direct the work in the camps.

In making the announcement, Stair paid high tribute to Miss Margaret Woodson, state director of relief, who organized the forestry corps system in this state, with the cooperation of Capt. W. B. Scanlon, district army recruiting officer for Louisiana and Mississippi.

Two woods camps, at Kisatchie and Pollock in central Louisiana's Kisatchie national forest, have already been actually occupied by about 400 men and 16 other camp sites have been approved. The remainder of the Louisiana quota are in conditioning centers at Ft. Barrancas, Fla., Camp Beauregard, La., and Camp Benning, Ga.

Administration officials pointed out that as the men are paid $30 a month —with the larger portion pledged to dependents—completion of the quota provides a new payroll of $127,500 a month in Louisiana.

"Counting the 57,000 families in Louisiana who were already on the relief rolls," Stair said, "the filling of the forestry quota means that 12 per cent of the population of the state is now being given emergency aid by the emergency relief administration."

of the Cadillac company, announced that Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., head of General Motors, has authorized a 5 per cent wage increase, which affects 100,000 employes of the company.

This partial restoration of previous wage reductions will be welcome to the men. It is to be hoped that the example set by Mr. Sloan, in General Motors will be followed by other industrial concerns wherever earnings make it possible.

ALL NEWSPAPERS and the whole country will learn, with regret, of the very serious illness of Cyrus H. K. Curtis, who is eighty-three years old, and said to be "very ill."

Mr. Curtis is suffering from the after effects of a severe heart attack which occurred a year ago. His has been a long, honorable life of useful work. He has made many friends, no enemies.

IN THE DEATH house of Sing Sing and other prisons, when the zero hour comes, the condemned man may order anything he wants to eat. It was the turn of William H. Jackson, a forty-year-old negro from Niagara Falls, Friday morning, and he said, "make it a triple steak, warden. It's my last one."

He ate all of the triple steak, with several plates of "French fried potatoes," but never digested them. Different men die different ways.

MR. HITLER ADVANCES new ideas. Women must stay in the home, to attend to things there. They must not earn a living for themselves, as they have been doing, often competing with men.

Some men will sympathize with that, but not the best men. The best will agree that a woman has a right to do exactly as she pleases, but hope that she will marry, create beautiful children, and be happy.

MR. HITLER ALSO declares that he will allow no work to be done by machinery, if it can be done by hand. Industrialists competing with German industry will be pleased with that. Man power, without the aid of German industrial and mechanical genius, would never have built up Germany's interests and exports.

OBITUARY

CHARLES W. BROSIUS

Charles W. Brosius, for 30 years traffic and freight agent for the Texas and Pacific railway at New Orleans, was found dead Saturday morning at his rooming house in that city. He had retired in his usual health and death had resulted as he slept, heart disease being given as the cause after an investigation was made by the coroner.

He leaves his mother, Mrsr. J. R. Brosius, of 311 South Second street, this city, and two brothers, Greer H. Brosius, of Monroe; Clyde Brosius, of Little Rock, Ark., and a sister, Mrs. W. F. White, of Dallas, Texas.

Interment will be made in Dallas this afternoon.

C. B. SMITH

CLARKS, La., June 3.—(Special)—C. B. Smith, 57, died on May 27 at the home of his son, Elmer Smith, with whom he and Mrs. Smith made their home. The funeral was held at the home on May 27. The Rev. Paul Jones, pastor of the Clarks Baptist church, was in charge of the services. Interment was made in Old Bethel cemetery, one mile west of Clarks.

The deceased is survived by his widow, Mrs. C. B. Smith of Clarks; two children, Elmer Smith of Clarks and Mrs. Reginald Gates of Winnfield; a granddaughter, Bobby Jean Smith of Clarks; a niece, Mrs. Fred Schonfeldt of Houston, Texas, and two nephews, J. E. Smith of Gandy and Wayne McDonald of Starks, La.

RAIFORD, Fla., June 3.—(AP)—Harry Sitamore, society jewel thief who stole $250,000 worth of gems from residents of the Miami winter colony, escaped from the state prison farm with two other convicts yesterday.

His companions in flight, two trustees, were working the farm roads with a motor powered dragger. As they passed Sitamore, also at work on the roads, he climbed on the vehicle with them and all drove off.

Sitamore was sentenced April 1. He nonchalantly handed over a startling collection of valuables and told his captors they were worth $500,000 but insurance appraisers valued them at $250,000. Grace Moore, the singer, was one of his victims.

Monroe Man Arrested As Suspect In Robbery

LEXINGTON, Miss., June 3.—(AP)—A flat tire on the automobile in which an alleged bank robber was fleeing from a posse resulted in the arrest of Andrew Morehead, 24, of Monroe, La., recovery of the car, believed by officers to have been stolen and nearly all of the $3,845 officers said was taken from the bank.

The bank robbed was the Merchants and Planters Bank of Tchula. The bank was robbed yesterday shortly after noon and within two hours the alleged robber was in custody.

The car was run several miles on a flat tire with members of the pursuing posse firing at it. Then Morehead was overtaken and arrested, 14 miles west of Tchula.

Andrew Morehead was sent to the penitentiary from Ouachita parish two years ago in connection with burglaries in the West Monroe Illinois Central depot and the Brownlee Trailer company building to serve 12 months. He is also said to be the second man wanted at Natchitoches in connection with the Campti bank robbery about four months ago. Joe Lester has already been arrested in connection with the robbery and Morehead has been sought here for some time. The third man said to have participated in the robbery has not been arrested.

MATTERN HEADS OUT OVER OCEAN

the Tempelhof airdrome in Berlin, en route.

But first, there was fog and rain along the Irish coast to battle.

The bullet-shaped plane, resembling a mighty eagle with its wings dappled in red, white and blue, carries no wireless and further word of Mattern's progress east from Newfoundland must come from ships at sea until he noses over Ireland.

Only at Clare, regarded as a likely spot for Mattern to strike the coast, were weather conditions fair for flying along the east Atlantic coastline. Elsewhere, there was rain and bad visibility.

Irish officials early in the day ordered civic guards along the seaboard to maintain a close watch.

"I'll be back in a week," the San Angelo trap drummer-turned-aviator cried out to a small crowd of well-wishers as he climbed into his plane at Floyd Bennett field and inaugurated the 1933 transoceanic flying season.

The ship carried 700 gallons of gasoline—sufficient to remain aloft for 28 hours. It's cruising speed is 150 miles an hour, pushed up to around 170 with fair winds.

The 600 horsepower engine lifted the ship easily on the take-off. Mattern circled the field and headed to the northeast as the dawn broke.

With his speedy arrival over Newfoundland, Mattern not only gained an advantage on the Post-Gatty record but was well ahead of the attempt he and Bennett Griffin made in July last year in the same airplane. On this flight, making a stop at Harbor Grace, Mattern and Griffin landed in Berlin in 31 hours and 39 minutes elapsed time—three hours ahead of the Post-Gatty log.

Their hopes then were dashed to ground. The plane crashed in a bog along the Russian frontier.

The Century of Progress, rebuilt after the smash, was first owned by Carl Cromwell, San Angelo oil operator for whom Mattern served as pilot for several years.

New evidence on the extent of Morgan power was presented today in a table placed in the record by Pecora showing the four big utility companies in which the firm is interested receive 16.5 per cent of the total annual gross earnings of all power and gas companies in the nation.

Previous testimony has shown that the utility group formed by Morgan in its holding company, the United corporation, is the biggest in the country and serves an area with a population of more than 50,000,000 people.

This table, from Morgan files, showed the four big United corporation companies' annual gross earnings were $448,000,000 as compared with a national total of $2,700,000.

The earnings were divided by companies as follows:

Com'w'lth and Southern...	$145,000,000
Public Service of N. J.	132,000,000
United Gas Imp'm'nt Co...	86,000,000

Instructions Awaited For Work In Forests

That definite instructions will be received from the president early this week relative to the reforestation program proposed for this state, is the word that has come to H. B. McClendon, local service officer for the American Legion post.

It is suggested in the letter from the secretary of state service commissioner in New Orleans that ex-service men interested in enlisting their service for this work immediately submit their applications so that on receipt of instructions from Washington, they may be given first consideration.

BECAUSE BUICK GIVES MORE AND BETTER MILES

*Every state in the Union purchases more Buicks than any other automobile priced above $1,000.

There are 600,000 more people driving Buicks than the next most popular car in Buick's price range.

*Five times as many people buy Buicks as any other car priced above $1,000—sixes, eights, twelves or sixteens.

Nearly nine out of ten—89 per cent—of the 1,300,000 Buick owners say they will buy Buicks again.

*Every city with a population of 125,000 or over buys more Buicks than any other car priced above $1,000.

* Figures taken from Polk's National New Car Sales Service

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT, BUICK WILL BUILD THEM . . A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

Buick wishes to thank the men and women whose demand for Buick cars has made possible this great sales leadership. Such popularity can mean only one thing: People are convinced that Buick gives more and better miles. You and your family will also find Buick the ideal car. A single drive will prove that it gives better miles—and the records show that many Buicks serve dependably for 200,000 miles and more. That's reliability—and economy, too. Remember—there are twenty Buick models—all moderately priced and all available on liberal G. M. A. C. terms.

FAMILY KIDNAPED BY TWO CONVICTS

they threatened to shoot her if she did not drop the pistol, she said. After she had dropped the weapon one of the men picked it up and remarked, "This makes us five."

While one of the men held her and her husband prisoners the other searched the place and the automobile. They then made Mr. and Mrs. Payne and the two children get into the automobile and drove by way of Bastrop, Dermott and Monticello into Pine Bluff.

After reaching Pine Bluff, according to the story told by the Paynes, they drove all over the town and finally located an automobile, which they took. They then released the Paynes and told them they would meet them on the road back to Monroe. That was the last the Paynes saw of the bandits, but they said an automobile followed them for some time and they were afraid to attempt to make a report of the kidnaping.

Mr. and Mrs. Payne said the men treated them kindly, stopping at Bonita to buy cold drinks for them and candy for the children, but warned them if they made any sign or signal that they would be shot.

Mr. Payne said the men had only $1 or $1.50 in money, and while in Pine Bluff they looked for a place to "hijack," but Mr. Payne said he talked them out of this, pointing out that the children might be injured. Before the Paynes were released one of the men pawned a watch, chain and fountain pen at a filling station about three miles out of Pine Bluff, obtaining in exchange $3.50 in cash and seven gallons of gasoline. He gave the money to Mr. Payne and also returned the pistol which had been taken. He said he had stolen the watch, chain and pen.

The Paynes said the men talked freely and told them they had escaped from the Lansing, Kan., penitentiary. The palms of their hands were blistered and they said they had blistered them sliding down a rope, Mr. Payne said. One of the men had a .45-calibre Colt pistol he said he had taken from a policeman. They told the Paynes that after leaving the penitentiary they "bumped off some men and took their clothes." They were carrying two pistols each.

According to the story told by the men to the Paynes, they came to Monroe, caught a ride to within one mile of the Payne home and then walked the remainder of the way. They spoke of going to Texarkana and Little Rock, Ark., and Greenville, Miss., but decided not to go to Greenville and said they were "hot" in Little Rock.

The men claimed to be brothers and said their home was in St. Louis, Mo. They said they were wanted on a number of charges, including murder.

One of the men was described as being about six feet tall and having short, light hair. He told the Paynes he was 24 years old and the other man was 20. The other man was said to be five feet six or seven inches tall and to have short, fair hair. The older man was said to weigh 150 or 160 pounds and the other 130 or 140 pounds.

Sheriff Milton Coverdale said he had communicated with the sheriff at Pine Bluff regarding the place at which the watch, chain and pen were pawned in the hope that the sheriff there might locate the owners of the jewelry and thus obtain trace of the bandits.

Pictures of eight of the eleven men who escaped from the Lansing prison were carried in Saturday morning's issue of the World. They were Ed Davis, Wilbur Underhill, Frank Sawyer Jim Clark, Alvis Payton, Harvey Bailey, Kenneth Conn and Bob Brady. Clark, Brady, Conn, Underhill and Davis were serving life terms for crimes ranging from bank robbery to murder.

According to an Associated Press dispatch from Malvern, the couple kidnaped at Pine Bluff picked Kenneth Conn out from the group of eight as being one of the men who kidnaped them. The same group was shown at police headquarters here to Mr. and Mrs. Payne, but they were unable to identify any of them positively as being the kidnapers.

Adams and Miss Garner were kidnaped at Pine Bluff last night and were released at the railroad station here at about 10:45 this morning, and given money for their fare home. The two men left immediately in the car belonging to Adams' brother.

Adams said he and Miss Garner accompanied his brother, G. H. Adams, to the latter's photography shop at Pine Bluff last night and were waiting in the automobile when two roughly dressed men came up to the car, one on each side, and drew pistols. One of the men took the wheel of the car, Adams said, and the other guarded him and Miss Garner with the pistol.

They left Pine Bluff in a southeasterly direction, Adams said, and became lost in the vicinity of Star City. They became so confused, he said that they passed through Star City three times.

Finally getting on a straight road, the two men drove through Monticello, Warren, Camden, and started back in a northerly direction to Gurdon.

Several times, they stopped for gasoline and oil, Adams said, using money taken from him. Between Gurdon and Camden, they stopped at a farm house where breakfast for the four was bought, still using Adams' money.

Finally, Adams said, he and Miss Garner persuaded the men to let them out somewhere near Pine Bluff so they could make their way home and they were brought here.

Although they were threatened with death if they made an outcry, Adams said he and Miss Garner were "treated fairly well, considering everything."

Both Adams and Miss Garner identified Conn from a group of eight newspaper photographs, but said they did not believe the other kidnaper's photograph was among the eight.

Adams said the man he identified as Conn exhibited a woman's wrist watch with the name "Billie Wood" engraved on the back, and later told him he and his companion-kidnaper had kidnaped a mother, her daughter and a friend soon after their escape last Tuesday from the Kansas state penitentiary.

Having read newspaper accounts of the kidnaping of Mrs. M. J. Woods, her daughter, Louise, 17, and Miss Clovis Wears, 17, of Kansas City, Kansas, Adams said he led his kidnaper into further conversation and said the man identified as Conn exhibited articles of women's clothing he said were taken by him.

New evidence on the extent of Morgan power was presented today in a table placed in the record by Pecora showing the four big utility companies in which the firm is interested receive 16.5 per cent of the total annual gross earnings of all power and gas companies in the nation.

Previous testimony has shown that the utility group formed by Morgan in its holding company, the United corporation, is the biggest in the country and serves an area with a population of more than 50,000,000 people.

This table, from Morgan files, showed the four big United corporation companies' annual gross earnings were $448,000,000 as compared with a national total of $2,700,000.

The earnings were divided by companies as follows:

Com'w'lth and Southern..	$145,000,000
Public Service of N. J.	132,000,000
United Gas Imp'm'nt Co...	86,000,000
Niagara Hudson Pw. Co...	85,000,000

Instructions Awaited For Work In Forests

That definite instructions will be received from the president early this week relative to the reforestation program proposed for this state, is the word that has come to H. B. McClendon, local service officer for the American Legion post.

It is suggested in the letter from the secretary of state service commissioner in New Orleans that ex-service men interested in enlisting their service for this work immediately submit their applications so that on receipt of instructions from Washington, they may be given first consideration.

BECAUSE BUICK GIVES MORE AND BETTER MILES

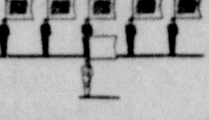
*Every state in the Union purchases more Buicks than any other automobile priced above $1,000.

There are 600,000 more people driving Buicks than the next most popular car in Buick's price range.



*Five times as many people buy Buicks as any other car priced above $1,000—sixes, eights, twelves or sixteens.

Nearly nine out of ten—89 per cent—of the 1,300,000 Buick owners say they will buy Buicks again.

*Every city with a population of 125,000 or over buys more Buicks than any other car priced above $1,000.

 Figures taken from Polk's National New Car Sales Service*

Buick wishes to thank the men and women whose demand for Buick cars has made possible this great sales leadership. Such popularity can mean only one thing: People are convinced that Buick gives more and better miles. You and your family will also find Buick the ideal car. A single drive will prove that it gives better miles—and the records show that many Buicks serve dependably for 200,000 miles and more. That's reliability—and economy, too. Remember—there are twenty Buick models—all moderately priced and all available on liberal G. M. A. C. terms.

all for repudiation of government obligations, defenders replied that the welfare of the majority was supreme and that the government had the right to abrogate contracts in carrying out constitutional functions of regulating money.

"For generations Americans will grow red around the ears when they think of the dishonest and dishonorable thing this congress did," the Pennsylvania Republican, Reed, told his colleagues.

In reply, Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, said "we must cease to pay tribute to the gold standard at the expense of the American people."

"It has been said that this resolution is repudiation," Borah added. "I'm not prepared to controvert that fact. But while the bondholder has the technical right to demand payment in gold he must take his position with the rest of the American people in the sacrifice they have been making in the last year and a half."

Party lines were split as the senate argued over the honor and constitutionality of the proposal.

"If the government agreed to pay 25.8 grains of gold and pays less than 25.8 grains," Senator Glass, Virginia's former treasury secretary said, "it's repudiation."

Senator Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, contended "the welfare of 120,000,000 people is supreme over any group in the number."

Another former Democratic secretary of the treasury, McAdoo, Democrat, California, agreed with Barkley's statement that the gold clause was nothing more than a "legal fiction."

FRIGIDAIRE STEPS UP PRODUCTION

DAYTON, Ohio, June 3.—Production schedules of Frigidaire corporation, subsidiary of General Motors, today were stepped up to such an extent that the number of household electric refrigerators to be built in June will be the greatest for any 30-day period in the history of the company, according to announcement today by E. G. Biechler, president and general manager.

At the same time, Mr. Biechler stated, production schedules for the manufacturing of commercial refrigeration equipment will be doubled in comparison with the proposed manufacturing schedule forecast 30 days ago.

Approximately 10,000 men, the largest number since 1929. now are working full time in the company's two plants in Dayton, Mr. Biechler said, to meet orders from virtually every section of the nation. The buying of household Frigidaires has far exceeded previous estimates, he said, with the result that most of the huge daily shipments leaving Dayton are for immediate installations in purchasers' homes, and not for stock.

"We most assuredly believe," Mr. Biecher said, "that when homeowners begin buying equipment costing in the neighborhood of $100 and up and store owners and restaurateurs begin investing in commercial refrigeration equipment a new deal in buying is here."

Part of the firemen went directly to this fire, as the first blaze had almost been extinguished. An alarm for the second fire was said, however, to have been received by the West Monroe fire department at 12:10 a. m. The house on North Fourth street was owned by R. M. Stamper and was a vacant negro dwelling. It was estimated to be worth $800 and the loss was placed at $200.

At 2:50 a. m. company No. 1 of the Monroe fire department made a run to a house at Bawcom, owned by the People's Homestead and Savings association, but found the house burned almost to the ground when they arrived. The building was estimated to be worth $1,000. R. L. Davis was said to have moved his family out of the house Friday and to have left for Texas.

About 8 p. m. the West Monroe fire department extinguished a trash fire at the home of Brock Lewis, near Ransom addition. The false alarm was to a residence on Oakland street and came while firemen were fighting the blaze at the Dortch house This alarm was said to have been received at 3:40 a. m.

In fighting the three house fires, the West Monroe firemen laid about 1,700 feet of hose, Fire Chief E. C. Taylor said. The fact that so many fires broke out in one night caused the fire chief to believe that at least part of them were incendiary.

tempt to thwart political reforms, "because the church accommodates herself to all forms of government and civil institutions, provided the rights of God and the Christian conscience are left intact."

Eight separate charges were made against the Spanish republic, namely:

(1) The church and the state have been separated; the pope described this separation as a "most serious error."

(2) The Catholic religion has an odious watch set over its teachings in the school; the exercise of worship, religious possessions, the administration of sacraments to the dying, and services for the dead have been hampered.

(3) The church has been stripped of all property and forced to pay a tax.

(4) Churches have been declared the property of the state.

(5) Religious congregations (clerical orders) have been deprived of the right to teach.

(6) Religious orders which vow obedience to an authority other than the state have been suppressed.

(7) A blow was aimed at the supreme authority of the church by the declaration that the "authority of the vicar of Jesus Christ is foreign to the Spanish nation.

(8) Religious buildings have been seized in order to establish lay schools.

In his general encyclical declaration the pontiff exhorted the "dearly loved" Spanish people to use "all legitimate means to nullify the hateful legislation."

The automatic excommunication was directed against over 100 members of the Spanish government and legislators, including the life-long Catholic, President Alcala Zamora, who resigned his premiership in the first provisional republican administration because the Spanish congress voted the expulsion of the Jesuits and the control of other orders into the constitution.

quences a thought. We just wanted an easy payoff. We thought McElroy would be an easy payoff, too."

McGee's confession came after the city manager entered the room at police headquarters where the prisoner was questioned.

"We've met before," McElroy said, looking intently into McGee's eyes.

McGee rose from his chair and extended his hand. McElroy shook hands with him.

"Yes, we've met before," McGee said, and began to cry.

Their meeting was along a lonely Kansas road last Sunday when McElroy handed over a package containing the $30,000 ransom.

Miss McElroy, who bantered lightly with her captors from the outset of her kidnaping until her release, collapsed this afternoon when she visited the house where she was held captive. She fainted and was rushed home with her father.

In his long, rambling confession, McGee said he and Stevens first intended to kidnap Henry F. McElroy, Jr., the city manager's son.

As the story of the kidnap plot was being related, the federal grand jury returned indictments against McGee, Clarence Flick. held at police headquarters; Clarence Stevens and George McGee, fugitives, Windell Johnson, Hazel Johnson. L. R. Gilbert and Lenora Gilbert who were arrested with Walter McGee at Amarillo.

The indictments charged interstate transportation of Miss McElroy, punishable by life imprisonment, and the sending of extortion letters, which Miss McElroy was forced to write, through the mail.

day morning and went to the jury at 4:10 p. m. Friday. After the jury had deliberated two hours, a recess was taken until 7:30, when deliberations were resumed. When it appeared at 9:10 p. m. that a verdict was not likely to be reached soon the jury was locked up for the night.

This is the second time Elmore has been tried on the charge. At the first trial, which was held in November, last year, a mistrial resulted. Up to the time of the trial and for several months afterward Elmore was kept in jail, but later succeeded in making bond.

Roy Smith and Mrs. Frank Manley were charged jointly with Elmore with murder in connection with the killing. Mrs. Manley was released several months ago under bond, but Smith has been confined in the jail since the time of the killing, except for about two months which he spent in a hospital, suffering from a fractured thigh bone, received at the time Reiser was killed.

The contention of the state since the time of the killing has been that Elmore, Smith and Mrs. Manley plotted to rob Reiser of about $400 they believed he had on his person. According to this version. Smith and Elmore were taken to Reiser's home for the robbery and the money was to be "split three ways."

In the trial the state sought to prove that when Elmore and Smith attempted to rob Reiser the latter grappled with Elmore and as a result was shot to death by Elmore. It was also contended by the state that Elmore accidentally shot Smith while shooting at Reiser. This was in accordance with testimony given on the stand by Smith. who admitted the robbery plan.

Elmore denied he knew anything of plans to rob Reiser and claimed he went with Smith to Reiser's home because he thought Smith merely wanted to see Reiser on business. He said he was standing some distance from Smith and Reiser when the shooting took place and did not know how either of them came to be shot.

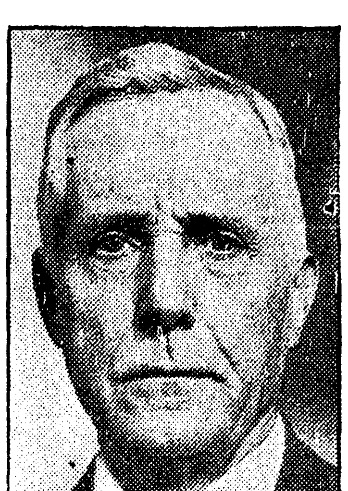
No date has been set for trial of Smith, who was the principal state witness in the Elmore trial, but Mrs. Manley is scheduled to go to trial June 14. Mrs. Manley was never used as a witness in either of the trials. She has contended that she knew nothing of any plan to rob Reiser and that she had no part in the killing of Reiser. The state sought to show that Mrs. Manley had charged that Reiser had stolen a load of whisky from her and that she wanted to get even with him.

Other cases that were set for trial this week following the Elmore case were continued indefinitely for the reason that all of the time was required for the Elmore trial. Defendants in these cases and the charges against them were as follows: Ida Green, negro woman, receiving stolen property; Roosevelt Collier, negro, breaking and entering; Tom Smith and Willie K. Smith, negroes, larceny from the person; J. E. Wadley, negro, embezzlement; Tom Witt. larceny; G. F. Wallace, three counts of obtaining money under false pretenses, and F. E. Robbins, shooting with intent to kill, in connection with the serious wounding of his half-brother, John Hondlink.

Cases in which John Skiles is charged with murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Willie Butler, ward nine farmer, and in which J. L. Allgood is charged with attempted criminal assault are scheduled to be tried June 12. Roy Garrett is scheduled to be tried on a charge of breaking and entering on June 13.

It has been indicated that a special jury session may be called early this summer to take care of cases left over from the regular session.

INJURED



TULSA, Okla., June 3.—(AP)—Hospital attendants today said injuries received by former United States Senator James A. Reed in a transport plane crash were not serious.

He suffered a scalp wound and bruises and attendants said he probably would keep to his bed "two or three days."

The ship fell from a height of less than 30 feet after the motor failed on the take-off Friday.

R. Stein Lee, the pilot, and W. E. Gregory of Kansas City, a passenger, also suffered scalp cuts. J. R. Grisham of Dallas, the third passenger, was uninjured.

LICENSE PLATES STOLEN

Theft of license plates from his automobile was reported to police headquarters here Saturday by J. R. Fair, salesman out of Little Rock, Ark. The plates, bearing Arkansas license No. 105-168, were stolen off Fair's coupe while it was parked in Hotel Frances parking lot.

Couple Are Married At Home of Rev. Goodman

Louie M. Holbrook of Fairbanks and Miss Bonnie L. Morrison were married at 8:30 Saturday night at the residence of Rev. G. E. Goodman, state Baptist mission worker, at Edgewater addition. The ceremony was witnessed by a number of friends of the couple.

Mr. Holbrook is connected with the Natural Gas company. Miss Morrison's parents now live in Nebraska, but formerly lived in Monroe. She had been visiting for some time in Fairbanks. After a short honeymoon trip, Mr. and Mrs. Holbrook will be at home at Fairbanks.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH THESE FIGURES?

Two cheap refrigerators do not equal one good one. You can buy an electric refrigerator for a lower price than that at which Westinghouse quality can be sold. But where is the economy if you must replace it within a few years, while a Westinghouse offers a lifetime of service?

Look at the FACTS: Westinghouse makes only one quality of refrigerator . . . the BEST that can be built. You save more with a Westinghouse . . . and it serves longer . . . because it is more efficient and is designed to run for many years without appreciable wear. The mechanism is HERMETICALLY SEALED against rust, dirt and moisture; it is DUAL-AUTOMATIC, with the extra protection of the Built-in Watchman thermostat.

Buy a refrigerator that you know will be saving money for you long after your neighbor's "bargain" make has been replaced. If you pay more, it's an extravagance . . . for there is no better refrigerator built at any price. If you pay less, you are gambling with the life and soundness of your refrigeration investment. A visit to our showroom will convince you. Come in!

Their meeting was along a lonely Kansas road last Sunday when McElroy handed over a package containing the $30,000 ransom.

Miss McElroy, who bantered lightly with her captors from the outset of her kidnaping until her release, collapsed this afternoon when she visited the house where she was held captive. She fainted and was rushed home with her father.

In his long, rambling confession, McGee said he and Stevens first intended to kidnap Henry F. McElroy, Jr., the city manager's son.

As the story of the kidnap plot was being related, the federal grand jury returned indictments against McGee, Clarence Flick, held at police headquarters; Clarence Stevens and George McGee, fugitives, Windell Johnson, Hazel Johnson, L. R. Gilbert and Lenora Gilbert who were arrested with Walter McGee at Amarillo.

The indictments charged interstate transportation of Miss McElroy, punishable by life imprisonment, and the sending of extortion letters, which Miss McElroy was forced to write, through the mail.

day morning and went to the jury at 4:10 p. m. Friday. After the jury had deliberated two hours, a recess was taken until 7:30, when deliberations were resumed. When it appeared at 9:10 p. m. that a verdict was not likely to be reached soon the jury was locked up for the night.

This is the second time Elmore has been tried on the charge. At the first trial, which was held in November, last year, a mistrial resulted. Up to the time of the trial and for several months afterward Elmore was kept in jail, but later succeeded in making bond.

Roy Smith and Mrs. Frank Manley were charged jointly with Elmore with murder in connection with the killing. Mrs. Manley was released several months ago under bond, but Smith has been confined in the jail since the time of the killing, except for about two months which he spent in a hospital, suffering from a fractured thigh bone, received at the time Reiser was killed.

The contention of the state since the time of the killing has been that Elmore, Smith and Mrs. Manley plotted to rob Reiser of about $400 they believed he had on his person. According to this version, Smith and Elmore were taken to Reiser's home for the robbery and the money was to be "split three ways."

In the trial the state sought to prove that when Elmore and Smith attempted to rob Reiser the latter grappled with Elmore and as a result was shot to death by Elmore. It was also contended by the state that Elmore accidentally shot Smith while shooting at Reiser. This was in accordance with testimony given on the stand by Smith, who admitted the robbery plan.

Elmore denied he knew anything of plans to rob Reiser and claimed he went with Smith to Reiser's home because he thought Smith merely wanted to see Reiser on business. He said he was standing some distance from Smith and Reiser when the shooting took place and did not know how either of them came to be shot.

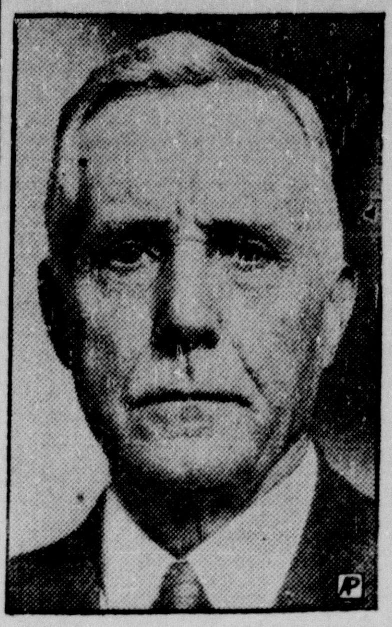
No date has been set for trial of Smith, who was the principal state witness in the Elmore trial, but Mrs. Manley is scheduled to go to trial June 14. Mrs. Manley was never used as a witness in either of the trials. She has contended that she knew nothing of any plan to rob Reiser and that she had no part in the killing of Reiser. The state sought to show that Mrs. Manley had charged that Reiser had stolen a load of whisky from her and that she wanted to get even with him.

Other cases that were set for trial this week following the Elmore case were continued indefinitely for the reason that all of the time was required for the Elmore trial. Defendants in these cases and the charges against them were as follows: Ida Green, negro woman, receiving stolen property; Roosevelt Collier, negro, breaking and entering; Tom Smith and Willie K. Smith, negroes, larceny from the person; J. E. Wadley, negro, embezzlement; Tom Witt, larceny; G. F. Wallace, three counts of obtaining money under false pretenses, and F. E. Robbins, shooting with intent to kill, in connection with the serious wounding of his half-brother, John Hondlink.

Cases in which John Skiles is charged with murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Willie Butler, ward nine farmer, and in which J. L. Allgood is charged with attempted criminal assault are scheduled to be tried June 12. Roy Garrett is scheduled to be tried on a charge of breaking and entering on June 13.

It has been indicated that a special jury session may be called early this summer to take care of cases left over from the regular session.

INJURED



TULSA, Okla., June 3.—(AP)—Hospital attendants today said injuries received by former United States Senator James A. Reed in a transport plane crash were not serious.

He suffered a scalp wound and bruises and attendants said he probably would keep to his bed "two or three days."

The ship fell from a height of less than 30 feet after the motor failed on the take-off Friday.

R. Stein Lee, the pilot, and W. E. Gregory of Kansas City, a passenger, also suffered scalp cuts. J. R. Grisham of Dallas, the third passenger, was uninjured.

LICENSE PLATES STOLEN

Theft of license plates from his automobile was reported to police headquarters here Saturday by J. R. Fair, salesman out of Little Rock, Ark. The plates, bearing Arkansas license No. 105-168, were stolen off Fair's coupe while it was parked in Hotel Frances parking lot.

Couple Are Married At Home of Rev. Goodman

Louie M. Holbrook of Fairbanks and Miss Bonnie L. Morrison were married at 8:30 Saturday night at the residence of Rev. G. E. Goodman, state Baptist mission worker, at Edgewater addition. The ceremony was witnessed by a number of friends of the couple.

Mr. Holbrook is connected with the Natural Gas company. Miss Morrison's parents now live in Nebraska, but formerly lived in Monroe. She had been visiting for some time in Fairbanks. After a short honeymoon trip, Mr. and Mrs. Holbrook will be at home at Fairbanks.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH THESE FIGURES?

Two cheap refrigerators do not equal one good one. You can buy an electric refrigerator for a lower price than that at which Westinghouse quality can be sold. But where is the economy if you must replace it within a few years, while a Westinghouse offers a lifetime of service?

Look at the FACTS: Westinghouse makes only one quality of refrigerator ... the BEST that can be built. You save more with a Westinghouse ... and it serves longer ... because it is more efficient and is designed to run for many years without appreciable wear. The mechanism is HERMETICALLY SEALED against rust, dirt and moisture; it is DUAL-AUTOMATIC, with the extra protection of the Built-in Watchman thermostat.

Buy a refrigerator that you know will be saving money for you long after your neighbor's "bargain" make has been replaced. If you pay more, it's an extravagance ... for there is no better refrigerator built at any price. If you pay less, you are gambling with the life and soundness of your refrigeration investment. A visit to our showroom will convince you. Come in!

The Will That Finds A Way

A group of men were considering a serious public problem. At every point in the discussion there was encountered what seemed to be an insurmountable obstacle.

"The thing can be done, and it is right that it should be done," said one of the group. "I am an old man; I am 70 years old. I have gone up against tougher problems than this one, and I have found that if it is right that a thing be done there is always a way to do it."

There is an adage familiar to all of us which says that "where there is a will there is a way." That saying, like many others, is not wholly true. It is a maxim that needs qualifying. There must be intelligence mixed with the will. If a man were determined to butt down a high stone wall with his head he couldn't do it. He would have to use what is inside his head to figure out another way.

But, commonly, the determination to do a thing, if that determination be unwavering, is productive of remarkable results. Some of our most valuable and marvelous inventions are the result of an unflagging fidelity to purpose on the part of the inventors. As a matter of fact, the principle of conscientious persistency must be applied in the achievement of any success.

True, the principle may be applied to the accomplishment of wrong purposes and unworthy ends. A will to do evil, persistently followed, will inevitably find ways to encompass any kind of deviltry. But the man or woman who determines to do something fine and right, can find the way to do it, if intelligence, sincerity and purposeful efforts are persistently exercised.

Fidelity is an excellent word to use in connection with the exercise of the will. Men who have worked successfully on problems that have blessed mankind, have worked with a fidelity amazing to their fellows. They have labored without money until their clothes were in tatters. They have worked without food until their bodies have been emaciated. The inventor Scheel, who had much to do with the invention of the Tungsten lamp, became so poor that he was unable to obtain fuel for the furnace indispensable to his experimentations. So he took the furniture out of his pitiful home, broke it up and used it to fire his furnace. It was as a result of this final sacrifice of nearly everything that he possessed on the altar of his beloved cause, that the secret he had striven so painfully to unlock was finally revealed to him.

Success has a basically tender heart. She cannot commonly hide herself forever from anyone who seeks her in a spirit of undying fidelity.

Yes, it is undoubtedly true that so far as practical usage goes, we can say with reasonable assurance that there's a way, provided that there's a will that does not falter until it has found the way. Many a man and many a woman setting out for a goal has become discouraged when the goal was just around the corner. Many a person striving for an objective has given up when success, unknown to him, was almost within his grasp.

We can never tell how near we are to finding the way. It may come with miraculous suddenness through what seems to be an impenetrable, insurmountable obstruction. Fate can commonly be depended upon to be kindly and faithful to him who is faithful to his cause, if his cause be right.

THE WIDE WIDE WORLD

Do not be distressed overmuch by news of evil. This is a wide, wide world. It contains much that is bad, but more that is good. Righteousness is slowly, but surely, triumphing over sin.

If you do not believe that, or merely have not realized it, turn for a moment to contemplation of happier things. Turn your tired eyes from the day's record of evil to the day's golden roll of honor. There is more of good news than of bad news today, every day. There is more to see on the sunny side, and it is more worth seeing.

There are only two reasons for gazing at ugly things; either that we may more fully know evil when we meet, even in gilded robes; or that we may grapple with it and blot it out.

Broad highroads of honor lead to every worthy goal of life. The mud roads are in the lowlands, leading only to dissolution and corruption. If we travel the mud road it is at our own volition.

Sin is not the harvest of life. It is the chaff threshed from the wholesome grain and will be swept from the threshing floor. Why look upon the chaff when the grain is there?

If some days the volume of chaff seems greater than others, know that the threshing has been more thorough.

More Truth Than Poetry

By JAMES A. MONTAGUE

THE VERNAL TRAGEDY

School ain't so bad when winter's here—
Nor not so good—but still
The crick's been frozen half a year
The snow is over all the ice
Below the pasture gate,
An' only maybe once or twice
You git a chanst to skate.

But when the birds are on the wing,
An' when the grass gets green,
And when a feller wants to sing—
Well, you know what I mean—
When pickerel is to be caught
In all the yaller brooks,
Whoever hankers to be taught
The stuff that's in the books?

The schoolhouse then's just like a jail—
You can't get satisfied;
You'd ruther it would snow or hail
Than be so nice outside.
Acrost the meadows far away
You hear the old crows caw—
To keep a feller in all day
Should be against some law.

If schools build up a feller's brains,
As teachers say they do,
Why can't they learn us when it rains,
Not when the skies is blue?
I think that iggorance is bliss
When all is said an' done,
For when you go to school you miss
An awful lot of fun.

World Peace, Our Problem

By BRUCE CATTON

Sometime in the not-distant future the American people are going to have to make up their minds just how far they care to go in helping to maintain the peace of Europe.

That peace is a very unstable thing. It has been, ever since the war. It was unstable for decades before the war. There is nothing in sight right now to indicate that it is going to be any more stable in the immediate future.

This is because there has not, for many decades, been a situation in Europe which was not deeply displeasing to certain important minorities. Before 1914, France wanted to regain her lost provinces, Polish patriots dreamed of independence, restless groups in the Hapsburg empire schemed for separation; since the war the central powers, particularly Germany, have felt the Versailles treaty as an irksome restriction which must some day be ended.

Hence every nation must be prepared, ultimately, to appeal to force. As a result, disarmament schemes usually come to grief. Those nations interested in maintaining existing frontiers and treaties will not give up their military predominance unless they are assured that such countries as England and America will join them in preventing the discontented minorities from kicking over the traces.

All of which leads up to the question, How far are we prepared to go in underwriting the status quo overseas?

If we continue to stand aloof the disarmament program must collapse. A new war will become more than likely, and we have no assurance whatever that we shall be any more able to keep out of it than we were able to keep out of the last one.

On the other hand, if we line up firmly for existing treaties we commit ourselves deeply in quarrels that are not of our making and we lend our support to a situation which many of us feel contains great injustices.

It won't be an easy decision. But it is hard to see how we can avoid making it, one way or the other. We are rapidly approaching a great fork in the road, and there is no middle course. Before long we must make one of the most important choices in our history.

It has always seemed to me that there is something incongruous, not to say inconsistent, in going to war to preserve the peace.—Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas.

Howe About Everything

By E. W. HOWE

Although it is said abroad Americans are the greatest idlers in the world, it has finally been agreed among ourselves we have been working too long hours, and that in future we must play more.

And now the question comes up for discussion: What shall we do with our additional idle time? How find new enjoyments in our shiftlessness?

Why not try some new amusements? Why not rub up our knowledge of finance, and less frequently become the victims of sharpers? Why not athletic clubs to chase outlaws, now a real menace to our homes? And speaking of homes again, why not beautify them more, and add comforts heretofore lacking? Why not clubs of citizens to improve our public affairs? Half of us are dumb as to the real value of print: why not read more, and with greater discretion? Why not pay more attention to the joys and benefits of good health? Most of us gobble our food like pigs, and, lacking their digestion and shorter years have become so quarrelsome, inefficient and dumpy that one-quarter of the population is now howling for public relief, with most of the rest of us looking on shamelessly, and thinking it may be a good idea for everybody.

Silerius said in his Memoirs: "In all my life I have known but one really intelligent and fair woman." . . . (As every other man will probably say he has known at least one such woman, there must be a good many of them.)

Do races inevitably run out? Is it hopeless to struggle for their improvement and continuance?

It seems to me I am able to note a sad deterioration since the Civil war. Compare congress now with congress of seventy-five years ago and how shabbily 1933 comes off! There isn't a man of ability in the present congress (or cabinet, or supreme court) to compare with dozens who might be named within ten years of 1858.

The deterioration of races is intellectual. We are healthier now than ever before; we have improved our lamps and our buggies, but have shamefully neglected our minds.

Compare Daniel Webster with Huey Long!

It may well occur to every man that he is doing well enough physically, but that his mind is failing.

Thousands have known the true philosophy of life. And been so whipped by mob men that now no one dares be sensible. . . . All men are more intelligent than their actions indicate. Foolish tradition, and foolish, continuous quarreling about it, have made fools of us all.

Considering the rough manner in which all men are forever trying to muss up all women, some women look very well.

It is well known that most men of discernment have poor opinion of the people en masse, because of their low average in intelligence, morals, politeness and fairness; because of their insistence on ruining every civilization the better men have attempted.

Bernard Shaw has this opinion of mankind, and expresses it publicly, instead of privately, as most other men do. For this he is cordially hated, although everybody knows his opinions of humanity are sound; at least, sounder than the opinions of other writing men.

My relations with Bernard Shaw are excellent. I do not know him, or wish to know him, and never write him. I hear he is polite enough to those who have good reason to call on or write him.

During a recent journey at sea Shaw went on deck early one morning, and found an old man leaning indifferently over the rail.

"How does it come," Shaw asked, "that you are the only man on the ship who has not annoyed me?"

"Because I do not want to know you, or talk to you," the man answered.

"Ever hear of me?" Shaw asked again.

"I know all about you," the man replied. "I have read nearly everything said about you, or you have written. You are one of my heroes. I admire you because of your impudence in saying what you think of everybody and everything. I think the same things and am afraid to say them. You save me the trouble. I beg you to proceed with your walk."

It is often said the English have no sense of humor. . . . An Englishman relates that a child on first seeing a rainbow, asked: "What is it? Advertising?" . . . Another Englishman is reported as saying: "The only time a horse scares nowadays is when he sees another horse." . . . As a contrast I quote two of the most popular American funny men: Eddie Cantor: "He hasn't an enemy in the world, but all his friends hate him." Ed Wynn: "A bachelor is a man who never made the same mistake once." . . . Of course all this is piffle, but perhaps it is less tiresome than the serious portions of the newspapers.

The huge racing automobile, often costing fifteen thousand dollars, and which occasionally breaks a speed record or turns over on its driver, is not much of an automobile; the really useful and creditable machine is that in the middle class, which delivers useful service to millions at reasonable cost.

A friend of mine, a very old man, died lately. . . . I was able to think this of him: He had already done well; he had made an unusual record years before he died. It was a pleasure to so write his children.

One of the most general complaints of the human race is that there are too many of us;

Some say wars are thus justifiable (in spite of the great expense and annoyance of pensions);

Still, it must be admitted that almost everyone somewhat realizes the gravity of the situation, and helps in killing himself off; I know of no one who does not shorten his life a little by too much devotion to some of the various follies offering.

Georgia Tucker School Graduates 41 Pupils

A class of 41, on Friday morning, was graduated from the sixth grade of the Georgia Tucker school. The auditorium of the school was thronged for the occasion.

Short talks were made by the first and second honor students, Sarah Frances Hinkle, valedictorian, and Carolyn Oliver, salutatorian. The third honor student was Barbara Collins.

A selection was rendered by the school chorus after which award was made for the best history notebook. This was awarded to Carolyn Oliver.

Four winners of the music appreciation contest were made known as follows: Carolyn Oliver, Doll Hudson, Joanne Humphries and Barbara Collins.

As a result of achievement tests given, for the purpose of determining what pupils possess the best, well-rounded education, three were named as follows: 1st place, Carolyn Oliver; 2nd place, Patsy Slack; 3rd place, Sara Frances Hinkle.

Lights of New York

By Paul Harrison

NEW YORK.—Ever since there was a metropolitan New York, writers have made capital of the city's heedless heartlessness. O. Henry understood the loneliness that is furnished with dingy hallrooms. He knew the social desolation of crowded streets.

But few fictioneers have mentioned the city's lonely jobs. Such as the thousands of workers in the gloomy little change booths in the subways, or motormen in the cabs of trains, or patrolmen in the deserted financial district at night, pacing their beats along the silent, lowering canyons.

Loneliest Copper

Herbert McKinnon for 16 years has had the loneliest job in New York. At least, that's the way McKinnon himself feels about it.

The ruddy, taciturn Scot is, of all things, a traffic cop. Yet, for nine hours each day from the time he pulls on his white gloves in the morning to the time when he steps down from his little platform, he doesn't see a single pedestrian. His post is on the vehicular viaduct that carries Park avenue around the Grand Central building, and more than 30,000 cars speed past him every day.

McKinnon says it took him five years just to get used to the job, and even now he still gets the feeling sometimes that he's the only man in the world not in an automobile. And he never gets a chance to talk to a driver; although he knows hundreds of chauffeurs by sight, and the men they drive for, and all the city officials. They wave as they pass, and are gone. The policeman misses ex-Mayor Jimmy Walker, who always used to lean out and yell "Hi, Mac."

The only excitement he has had in 16 years was in 1928 when a metal star fell off the clock on the southern facade of the building and dented the concrete right beside him.

People riding by have noticed and felt sorry for McKinnon, and at Christmas time lots of big cars slow up beside him to deliver gifts of cigars and socks and the like. He only has a chance, though, to yell a hurried thanks.

McKinnon's wife has been asking him to buy a car, but he is adamant on that score. Says he wouldn't have one as a gift.

Bridging the Years

Another lonely job is the one Sven Peterson has. He's the official painter of Brooklyn bridge, and has been for 30 years. Swinging from his bos'n's chair 133 feet above the East river, or clambering surefootedly up the maze of cables, he slaps on fresh pigment and inches slowly along on a task that's never done. For when he gets to one end of the 6,000-foot bridge it's time to start all over again at the other.

The famous structure, one of the wonders of the engineering world, is spick and span now, ready for a semi-centennial celebration of its opening on May 24, 1883. Peterson is a little sad about the way traffic is decreasing, what with the subways and other bridges that have been built since. He says only 9,000,000 vehicles passed over it last year. Lonely fellow that he is, though, swinging from his eerie perches, a few million people, more or less make little difference.

The Will That Finds A Way

A group of men were considering a serious public problem. At every point in the discussion there was encountered what seemed to be an insurmountable obstacle.

"The thing can be done, and it is right that it should be done," said one of the group. "I am an old man; I am 70 years old. I have gone up against tougher problems than this one, and I have found that if it is right that a thing be done there is always a way to do it."

There is an adage familiar to all of us which says that "where there is a will there is a way." That saying, like many others, is not wholly true. It is a maxim that needs qualifying. There must be intelligence mixed with the will. If a man were determined to butt down a high stone wall with his head he couldn't do it. He would have to use what is inside his head to figure out another way.

But, commonly, the determination to do a thing, if that determination be unwavering, is productive of remarkable results. Some of our most valuable and marvelous inventions are the result of an unflagging fidelity to purpose on the part of the inventors. As a matter of fact, the principle of conscientious persistency must be applied in the achievement of any success.

True, the principle may be applied to the accomplishment of wrong purposes and unworthy ends. A will to do evil, persistently followed, will inevitably find ways to encompass any kind of deviltry. But the man or woman who determines to do something fine and right, can find the way to do it, if intelligence, sincerity and purposeful efforts are persistently exercised.

Fidelity is an excellent word to use in connection with the exercise of the will. Men who have worked successfully on problems that have blessed mankind, have worked with a fidelity amazing to their fellows. They have labored without money until their clothes were in tatters. They have worked without food until their bodies have been emaciated. The inventor Scheel, who had much to do with the invention of the Tungsten lamp, became so poor that he was unable to obtain fuel for the furnace indispensable to his experimentations. So he took the furniture out of his pitiful home, broke it up and used it to fire his furnace. It was as a result of this final sacrifice of nearly everything that he possessed on the altar of his beloved cause, that the secret he had striven so painfully to unlock was finally revealed to him.

Success has a basically tender heart. She cannot commonly hide herself forever from anyone who seeks her in a spirit of undying fidelity.

Yes, it is undoubtedly true that so far as practical usage goes, we can say with reasonable assurance that there's a way, provided that there's a will that does not falter until it has found the way. Many a man and many a woman setting out for a goal has become discouraged when the goal was just around the corner. Many a person striving for an objective has given up when success, unknown to him, was almost within his grasp.

We can never tell how near we are to finding the way. It may come with miraculous suddenness through what seems to be an impenetrable, insurmountable obstruction. Fate can commonly be depended upon to be kindly and faithful to him who is faithful to his cause, if his cause be right.

THE WIDE WIDE WORLD

Do not be distressed overmuch by news of evil. This is a wide, wide world. It contains much that is bad, but more that is good. Righteousness is slowly, but surely, triumphing over sin.

If you do not believe that, or merely have not realized it, turn for a moment to contemplation of happier things. Turn your tired eyes from the day's record of evil to the day's golden roll of honor. There is more of good news than of bad news today, every day. There is more to see on the sunny side, and it is more worth seeing.

There are only two reasons for gazing at ugly things; either that we may more fully know evil when we meet, even in gilded robes; or that we may grapple with it and blot it out.

Broad highroads of honor lead to every worthy goal of life. The mud roads are in the lowlands, leading only to dissolution and corruption. If we travel the mud road it is at our own volition.

Sin is not the harvest of life. It is the chaff threshed from the wholesome grain and will be swept from the threshing floor. Why look upon the chaff when the grain is there?

If some days the volume of chaff seems greater than others, know that the threshing has been more thorough.

More Truth Than Poetry

By JAMES A. MONTAGUE

THE VERNAL TRAGEDY

School ain't so bad when winter's here—
Nor not so good—but still
The snow is over all the ice
Below the pasture gate,
An' only maybe once or twice
You git a chanst to skate.

But when the birds are on the wing,
An' when the grass gets green,
And when a feller wants to sing—
Well, you know what I mean—
When pickerel is to be caught
In all the yaller brooks,
Whoever hankers to be taught
The stuff that's in the books?

The schoolhouse then's just like a jail—
You can't get satisfied;
You'd ruther it would snow or hail
Than be so nice outside.
Acrost the meadows far away
You hear the old crows caw—
To keep a feller in all day
Should be against some law.

If schools build up a feller's brains,
As teachers say they do,
Why can't they learn us when it rains,
Not when the skies is blue?
I think that iggorance is bliss
When all is said an' done,
For when you go to school you miss
An awful lot of fun.

World Peace, Our Problem

By BRUCE CATTON

Sometime in the not-distant future the American people are going to have to make up their minds just how far they care to go in helping to maintain the peace of Europe.

That peace is a very unstable thing. It has been, ever since the war. It was unstable for decades before the war. There is nothing in sight right now to indicate that it is going to be any more stable in the immediate future.

This is because there has not, for many decades, been a situation in Europe which was not deeply displeasing to certain important minorities. Before 1914, France wanted to regain her lost provinces, Polish patriots dreamed of independence, restless groups in the Hapsburg empire schemed for separation; since the war the central powers, particularly Germany, have felt the Versailles treaty as an irksome restriction which must some day be ended.

Hence every nation must be prepared, ultimately, to appeal to force. As a result, disarmament schemes usually come to grief. Those nations interested in maintaining existing frontiers and treaties will not give up their miltary predominance unless they are assured that such countries as England and America will join them in preventing the discontented minorities from kicking over the traces.

All of which leads up to the question, How far are we prepared to go in underwriting the status quo overseas?

If we continue to stand aloof the disarmament program must collapse. A new war will become more than likely, and we have no assurance whatever that we shall be any more able to keep out of it than we were able to keep out of the last one.

On the other hand, if we line up firmly for existing treaties we commit ourselves deeply in quarrels that are not of our making and we lend our support to a situation which many of us feel contains great injustices.

It won't be an easy decision. But it is hard to see how we can avoid making it, one way or the other. We are rapidly approaching a great fork in the road, and there is no middle course. Before long we must make one of the most important choices in our history.

It has always seemed to me that there is something incongruous, not to say inconsistent, in going to war to preserve the peace.—Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas.

Howe About Everything

By E. W. HOWE

Although it is said abroad Americans are the greatest idlers in the world, it has finally been agreed among ourselves we have been working too long hours, and that in future we must play more.

And now the question comes up for discussion: What shall we do with our additional idle time? How find new enjoyments in our shiftlessness?

Why not try some new amusements? Why not rub up our knowledge of finance, and less frequently become the victims of sharpers? Why not athletic clubs to chase outlaws, now a real menace to our homes? And speaking of homes again, why not beautify them more, and add comforts heretofore lacking? Why not clubs of citizens to improve our public affairs? Half of us are dumb as to the real value of print: why not read more, and with greater discretion? Why not pay more attention to the joys and benefits of good health? Most of us gobble our food like pigs, and, lacking their digestion and shorter years have become so quarrelsome, inefficient and dumpy that one-quarter of the population is now howling for public relief, with most of the rest of us looking on shamelessly, and thinking it may be a good idea for everybody.

Silerius said in his Memoirs: "In all my life I have known but one really intelligent and fair woman." . . . (As every other man will probably say he has known at least one such woman, there must be a good many of them.)

Do races inevitably run out? Is it hopeless to struggle for their improvement and continuance?

It seems to me I am able to note a sad deterioration since the Civil war. Compare congress now with congress of seventy-five years ago, and how shabbily 1933 comes off! There isn't a man of ability in the present congress (or cabinet, or supreme court) to compare with dozens who might be named within ten years of 1858.

The deterioration of races is intellectual. We are healthier now than ever before; we have improved our lamps and our buggies, but have shamefully neglected our minds.

Compare Daniel Webster with Huey Long!

It may well occur to every man that he is doing well enough physically, but that his mind is failing.

Thousands have known the true philosophy of life. And been so whipped by mob men that now no one dares be sensible. . . . All men are more intelligent than their actions indicate. Foolish tradition, and foolish, continuous quarreling about it, have made fools of us all.

Considering the rough manner in which all men are forever trying to muss up all women, some women look very well.

It is well known that most men of discernment have poor opinion of the people en masse, because of their low average in intelligence, morals, politeness and fairness; because of their insistence on ruining every civilization the better men have attempted.

Bernard Shaw has this opinion of mankind, and expresses it publicly, instead of privately, as most other men do. For this he is cordially hated, although everybody knows his opinions of humanity are sound; at least, sounder than the opinions of other writing men.

My relations with Bernard Shaw are excellent. I do not know him, or wish to know him, and never write him. I hear he is polite enough to those who have good reason to call on or write him.

During a recent journey at sea Shaw went on deck early one morning, and found an old man leaning indifferently over the rail.

"How does it come," Shaw asked, "that you are the only man on the ship who has not annoyed me?"

"Because I do not want to know you, or talk to you," the man answered.

"Ever hear of me?" Shaw asked again.

"I know all about you," the man replied. "I have read nearly everything said about you, or you have written. You are one of my heroes. I admire you because of your impudence in saying what you think of everybody and everything. I think the same things and am afraid to say them. You save me the trouble. I beg you to proceed with your walk."

It is often said the English have no sense of humor. . . . An Englishman relates that a child on first seeing a rainbow, asked: "What is it? Advertising?" . . . Another Englishman is reported as saying: "The only time a horse scares nowadays is when he sees another horse." . . . As a contrast I quote two of the most popular American funny men: Eddie Cantor: "He hasn't an enemy in the world, but all his friends hate him." Ed Wynn: "A bachelor is a man who never made the same mistake once." . . . Of course all this is piffle, but perhaps it is less tiresome than the serious portions of the newspapers.

The huge racing automobile, often costing fifteen thousand dollars, and which occasionally breaks a speed record or turns over on its driver, is not much of an automobile; the really useful and creditable machine is that in the middle class, which delivers useful service to millions at reasonable cost.

A friend of mine, a very old man, died lately. . . . I was able to think this of him: He had already done well; he had made an unusual record years before he died. It was a pleasure to so write his children.

One of the most general complaints of the human race is that there are too many of us;

Some say wars are thus justifiable (in spite of the great expense and annoyance of pensions);

Still, it must be admitted that almost everyone somewhat realizes the gravity of the situation, and helps in killing himself off; I know of no one who does not shorten his life a little by too much devotion to some of the various follies offering.

By Paul Harrison

NEW YORK.—Ever since there was a metropolitan New York, writers have made capital of the city's heedless heartlessness. O. Henry understood the loneliness that is furnished with dingy hallrooms. He knew the social desolation of crowded streets.

But few fictioneers have mentioned the city's lonely jobs. Such as the thousands of workers in the gloomy little change booths in the subways, or motormen in the cabs of trains, or patrolmen in the deserted financial district at night, pacing their beats along the silent, lowering canyons.

Loneliest Copper

Herbert McKinnon for 16 years has had the loneliest job in New York. At least, that's the way McKinnon himself feels about it.

The ruddy, taciturn Scot is, of all things, a traffic cop. Yet, for nine hours each day from the time he pulls on his white gloves in the morning to the time when he steps down from his little platform, he doesn't see a single pedestrian. His post is on the vehicular viaduct that carries Park avenue around the Grand Central building, and more than 30,000 cars speed past him every day.

McKinnon says it took him five years just to get used to the job, and even now he still gets the feeling sometimes that he's the only man in the world not in an automobile. And he never gets a chance to talk to a driver; although he knows hundreds of chauffeurs by sight, and the men they drive for, and all the city officials. They wave as they pass, and are gone. The policeman misses ex-Mayor Jimmy Walker, who always used to lean out and yell "Hi, Mac."

The only excitement he has had in 16 years was in 1928 when a metal star fell off the clock on the southern facade of the building and dented the concrete right beside him.

People riding by have noticed and felt sorry for McKinnon, and at Christmas time lots of big cars slow up beside him to deliver gifts of cigars and socks and the like. He only has a chance, though, to yell a hurried thanks.

McKinnon's wife has been asking him to buy a car, but he is adamant on that score. Says he wouldn't have one as a gift.

Bridging the Years

Another lonely job is the one Sven Peterson has. He's the official painter of Brooklyn bridge, and has been for 30 years. Swinging from his bos'n's chair 133 feet above the East river, or clamboring surefootedly up the maze of cables, he slaps on fresh pigment and inches slowly along on a task that's never done. For when he gets to one end of the 6,000-foot bridge it's time to start all over again at the other.

The famous structure, one of the wonders of the engineering world, is spick and span now, ready for a semi-centennial celebration of its opening on May 24, 1883. Peterson is a little sad about the way traffic is decreasing, what with the subways and other bridges that have been built since. He says only 9,000,000 vehicles passed over it last year. Lonely fellow that he is, though, swinging from his eerie perches, a few million people, more or less make little difference.

NEGRO ATTACKER WIDELY HUNTED

Fruit Buyer Is Hacked And Stabbed by Black He Gave Ride

BATON ROUGE, La., June 3.—(AP)——A negro hunted by authorities of three parishes as the assailant who hacked and stabbed Harry Zelko, 65, Columbus, Ohio, fruit buyer, and left him for dead by a roadside, was tonight believed to have found effective concealment in a wooded area bordering the Atchafalaya flood basin.

Zelko, found by passing motorists beside a highway near Livonia, 20 miles west of here, gashed deeply about the head and body, was conceded only slight chance for recovery, while sheriffs of Pointe Coupee, and East and West Baton Rouge parishes cooperated in search for a negro he told, between lapses of consciousness, of having picked up while driving from Baton Rouge toward Opelousas.

Deputy Sheriff Ed Whitney of East Baton Rouge parish learned from attendants of a Baton Rouge Mississippi river ferry that Zelko crossed with a negro some time before the attack.

The sheriff's office of Pointe Coupee parish, in which the attack occurred, expressed belief that the negro after stabbing the fruit buyer, jumped out of the car and made his way into adjoining woods.

A roll of $195 strapped to Zelko's leg led to belief that robbery motive induced the attack. The fruit buyer said he travelled between here and the Rio Grande valley.

Sandman's Pharmacy Is Now In New Location

Sandman's Pharmacy, Inc., has just secured a downtown location at 217 DeSiard street where it is in a position to serve the public to the best of advantage. For 15 years this firm was located at 513 Ouachita avenue.

That the need was apparent for a more centrally located place of business was the word of I. P. Sandman, vice-president and manager, Saturday, and for this reason the new store located in the heart of the city was secured and has just been opened for business.

Mr. Sandman has been in this city for 15 years, operating continuously the business on Ouachita avenue. He is assisted in his new establishment by J. J. Cerniglia, graduate of Tulane, class of 1928, and who has had five years of pharmacy experience in Monroe. Mr. Cerniglia is to be in charge of the prescription department.

Prices are to be cut rate and this rule will apply to all prescriptions.

Franklin Canning Kitchen Is Opened at Winnsboro

WINNSBORO, June 3.—(Special)—The Franklin parish community canning kitchen was opened June 1 in the E. D. Walter building in the east end of Winnsboro. This is the first time that such an institution has been developed locally. Its purpose is to aid those interested in home canning to preserve their products at no cost. The kitchen, which was made possible by the efforts of Miss Maybelle Hill, who was aided by the home demonstration council and business men of Winnsboro, will be open for use of white people on Tuesday and Thursday of each week and to negroes on Saturdays. Gas, water, pressure cookers and sealers are all provided in the kitchen. Miss Hill is home demonstration agent of Franklin parish.

MRS. ROOSEVELT REVISES ROUTE

Grand Canyon to Be Eliminated From Cross Country Air Trip

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today announced a revised route for her western air trip which will take her through Fort Worth and Dallas, Texas, and Tucson, Arizona, eliminating the Grand Canyon.

Mrs. Roosevelt plans to leave the White House tomorrow morning to visit her son, Elliott, in California.

She explained at a press conference that her friend, Miss Nancy Cook, to whom she planned to show the Grand Canyon, would be unable to make the trip because of illness of her father. The change of plans followed.

Under the revised plan she will leave Washington by air at 9 a.m. with the idea of reaching her friend, Mrs. Isabella Greenway, in Tucson Monday at 4:15 p.m.

She then experts to fly to Los Angeles, arriving there at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday. She will begin the return trip to Washington at 7 a.m. Thursday.

That will give her just two nights and one day in Los Angeles.

Elliott may meet her at Tucson but that part of the plan still remains indefinite.

The only other visiting she may do is a possible early breakfast with relatives in Dallas. They are Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Waterbury, Jr., of Tyler, Texas, whom she has invited to come to Dallas to see her at 7:10 a.m. Monday morning.

Mrs. Roosevelt emphasized that she was accepting no public engagements whatever on the trip. She will return to New York on Friday to spend the week-end with her aunt, Mrs. Henry Parrish, of Lewellyn Park, East Orange, New Jersey.

SAILOR'S LUCK

"SAILOR'S LUCK"

Here are the stars that made you laugh with them, cry with them, and love them, when you saw them in "Bad Girl." "Sailor's Luck," the latest co-starring feature of James Dunn and Sally Eilers, is at the Capitol theater today and Monday. It is a hilarious tale of a love-sick sailor and a world-wise girl with a generous sprinkling of comedy, real romance, and suspense.

TODAY'S AMUSEMENTS

AT THE PARAMOUNT.—Miriam Hopkins is flourishing her native accent again, for she's cast as a southern girl in "The Story of Temple Drake," screen adaptation of a novel by William Faulkner, which is at the Paramount theater for the last times Sunday. But it has been a long time since it has had any actual use.

Miss Hopkins was born in Savannah, Ga., and grew up there, talking in "you-all" and "reckon-so" terms. But when she was 16 she was sent north to go to school. She lost her accent immediately. The reason? Embarrassment.

For it seems that one day her teacher called upon her to discuss current events.

"Ah reckon you-all 'ave huhd about the coal strike—" she started. It was as far as she got. The class screamed with laughter. From that day on, the accent was well under control.

It shines in all its glory, however, in "The Story of Temple Drake," in which she is cast as a girl who suffers under an inherited streak of wildness. She turns down the offer of marriage from a lawyer she loves, because she fears she'll ruin his life, and drives off with a drunken college boy in search of more liquor. Their ride ends in a crash, from which they emerge to find themselves virtual prisoners of Jack LaRue, a big-city gangster, who sends the boy back to town, kills the only man who tries to protect the girl, and drags her off with him.

The lawyer in love with her, assigned to defend a man falsely accused of the murder, finds the two together in the course of his search for evidence. The events that follow bring the film to a startling climax.

AT THE CAPITOL.—Following their rise to popularity as a starring team in such successes as "Bad Girl," "Over the Hill" and "Dance Team," James Dunn and Sally Eilers have been cast together again in "Sailor's Luck," the new Fox film opening an engagement of two days at the Capitol theater Sunday.

The picture, directed by Raoul Walsh, tells the story of a sailor with the Atlantic Fleet who becomes entangled in a love affair with a girl that's different. The two get along famously until Dunn, thinking she has been untrue to him, quarrels with her and sails away with the fleet. He later learns that it was all a mistake, and he returns to patch things up, only to learn that she is not so willing to come back.

Dunn's love for Sally Eilers carries him through every imaginable sort of excitement, through comedy scenes in a public swimming pool over to a gang-fight on the street and a grand finale in a dance marathon, with the navy, as usual, winning the honors.

Much of the comedy is supplied by Sammy Cohen, dialect comedian who is cast as Jimmy's pal "Barnacle Benney."

Tallulah Youth To Edit University's Newspaper

BATON ROUGE, La., June 3.—(AP)—R. H. Wiggins of Tallulah will be 1933-34 editor and manager of "The Reveille," Louisiana State university student weekly, and Kathryn Kaufman of Shreveport, will head the publication staff, M. G. Osborn, journalism school director and faculty student publications committee chairman, today announced.

Other staff members named were Jack E. Helms, Gulfport, Miss.; Beatrice Lopoo, Natchez, Miss.; Grace Williamson, New Orleans; Camille Abraham, Baton Rouge, and J. H. Cutrer, Kentwood.

Hotel Frances Engages Bob Foster's Orchestra

The 10-piece orchestra of Bob Foster has been engaged to entertain at Hotel Frances, giving concerts nightly from 6:30 to 8 p. m. in the lobby and also playing for the night club on the roof.

This orchestra is regarded as one of the best to be found anywhere. It played for a year and a half at the Bellvedere night club at Memphis, Tenn., coming to this city direct from there. Previous to that time, the same musical aggregation played at Chinaland, one of the night clubs of New York City.

Work Is Progressing On Legion Community Center

WINNSBORO, June 3.—(Special)—Fully 25 laborers were at work today on the American Legion community center being constructed on the Legion lot on the main street of the town. Those legionnaires who are not assisting are hiring men to work so many days each week for them. The result is the building is rapidly assuming shape. When completed the center will house a large auditorium with stage facilities, a public library, a club room for men and one for women, kitchenette and bath facilities and other features. The cost of the structure is said to be around $6,000. Completion is to be accomplished some time in July.

PRINCE WILHELM WEDS COMMONER

Marriage May Bring End To Hohenzollern Aspirations To Throne

BONN, Germany, June 3.—(AP)—Hallowed Hohenzolleran tradition, a rigid "house law" since the 15th century, was broken today by the marriage of former Prince Wilhelm of Prussia to Dorothea von Salviati, a vivacious 25-year-old girl of "unequal" birth.

The prince, who will be 27 July 4, once was in line for the German throne, but by the marriage he may forfeit all his chances if the dynasty should return to power.

Their engagement was received with "painful surprise' in monarchist circles, who knew the wedding might be the end of Hohenzollern aspirations to the throne, for the continuity of the house depends upon "legitimacy," a term with many "implications."

Since the announcement of the engagement April 20, the royal house has maintained the strictest silence on whether any of its members would attend the ceremony.

The term "legitimacy" to monarchists means, for one thing, implicit obedience to the chief or senior of the dynasty, in this case the former kaiser. Young Wilhelm asked neither his grandfather nor his parents what they thought of the step.

He just went ahead and announced the betrothal.

HUGE OVERDRAFTS SHOW STATE CRISIS

aggravated. Although State Treasurer J. S. Cave has not followed in the footsteps of his predecessor, who issued periodical detailed reports showing the exact condition of the state's fisc, it is said that the overdraft in the general fund is now something like $3,500,000 and still going strong.

Books of the Louisiana state auditor and treasurer show that for the calendar year 1932 receipts from all sources, including $22,083,334 for highway bonds, totaled $60,370,111.57. The same authority reveals that for the same period expenditures were $62,846,738.30. During 1932, therefore, the state paid out $2,476,626.73 more than it received.

On January 1, 1932, the overdraft in the general fund, which pays the general expenses of state government, including support of departments, institutions and the judiciary, was $1,864,039.77. On January 1 of the present year it was $2,471,149.23, an increase of $607,109.56.

The general overdraft of the state, embracing all funds, increased from $1,864,039.77 on January 1, 1932, to $2,757,080.85 on January 1, 1933. In the 1933 overdraft were included the following items:

General Fund	$2,452,429.89
Bond and Interest Tax Fund	93,947.10
State Banking Fund	18,392.33
Confederate Veterans Fund	190,782.27
Lafourche Levee Board	1,529.26
Total	$2,757,080.85

The already heavy overdraft in the general fund is mounting with a persistence and a constancy which ought to greatly alarm careful fiscal directors. That fund is like a political Oliver Twist, constantly calling for more, more, more. Just how long or to what extent the state treasury can bear the strain is a matter for speculation and conjecture. The patronage mills continue to grind; and, somehow, the grain must be provided.

In balancing its budget the federal government has employed two methods—retrenchment and special taxation. In reducing or wiping out the overdraft in the general fund, the Long-Allen regime at Baton Rouge has given no thought to retrenchment. But it is semi-officially reported at Red Stick that, suddenly impressed with the need for taking the general fund out of the red without draining other state resources, and in order to avoid financial collapse, the state administration has decided to devote all of the avails of the special taxes imposed by law, and not specifically dedicated, to this purpose.

There is, however, a large "if" attached to this decision.

If the courts permit!

It is an open secret that just as soon as the corporation tax becomes effective, in August next, one of the largest manufacturing concerns in the state will contest the right of the legislature to constitutionally authorize the supervisor of public accounts or secretary of state to collect taxes. To the mind of the average layman the constitution would seem to be plain on the subject.

Section 65, of article 7, of the constitution of 1921 reads. "There shall be a sheriff elected by the qualified voters of each parish in the state, except in the parish of Orleans, who shall be elected at the general state election and hold office for four years. The sheriff shall be ex-officio collector of state, parish and all other taxes, except municipal taxes, which, however, under legislative authority he may also collect."

The constitution makes an exception in the case of gasoline and kerosene taxes—no other. Laws passed in 1932 authorized the secretary of state to collect corporation and insurance premium taxes and the supervisor of public accounts to collect tobacco, soft drinks, dairy products and electric power taxes. The legislature in 1928 authorized the supervisor to collect malt and carbon taxes. In 1932 the carbon tax law was repealed.

Before Governor Huey P. Long took office, in 1926, the legislature enacted a tobacco tax bill and authorized the supervisor of public accounts to collect the tax. W. N. McFarland was at that time supervisor. In view of the report of an early attack on the constitutionality of the corporation tax measure, which would indirectly affect all other special tax laws, Mr. McFarland, who is a citizen of Baton Rouge, was asked about the tobacco tax law repealed in 1928.

"The truth is," he said, "I was always uncertain about the constitutional authority of the supervisor to collect this tax. But the tax was not collected directly. It was collected through the sale of stamps. Therefore, I went ahead and collected it and the constitutional provision declaring sheriffs to be collectors of state, parish and all other taxes except municipal taxes, was never urged against my right to act."

However, corporation, insurance premium, soft drinks, dairy products and electric power taxes are directly collected; and if the avails of these levies constitute the sole hope of the Long-Allen administration for wiping out the overdraft in the general fund, the courts will probably determine whether that overdraft will disappear or remain.

Part of the tobacco tax, $1,500,000 per year, has been dedicated to the public schools and by constitutional amendment all of the insurance premium tax is to go to the Louisiana State university. But the other special taxes are not dedicated.

By far the largest part of the general fund overdraft went to feed the patronage mill at Baton Rouge. No matter what the condition of the state treasury, the departments and commissions were always able to draw their appropriations in full. Only the insitutions suffered from depleted revenues. A statement that will permit of no denial is that while the coffers of the supervisor of public accounts were fairly gorged with tax dollars drawn from the state or withheld from tax collections, that official sent out auditors to show the institution heads, those of the state's charity hospitals among them, how to get along on reduced incomes.

So great was the desire of the administration to get money from the general fund for increased appropriations for such departments as the secretary of state, supervisor of public accounts, tax commission, board of health and others that it literally scraped the bottom of the barrel. Prior to 1932, appropriations made for the state land office came out of the general fund. Last year the appropriations for this department, aggregating $27,600, were charged to the general engineer fund. The land office, of course, has nothing to do with levee construction or flood protection.

The sum of $7,800 appropriated annually for the state board of pensions was charged, prior to 1932, to the general fund. This was the state's invariable practice in order that the old veterans might get every dollar of the money collected for confederate pensions. In 1932, this sum was charged to the pension fund.

So, the administration got $35,450, by taking it from the land office and the old veterans, to provide new jobs for the faithful. The general fund was stretched to the utmost limits to serve political ends and greatly contracted to the detriment of those beneficiaries of the state who were helpless.

In the next article, we will show how the Confederate veterans and widows of the state, with dwindling political influence, were deluded with false promises of proper support under a scheme of finance which could not possibly realize what was pledged for it. In this article we will show that over fifty per cent of the revenues for Confederate pensions this year must go to pay bonds and interest and the entire pension income for the year had already been eaten up, with seven months of 1933 yet to come.

MRS. ROOSEVELT REVISES ROUTE

Grand Canyon to Be Eliminated From Cross Country Air Trip

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today announced a revised route for her western air trip which will take her through Fort Worth and Dallas, Texas, and Tucson, Arizona, eliminating the Grand Canyon.

Mrs. Roosevelt plans to leave the White House tomorrow morning to visit her son, Elliott, in California.

She explained at a press conference that her friend, Miss Nancy Cook, to whom she planned to show the Grand Canyon, would be unable to make the trip because of illness of her father. The change of plans followed.

Under the revised plan she will leave Washington by air at 9 a.m. with the idea of reaching her friend, Mrs. Isabella Greenway, in Tucson Monday at 4:15 p.m.

She then experts to fly to Los Angeles, arriving there at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday. She will begin the return trip to Washington at 7 a.m. Thursday.

That will give her just two nights and one day in Los Angeles.

Elliott may meet her at Tucson but that part of the plan still remains indefinite.

The only other visiting she may do is a possible early breakfast with relatives in Dallas. They are Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Waterbury, Jr., of Tyler, Texas, whom she has invited to come to Dallas to see her at 7:10 a.m. Monday morning.

Mrs. Roosevelt emphasized that she was accepting no public engagements whatever on the trip. She will return to New York on Friday to spend the week-end with her aunt, Mrs. Henry Parrish, of Lewellyn Park, East Orange, New Jersey.

"SAILOR'S LUCK"

Here are the stars that made you laugh with them, cry with them, and love them, when you saw them in "Bad Girl." "Sailor's Luck," the latest co-starring feature of James Dunn and Sally Eilers, is at the Capitol theater today and Monday. It is a hilarious tale of a love-sick sailor and a world-wise girl with a generous sprinkling of comedy, real romance, and suspense.

TODAY'S AMUSEMENTS

AT THE PARAMOUNT.—Miriam Hopkins is flourishing her native accent again, for she's cast as a southern girl in "The Story of Temple Drake," screen adaptation of a novel by William Faulkner, which is at the Paramount theater for the last times Sunday. But it has been a long time since it has had any actual use.

Miss Hopkins was born in Savannah, Ga., and grew up there, talking in "you-all" and "reckon-so" terms. But when she was 16 she was sent north to go to school. She lost her accent immediately. The reason? Embarrassment.

For it seems that one day her teacher called upon her to discuss current events.

"Ah reckon you-all 'ave huhd about the coal strike—" she started. It was as far as she got. The class screamed with laughter. From that day on. the accent was well under control.

It shines in all its glory, however, in "The Story of Temple Drake," in which she is cast as a girl who suffers under an inherited streak of wildness. She turns down the offer of marriage from a lawyer she loves, because she fears she'll ruin his life, and drives off with a drunken college boy in search of more liquor. Their ride ends in a crash. from which they emerge to find themselves virtual prisoners of Jack LaRue, a big-city gangster, who sends the boy back to town, kills the only man who tries to protect the girl, and drags her off with him.

The lawyer in love with her, assigned to defend a man falsely accused of the murder, finds the two together in the course of his search for evidence. The events that follow bring the film to a startling climax.

AT THE CAPITOL.—Following their rise to popularity as a starring team in such successes as "Bad Girl," "Over the Hill" and "Dance Team," James Dunn and Sally Eilers have been cast together again in "Sailor's Luck," the new Fox film opening an engagement of two days at the Capitol theater Sunday.

The picture, directed by Raoul Walsh, tells the story of a sailor with the Atlantic Fleet who becomes entangled in a love affair with a girl that's different. The two get along famously until Dunn, thinking she has been untrue to him, quarrels with her and sails away with the fleet. He later learns that it was all a mistake, and he returns to patch things up, only to learn that she is not so willing to come back.

Dunn's love for Sally Eilers carries him through every imaginable sort of excitement, through comedy scenes in a public swimming pool over to a gang-fight on the street and a grand finale in a dance marathon, with the navy, as usual, winning the honors.

Much of the comedy is supplied by Sammy Cohen. dialect comedian who is cast as Jimmy's pal "Barnacle Benney."

PLENTY OF ICE CUBES

When extra cubes are needed, freezing is speeded up by simply turning the cold control.

BE HARD to please when you buy an automatic refrigerator. EXPECT MORE. Demand more. You'll get it, for your search will lead you inevitably to the New Air-Cooled Electrolux!

The New Air-Cooled Electrolux uses no water. It has no moving parts. A tiny gas flame circulates the refrigerant, which ordinary air cools. The refrigerant is hermetically sealed in rigid steel and needs no renewal. The flame is completely protected by an automatic shut-off and consumes even less gas than formerly. It is this unmatched simplicity of the New Air-Cooled Electrolux that accounts for its even lower operating costs—its permanent and absolute silence.

But, expect more with the New Air-Cooled Electrolux! Expect extra food space, porcelain interiors, non-stop defrosting, plenty of ice cubes—as well as such exclusive features as two-temperature chilling unit which insures constant, uniform cold, adjustable split shelves, automatic trigger release on ice trays. When you come to our showrooms, expect to find in the New Air-Cooled Electrolux the finest refrigerator money can buy. Yet prices are lower than ever. Terms are liberal. Don't wait. Come in today.

Miss Jane Dawkins, lovely young daughter of Judge and Mrs. Benjamin Dawkins, and popular member of the younger set, who graduated with honors from the Neville high school, at the age of 16. (Left).

Miss Babs Gottlieb, charming member of the senior class of the Neville high school, who, due to her untiring efforts, was responsible for the great financial success of this year's annual, The Monroyan. Miss Gottlieb, (Center).

Beautiful young bride, Mrs. Herman J. Long, who before her marriage on the first of June was Miss Katheryn Hilburn. Dr. and Mrs. Long left immediately following the ceremony for Florida, where they will spend their honeymoon, and later will be at home to their friends in Lafayette, La., where Dr. Long is a prominent young dentist. —Portraits by Griffin Studios

JUNE! The month of perfect days . . . of beautiful brides walking down candle-lit aisles . . . of sweet girl graduates standing where "brook and river meet" . . . of college students flocking home . . . vacation days, when every woman has a vast panorama in her mind filled with romance and adventure in some remote spot. . . Somehow those sweet young things who clasped their diplomas to their organdy covered breasts, seemed rather pathetic this year . . . the world never offered a harder challenge to graduating classes than this year . . . no jobs and no family to support them . . . the present day really calls for courageous pioneers . . . Let us all resolve to give these young people the kind of help they need—sympathy and understanding. . . . Let us remember that only those have achieved success who have laughed often, loved much; who have gained the respect of intelligent men and the love of children; who have filled their niche and accomplished their task; who left the world better than they found it; who looked for the best in others and gave the best they had. . . . Speaking of young graduates, we know of a beautiful girl, Dorothy Lewman, who, at the age of sixteen, is finishing Junior college . . . yes, sir, she will be handed her diploma from the Ouachita Junior college tomorrow morning . . . she has the distinction also of being an honor student—one of the really nicest young things we know of. . . . How could it be otherwise with such a mother—Mrs. W. T. Lewman—who is a source of inspiration not only to her family but to her friends as well. . . .

This also is the season when homes are infested with moths. . . . It is a curious thing about moths . . . although man has tamed elephants, harnessed the Niagara, planted flags at both poles and tunneled mountains, yet if he has an extra pair of trousers, he pays tribute to an insect which in size and sinew is to him as he to Leviathan. . . . Of course you heard about the young man who adorned himself in a nice brown flannel jacket and white flannel trousers, left over from last year, and hied himself to one of our night clubs, only to suffer great chagrin and mortification when his trousers literally fell to pieces . . . needless to say he has risen in wrath against the moth. . . .

Layton Lamkin in white mousseline de soie, delivering the D. A. R. medal at the Neville high school commencement night was something to remember . . . she looked lovely and spoke most convincingly. . . . It really is surprising what these young moderns can do when the occasion demands . . . And, by the way, that charming little Marshall Russell was the recipient of the medal . . . she ranked highest and best in American history. . . . Louise Graves is a striking looking figure these days in cool, white linens with a Gibson girl sailor placed jauntily on her sleek black hair. . . . Have you been seized with the prevailing malady "Poolitis?" . . .

It is a disease that keeps you working over your garden pool and keeps you so enthralled that you count the time lost spent away from your garden. . . In fact, it takes nothing short of a tractor to pull you away from your pool. . . . You must admit that there is a certain fascination about the dripping water . . . a certain something that lulls and rests and makes you content to stay at home. . . . John and Lottie Breard completed their pool in time for Charlotte's arrival by plane from Minneapolis Friday. . . . She certainly looks radianty happy and we think coming back to Louisiana to live has something to do with it. . . . Fashion's contribution to the great national movement, reforestation, is new designs in silk prints. . . . One of the most beautiful, a brown background with white leaves called "silver birches in the spring," was worn by a good looking, tall brunette girl, on DeSiard street the other day. . . . Betty Isaacman is home from New York, looking better than ever after a six weeks' visit . . . she will assist Louise Seymour in entertaining with a buffet supper for Louise Theus, Thursday night. . . . Lots of things have been arranged for Louise with Frank included in the gay little breakfast party in the gardens of the Speed home the morning of their wedding day. . . Louise will be all wrapped up in ivory satin and tulle when she takes Frank to be her lawful wedded husband. . . . Her wedding dress is traditional, they tell us, with simplicity the keynote. . . .

We thought when we went to see that much discussed picture, "The Story of Temple Drake," at the Paramount last night, that it would be very much like investigating a sewer, but the picture really is almost sublime in comparison with the novel "Sanctuary" from which it is taken. . . . Miriam Hopkins does the finest acting of her career in this picture. . . . We must admit that it is one of the most gripping dramas we have seen in many a day. . . . Oliver Twist did not come up to our expectations. . . . It was, without a doubt, one of the drabest and most uninteresting pictures seen at the Paramount this season. . . . Poor little Dickey Moore was pitifully cast. . . . Armandine Renaud will wear blue gauze draperies when she appears in her annual dance recital in interpretative number entitled "Misty Morn" . . . Regina Moffett is using a Chinese theme for the background for her recital on the thirteenth. . . . Regina is planning a wonderful care-free summer, motoring with her sister, Mary Moffett, to Chicago for the World's fair, and a few dance lessons and then to New York for more dance lessons and lots of fun thrown in for good measure. . . . We heard that Hazel Wakefield, Bernice Nichols and Joel Nichols will also breeze along the highway next month with Chicago their destination. . . . Ida Kaplan and Dora Anish are planning to attend the national convention of Business and Professional Women in Chicago next month and a few weeks' visit in Detroit, Michigan. . . . Michigan has claimed Mrs. William Terzia and family of Bastrop. . . . Their life this summer has been cast along enviable lines . . . a cottage on Crystal lake where the proverbal blankets are necessary at night and the days are filled with golden sunshine and cool breezes. . . . Soon the W. F. Cummings will hie themselves to the sylvan spot in Wisconsin where they while away the summer days in their cottage by the side of Lake Chetek. . . . June, and the reunion of college room-mates reminds us of a certain hostess who said: "Tomorrow she will be my guest—I must put forth the foot that's best . . . Get out the linens I have stored, and never act the least bit bored . . . No matter what—I must be gay, stay up until the break of day . . . Against my will with nonchalance, I'll drag her to a hot-cha dance . . . (and though it kills me, she will see me peppy as I used to be!)" . . . . The guest "Now after ten long years we'll meet . . . oh, drat these tell-tale old crow's feet! A facial and a henna pack can not bring youth and college back. I hope she won't suggest we play a lot of tennis every day . . . or dine and dance each night 'til dawn. . . . But if she does, I'll go—and yawn. No matter what—she must not know I had more pep ten years ago!)

Members of the Square and Compass club of Alexandria motored to this city last week for an all day meeting and were the guests for luncheon at the Virginia hotel with Mr. Bradley Waelder, past grand high priest of the grand chapter Royal Arch Masons of Louisiana, host, assisted by Mr. L. N. Collier and Dr. B. M. McKoin, monarch of Teflis Grottö. Guests from Alexandria were: C. A. Hunter, president; L. W. Harris, secretary; C. O. Shaw, treasurer; Dr. Luther W. Stewart, Sam A. Oden, Guy W. Risley and C. B. Riffle. The latter is the youngest member, having joined the club on May 11, during the banquet and festival.

Musicans Give Freely of Their Talents When Asked To Contribute to Charity

With Mrs. Louis Hullum, president of Louisiana Federated Music clubs, home from the national convention in Minneapolis, Minn., reminds us of our musicians in this city who give so generously of their talents. The generosity of musicians is proverbial. Ask them to sing for charity, to play for a benefit club tea, or a concert and they always arrive smiling. Chances are they pay their own taxi fare and forget to mention it when the proceeds are counted. Take for instance Leon Hammond . . . [illegible] has been donating his services so generously for so many years, we must naturally turn to him when in need of a pianist or an accompanist. Mrs. Henry Whitfield is still another whose beautiful voice is always heard when ambitious programs are being arranged. Miss Florence Zeigler one of the most brilliant pianists in the city is one of the friendliest and one of the most sought after. She is always ready to play for sweet charity and for other worthy causes. Mrs. Ruth Rasbury has raised her beautiful coloratura soprano time and time again in the name of charity and Mr. Rufus Goza has saved many a benefit from going stale by appearing on the evening's program in a group of song numbers. Mrs. Dean Selig, unusually talented, gives generously of her voice and is generous with her violin and piano music as well. Mr. Alfred Hennen flute artist, never refuses a request to appear on a benefit program. Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Poag who have charmed audiences for many years always graciously consent to every request. Miss Emma Louise Biedenharn, who has been studying voice for the past several years in this country and abroad gives of her wonderful talent during the summer months while visiting her parents in this city, as soloist at First Church of Christ Scientist.

Plans Perfected for Garden Fete Sponsored by Members Of Monroe Garden Club

Gardens are real sanctuaries these first days of June when if ever come perfect days. Members of the Garden club, ever seeking beautiful spots to inspire them in their work and to create a greater appreciation for beauty nature, enjoyed their last meeting of this season in the fragrant gardens of Mrs. T. C. Rowland's country home. The rustic pathway. The pathway into the garden led through beds of old-fashioned flowers, shy and fragrant. The queen of all shrubs, the cape jasmine, steeped the morning air with its perfume and formed a picturesque back-ground for the guests who assembled near the lily pond and pool for their program which featured an inspirational talk by a plant expert. Mr. D'Aubert of New Orleans, a representative of the Swift company, who Mr. D'Aubert gave some valuable hints on the need for proper correct fertilizer.

Plans for the "Garden Fete" in the beautiful gardens of Mrs. Henry Bernstein's home on the fifteenth of June were completed at this time and the following chairmen appointed: Chairman of program, Mrs. Elmer Richards; chairman of grounds, Mr. G. B. Cooley; chairman of pageant, Mrs. Robert Layton; chairman of finance, Mrs. Fred Hanna; chairman of social committee, Mrs. Henry Biedenharn; hostess chairman, Mrs. George Trousdale.

Interpretative dancing, arranged by the danseuses of this city, Mrs. Harry Rice, Miss Armandine Renaud and Miss Regina Moffett, will be a distinct feature of the evening's program.

Mrs. Albert Horuff was elected secretary to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Mrs. J. Q. Graves.

It was announced at this meeting that an invitation has been extended members of the Monroe Garden club by the Tallulah club to be their guests Tuesday, June the sixth, at which time a flower tournament will be featured at the home of Mrs. R. C. Reeves.

Miss Gretchen Parker and Mr. Ernest Louis Parra Will Wed on Fifteenth of June

Of cordial and affectionate interest to friends throughout West Carroll and East Carroll parishes and the state is the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Gretchen Parker, lovely daughter of Mrs. T. A. Parker of Oak Grove, and Mr. Ernest Louis Parra of Lake Providence. The wedding will be solemnized June the fifteenth at the Oak Grove Methodist church at eight o'clock in the evening, with the Reverend Watt H. Royal performing the ceremony.

Miss Parker, a great favorite in this section of Louisiana, is a former student of Louisiana State university, where she was prominent in campus activities. She is a member of Kappa Delta sorority.

Mr. Parra has been for several years one of the most progressive young business men of Lake Providence, and is active in all civic affairs of that community.

The best wishes of a host of friends are extended to this popular couple upon announcement of their forthcoming marriage.

Charles Joseph Cascio a member of the senior class of the Ouachita Junior college, extends an invitation to his friends to be present at the commencement exercises, through this medium, Monday at 10 a. m.

Friends will be glad to know that Mrs. D. Y. Smith has recovered sufficiently from a recent illness to be removed from St. Francis sanitarium to her plantation home where she is still under the care of a trained nurse.

Mrs. William Terzia of Bastrop, accompanied by her children and her mother, Mrs. F. M. Lyman, will leave Tuesday for Crystal Lake, Michigan, where they have leased a cottage for the summer.

Luncheon at Lotus Club for Club Women

A charming social hour punctuated the day's business session for members of the W. B. A. Review number twenty-six, when they met at the Lotus club for luncheon, Friday, with Mrs. Louise Harberson and Mrs. Julia Clawson, hostesses.

The day's session at the club rooms on South Grand street brought members of the W. B. A. together to meet Mrs. Lucile M. Sharpe, managing deputy of Birmingham, Ala., who spent the day in this city and addressed them on subjects of importance.

The long luncheon table in the dining room was presided over by Mrs. Clawson who introduced the guest of honor, Mrs. Sharpe and the entertainers, Miss Regina Moffett and Miss Dorothy Lively who gave splendid exhibitions of their skill as tap dancers, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Grayson Guthrie. Mrs. H. F. Camp was also introduced and responded with a group of songs with guitar accompaniment. Mrs. Camp possesses a "crooning" voice of great appeal. Officers of the W. B. A. Reviews 26 and 11 were also introduced. Those present to enjoy the luncheon were: Mrs. Lucile Sharpe, Mrs. Fannie Couch, Mrs. Lillian Johnson, Mrs. Clara Norris, Mrs. Ruth Camp, Mrs. W. E. Young, Mrs. Lillian Kenny, Mrs. Edna Osborne, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brantley, Miss Hazel Flaherty, Miss Regina Moffett, Miss Dorothy Lively, Mrs. May Atkinson, Mrs. Maude Carr, Mrs. Bessie Sneider, Mrs. Sophie Nox, Mrs. Cora Logan, Mrs. M. Dakin, Mrs. Patrick Carr, Mrs. A. M. Hilton, Mrs. Dorothy Bradley, Mrs. Georgia Kelly, Mrs. W. Robinson, Mrs. Ruth Grider, Mrs. Cecil Rogers, Mrs. Mary Lankford, Miss Josephine Keller, Mrs. W. B. Hamilton, Mrs. Hazel Carr, Mrs. Julia Clawson, Mrs. Louise Harberson and Mr. Harry English.

Friends will regret to learn of the serious illness of Miss Margaret Flett at the Clinic where she underwent an operation the first of the week. Friends will not be admitted to her room for the time being.

Charming Program at Frances Hotel Will Feature the Final Meeting of Fine Arts Club

A growing appreciation of art and music, makes the time opportune for members of the Fine Arts club to present an ambitious program devoted exclusively to the arts, Monday afternoon at four o'clock at the Frances hotel. The public is extended a cordial invitation to be present and every one attending will be presented with an artistic program in the form of a scroll with clever drawings, reminiscent of the fine arts. The program follows:

Navassar Polka de Concert (Paris Chambers) cornet—Mr. E. L. Wright.

Dance—Miss Regina Moffett, Miss Roberta O'Donnell.

Mrs. Sholars Returns to Her Alma Mater and Lives Again The Happy Days of Girlhood

Every year Mrs. D. M. Sholars returns to her Alma Mater and for three wonderful days mingles with old classmates and lives over again those happy days when she was a student at Whitworth college, Brookhaven, Miss., in 1874.

It is a far cry from the college days of fifty-nine years ago to the present day, yet the same towering elms and oaks cast their shadows on the grass at even-tide and the same friendly stars look down on the old ivy covered buildings where Mrs. Sholars as a young girl received her education and acquired friendships which have endured through the years.

Four classmates of Mrs. Sholars' met by common accord at the college for this year's commencement exercises and occupied the dormitory, rising in the morning to the bell that summoned them to classes half a century ago.

Whitworth college is seventy-five years old and originated from the old Elizabeth academy. One of the first women in this country receiving a degree was a student at this academy. This year's commencement exercises featured a historical pageant, the story of which is woven around the college. It is interesting to note that this pageant will be presented in Chicago this summer at the Century of Progress exhibition.

Mrs. Sholars was accompanied to Brookhaven by Mrs. F. B. Hatch of Rayville who graduated from Whitworth college in 1898 and enjoyed the 1933 commencement exercises as the guest of her niece, Miss Rogers Hays, dramatic art student.

Mrs. Clyde B. Johnson and two daughters, Neva Ann and Patsy Sue of Eudora, Ark., are guests in the home of Mrs. Johnson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Johnson.

The best wishes of a host of friends are extended to this popular couple upon announcement of their forthcoming marriage.

Charles Joseph Cascio a member of the senior class of the Ouachita Junior college, extends an invitation to his friends to be present at the commencement exercises, through this medium, Monday at 10 a. m.

Friends will be glad to know that Mrs. D. Y. Smith has recovered sufficiently from a recent illness to be removed from St. Francis sanitarium to her plantation home where she is still under the care of a trained nurse.

Mrs. William Terzia of Bastrop, accompanied by her children and her mother, Mrs. F. M. Lyman, will leave Tuesday for Crystal Lake, Michigan, where they have leased a cottage for the summer.

Luncheon at Lotus Club for Club Women

A charming social hour punctuated the day's business session for members of the W. B. A. Review number twenty-six, when they met at the Lotus club for luncheon, Friday, with Mrs. Louise Harberson and Mrs. Julia Clawson, hostesses.

The day's session at the club rooms on South Grand street brought members of the W. B. A. together to meet Mrs. Lucile M. Sharpe, managing deputy of Birmingham, Ala., who spent the day in this city and addressed them on subjects of importance.

The long luncheon table in the dining room was presided over by Mrs. Clawson who introduced the guest of honor, Mrs. Sharpe and the entertainers, Miss Regina Moffett and Miss Dorothy Lively who gave splendid exhibitions of their skill as tap dancers, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Grayson Guthrie. Mrs. H. F. Camp was also introduced and responded with a group of songs with guitar accompaniment. Mrs. Camp possesses a "crooning" voice of great appeal. Officers of the W. B. A. Reviews 26 and 11 were also introduced. Those present to enjoy the luncheon were: Mrs. Lucile Sharpe, Mrs. Fannie Couch, Mrs. Lillian Johnson, Mrs. Clara Norris, Mrs. Ruth Camp, Mrs. W. E. Young, Mrs. Lillian Kenny, Mrs. Edna Osborne, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brantley, Miss Hazel Flaherty, Miss Regina Moffett, Miss Dorothy Lively, Mrs. May Atkinson, Mrs. Maude Carr, Mrs. Bessie Sneider, Mrs. Sophie Nox, Mrs. Cora Logan, Mrs. M. Dakin, Mrs. Patrick Carr, Mrs. A. M. Hilton, Mrs. Dorothy Bradley, Mrs. Georgia Kelly, Mrs. W. Robinson, Mrs. Ruth Grider, Mrs. Cecil Rogers, Mrs. Mary Lankford, Miss Josephine Keller, Mrs. W. B. Hamilton, Mrs. Hazel Carr, Mrs. Julia Clawson, Mrs. Louise Harberson and Mr. Harry English.

Friends will regret to learn of the serious illness of Miss Margaret Flett at the Clinic where she underwent an operation the first of the week. Friends will not be admitted to her room for the time being.

Charming Program at Frances Hotel Will Feature the Final Meeting of Fine Arts Club

A growing appreciation of art and music, makes the time opportune for members of the Fine Arts club to present an ambitious program devoted exclusively to the arts, Monday afternoon at four o'clock at the Frances hotel. The public is extended a cordial invitation to be present and every one attending will be presented with an artistic program in the form of a scroll with clever drawings, reminiscent of the fine arts. The program follows:

Mrs. Sholars Returns to Her Alma Mater and Lives Again The Happy Days of Girlhood

Every year Mrs. D. M. Sholars returns to her Alma Mater and for three wonderful days mingles with old classmates and lives over again those happy days when she was a student at Whitworth college, Brookhaven, Miss., in 1874.

It is a far cry from the college days of fifty-nine years ago to the present day, yet the same towering elms and oaks cast their shadows on the grass at even-tide and the same friendly stars look down on the old ivy covered buildings where Mrs. Sholars as a young girl received her education and acquired friendships which have endured through the years.

Four classmates of Mrs. Sholars' met by common accord at the college for this year's commencement exercises and occupied the dormitory, rising in the morning to the bell that summoned them to classes half a century ago.

Whitworth college is seventy-five years old and originated from the old Elizabeth academy. One of the first women in this country receiving a degree was a student at this academy. This year's commencement exercises featured a historical pageant, the story of which is woven around the college. It is interesting to note that this pageant will be presented in Chicago this summer at the Century of Progress exhibition.

Mrs. Sholars was accompanied to Brookhaven by Mrs. F. B. Hatch of Rayville who graduated from Whitworth college in 1898 and enjoyed the 1933 commencement exercises as the guest of her niece, Miss Rogers Hays, dramatic art student.

Mrs. Clyde B. Johnson and two daughters, Neva Ann and Patsy Sue of Eudora, Ark., are guests in the home of Mrs. Johnson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Johnson.

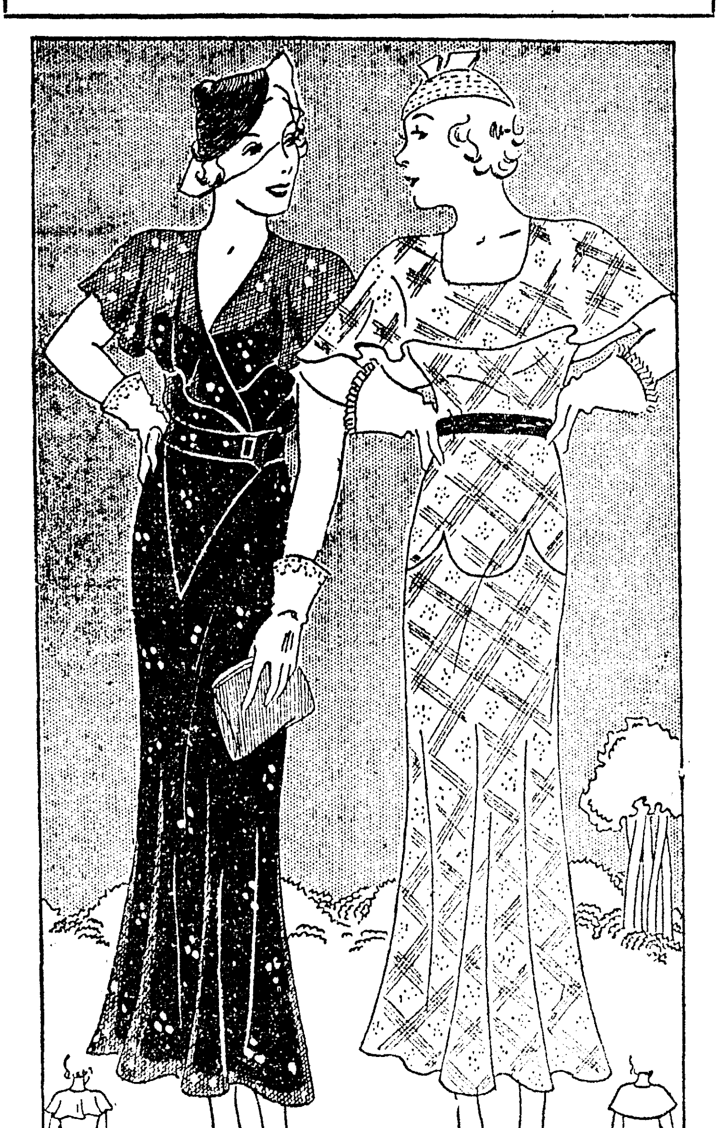
News-Star--World Pattern



Slip into the summer fashions and be transformed . . . you'll feel young, gay, poised and confident of looking your very, very best. Such delightful informal affairs that mark this season . . . teas, bridges, matinees and garden parties . . . call for frocks that are utterly bewitching and feminine. Just cast your glance on these . . . very charming, aren't they? Two simple style hints achieve the correct silhouette, but note how each adopts a twist of its own "just to be different." Capes that ripple and flatter are for broad shoulders . . . which version do you prefer? Hips to be infinitely slender require scalloped or pointed seamings. Of course, you'll choose the "ethereal sheers" in dainty prints or striking plaids . . . see your favorite shop for them, but meanwhile send now for your pattern.

Pattern 2602, sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3 3-4 yards 39-inch fabric.

Pattern 2604, sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3 7-8 yards 39-inch fabric, 2 1-4 yards 5-inch ribbon. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with each pattern.

SEND FOR THE ANNE ADAMS FASHION BOOK, showing Paris-inspired models for every sewing need—all practical and easy and economical to make. Models for the larger figure, junior and kiddie styles; lingerie and accessory patterns are also featured. PRICE OF CATALOG, FIFTEEN CENTS. CATALOG AND PATTERN TOGETHER TWENTY-FIVE CENTS. Noted Artist Will Instruct Art Students

Proof that appreciation of art is increasing in this city is manifested in the appearance of Adrian Brewer, noted artist of Little Rock, who will conduct classes, in landscape painting during the month of June.

Members of the Sketch club were responsible for Mr. Brewer's presence in the city and to them is due the credit for the wonderful privilege afforded young students to receive instruction in sketching and painting from a master. Mr. Brewer's work is rated among the best in the nation. Several of his paintings hang in public institutions all over the United States as well as in numerous private collections. Several homes of Monroe boast of one of his famous "Bluebonnet" paintings, purchased several years ago when the Business and Professional Women's club sponsored an exhibition of his work.

Mr. Brewer has brought several of his recent paintings with him and these will be on exhibit at an early date.

Miss Margaret Moran of Shreveport is the house guest of Miss Alice Daniel.

The 37th annual convention of the national congress of parents and teachers has just come to a successful conclusion at Seattle, Washington. Over 1,200 delegates came from 40 states, Hawaii, Alaska, the District of Columbia and Canada—depression or no depression—it was a big convention. The schools have just as many customers as before.

Highlights from discussion conferences are:

On playground, libraries, recreation, Miss Mildred Pope says: "The magnificent investment in libraries is in greater danger than any of you realize." Mrs. John Wilson commented upon the inequality of urban and rural libraries and urged that books be taken to the farmer, because the farmer does not have time to come to the books. Mrs. David Stewart on playgrounds, "Although all parent-teacher associations cannot support playgrounds they can create favorable public opinion for their support." Dr. McKinley Robinson gave constructive suggestions on recreation in the home and community, pointing out that the city should draw their families together because of the influence against them, while the rural community should put their emphasis on recreation."

Leisure time activities, motion pictures, Mrs. Robbin Gilman: "Motion pictures have the greatest potential value in the cultural development of the child—but not in its present state of development of questionable, cultural value."

The panel-discussion was particularly enjoyable because of the wit and contributions of Mrs. Pettengill. Mr. Newell Edson said, "We get things done in this day and age through groups." The panel discussion brought out the new idea of cooperative thinking, according to Frances Dickie. Miss Radford stressed the emotions in relation to the arts, "because in America we repress emotion in our art." Home, school and church provide the range of experience for the child. Other quotes include: "The community leaves no individual or agent out of responsibility." "Cultural life of children is the influence which guides the child mentally, morally, physically, and emotionally." "Culture is the application to life's situations of the knowledge of the best in human experience," says Mr. Edson.

In a study of the school program discussion: "The needs of the school should be put in two classes, physical needs and idealistic needs. Unless the parent knows and recognizes these needs, those interested in education have fallen down." Mrs. A. B. Shuttleworth urged her audience to begin now to let the public know the needs of the school. Mrs. Cris Hirning said, "Educators should learn three things from politicians: (1) how to sell their platform or program to the public, (2) how to take criticism without losing dignity, (3) how to take defeat smiling and eventually come back smiling."

Mrs. Scott Wood on financial resources: "In the average state, 90 per cent of the funds, seem to come from tax money. Each state, therefore, must take up its own conditions and study how we want our schools supported."

Mr. C. M. Hurst: "We can only conjecture what the effects of these times could be, if we did not have the leavening power of the schools. Education is the cheapest and safest insurance we can purchase."

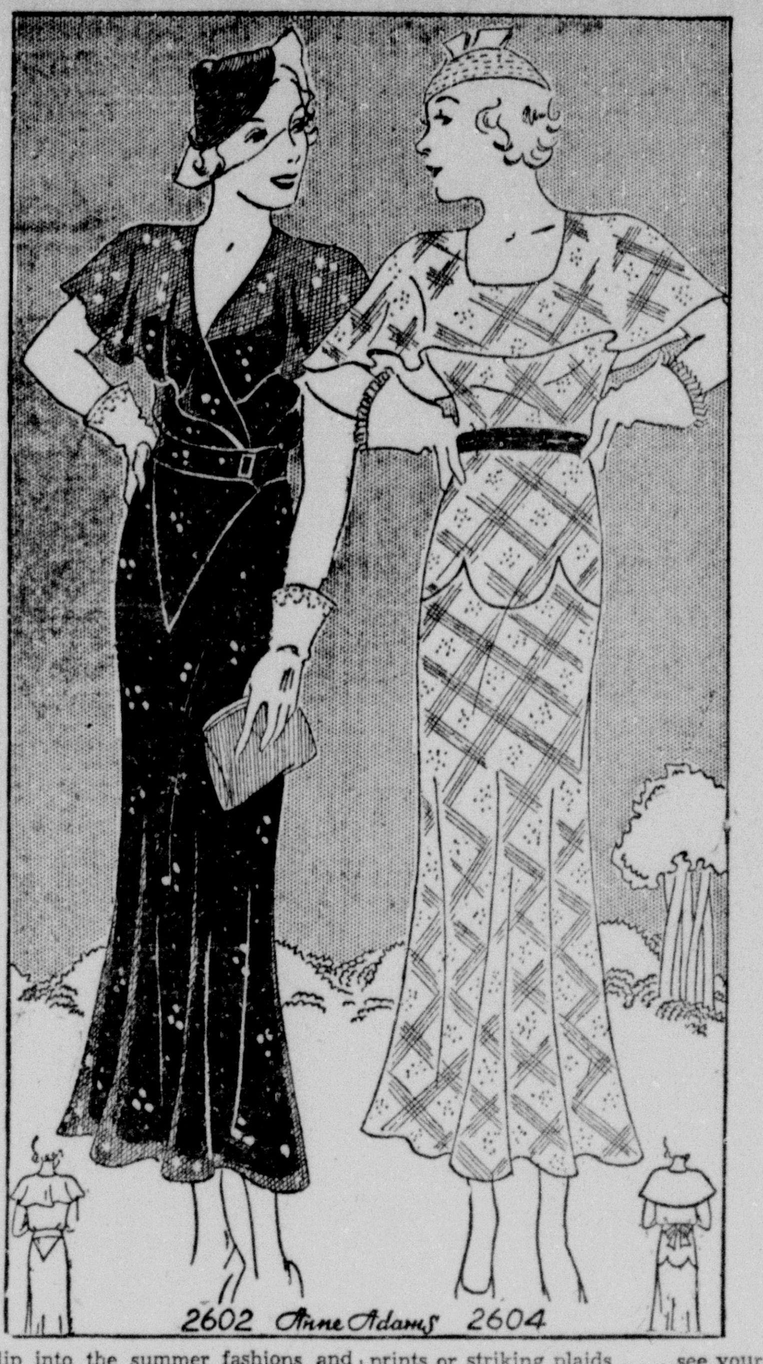
News-Star--World Pattern



Slip into the summer fashions and be transformed . . . you'll feel young, gay, poised and confident of looking your very, very best. Such delightful informal affairs that mark this season . . . teas, bridges, matinees and garden parties . . . call for frocks that are utterly bewitching and feminine. Just cast your glance on these . . . very charming, aren't they? Two simple style hints achieve the correct silhouette, but note how each adopts a twist of its own "just to be different." Capes that ripple and flatter are for broad shoulders . . . which version do you prefer? Hips to be infinitely slender require scalloped or pointed seamings. Of course, you'll choose the "ethereal sheers" in dainty prints or striking plaids . . . see your favorite shop for them, but meanwhile send now for your pattern.

Pattern 2602, sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3 3-4 yards 39-inch fabric.

Pattern 2604, sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3 7-8 yards 39-inch fabric, 2 1-4 yards 5-inch ribbon. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with each pattern.

SEND FOR THE ANNE ADAMS FASHION BOOK, showing Paris-inspired models for every sewing need—all practical and easy and economical to make. Models for the larger figure, junior and kiddie styles; lingerie and accessory patterns are also featured. PRICE OF CATALOG, FIFTEEN CENTS. CATALOG AND PATTERN TOGETHER TWENTY-FIVE CENTS. Noted Artist Will Instruct Art Students

Proof that appreciation of art is increasing in this city is manifested in the appearance of Adrian Brewer, noted artist of Little Rock, who will conduct classes, in landscape painting during the month of June.

Members of the Sketch club were responsible for Mr. Brewer's presence in the city and to them is due the credit for the wonderful privilege afforded young students to receive instruction in sketching and painting from a master. Mr. Brewer's work is rated among the best in the nation. Several of his paintings hang in public institutions all over the United States as well as in numerous private collections. Several homes of Monroe boast of one of his famous "Bluebonnet" paintings, purchased several years ago when the Business and Professional Women's club sponsored an exhibition of his work.

Mr. Brewer has brought several of his recent paintings with him and these will be on exhibit at an early date.

Miss Margaret Moran of Shreveport is the house guest of Miss Alice Daniel.

The 37th annual convention of the national congress of parents and teachers has just come to a successful conclusion at Seattle, Washington. Over 1,200 delegates came from 40 states, Hawaii, Alaska, the District of Columbia and Canada—depression or no depression—it was a big convention. The schools have just as many customers as before.

Highlights from discussion conferences are:

On playground, libraries, recreation, Miss Mildred Pope says: "The magnificent investment in libraries is in greater danger than any of you realize." Mrs. John Wilson commented upon the inequality of urban and rural libraries and urged that books be taken to the farmer, because the farmer does not have time to come to the books. Mrs. David Stewart on playgrounds, "Although all parent-teacher associations cannot support playgrounds they can create favorable public opinion for their support." Dr. McKinley Robinson gave constructive suggestions on recreation in the home and community, pointing out that the city should draw their families together because of the influence against them, while the rural community should put their emphasis on recreation."

Leisure time activities, motion pictures, Mrs. Robbin Gilman: "Motion pictures have the greatest potential value in the cultural development of the child—but not in its present state of development of questionable, cultural value."

The panel-discussion was particularly enjoyable because of the wit and contributions of Mrs. Pettengill. Mr. Newell Edson said, "We get things done in this day and age through groups." The panel discussion brought out the new idea of cooperative thinking, according to Frances Dickie. Miss Radford stressed the emotions in relation to the arts, "because in America we repress emotion in our art." Home, school and church provide the range of experience for the child. Other quotes include: "The community leaves no individual or agent out of responsibility." "Cultural life of children is the influence which guides the child mentally, morally, physically, and emotionally." "Culture is the application to life's situations of the knowledge of the best in human experience," says Mr. Edson.

In a study of the school program discussion: "The needs of the school should be put in two classes, physical needs and idealistic needs. Unless the parent knows and recognizes these needs, those interested in education have fallen down." Mrs. A. B. Shuttleworth urged her audience to begin now to let the public know the needs of the school. Mrs. Cris Hirning said, "Educators should learn three things from politicians: (1) how to sell their platform or program to the public, (2) how to take criticism without losing dignity, (3) how to take defeat smiling and eventually come back smiling."

Mrs. Scott Wood on financial resources: "In the average state, 90 per cent of the funds, seem to come from tax money. Each state, therefore, must take up its own conditions and study how we want our schools supported."

Mr. C. M. Hurst: "We can only conjecture what the effects of these times could be, if we did not have the leavening power of the schools. Education is the cheapest and safest insurance we can purchase."

Youth of Today Great Concern To All Parents

The eyes of women of every state in the union were centered on convention headquarters in Seattle, Washington, this past week, where the National Congress of Parents and Teachers met to discuss the problems of childhood and fitting children to take effective part in the world of tomorrow.

Nearly 1,150 accredited delegates were registered by the opening day, May 26, an increase of nearly 400 over the maximum for previous years.

Every delegate carried a large notebook in which reports of proceedings and resolutions will go back to individual chapters. Records of past work are on exhibit at convention headquarters in the Olympic hotel.

Dr. Anthony F. Blanks, University of California, spoke on "The Kind of World Our Children Must Live In." "We are at the end," he said, "of the big business jag, and we feel just as people always feel at the end of a jag. If the next generation faces a heavier burden than ours, it is all the more reason why we must prepare them better. We can do without luxuries, even without what we used to call necessities, but the education you deny today is lost forever. Let us ride along bumpy roads for a while; it doesn't matter so long as the bumpy road leads to the open schoolhouse door. It costs $3,000 to convict and keep a felon for a year, and $150 a year to educate a child. And ignorance and crime are Siamese twins."

He quoted William Allen White's description of the youth of today—"scholastic hitch-hikers, looking for a free ride and not caring in what direction"—but insisted that a boy is still "the only material we have out of which to make a man. The next generation is Nature's earnest effort to make up for our mistakes. We hear a great deal about planning these days. But if we make a plan they will have to carry it out; if we vote long-term bonds, they will have to pay them—unless they repudiate them."

"The Spiritual and Ethical Life of the Child" was the subject of an address by Dr. Joseph M. Artman, secretary of the Religious Education association of Chicago.

"Our job today," he said, "is to create the standards of a new social order. No individual becomes great except through the causes to which he gives himself. If boys and girls are flying hither and yon, their chances of developing spirituality are nil. When they learn to make a selection, they begin to grow spiritually. And the larger the group for which you have made yourself responsible, in the sense of being concerned for it, the greater your spirituality. Why not make this crisis the turning point to a greater age?"

The Sherrouse P.-T. A. held its regular meeting Thursday afternoon with Mrs. L. C. Couch presiding.

Mrs. Calhoun was responsible for the arrangement of the interesting program.

Piano Selection—Miss Beatrice Skirvin.

Mrs. Parker McComb, state chairman of study course, explained the various courses to be pursued by the study group. She gave the value of the study course in furnishing trained P.-T. A. workers for the future.

"Melesand" and "Where My Caravan Is Resting," were beautifully rendered by Mrs. J. Bolling Jones, Jr., accompanied by Don Blitmoser. Dr. C. P. Gray gave a very instructive talk on "Motherhood."

The treasurer's report showed a favorable balance on hand.

Plans were made to aid the recreation department of the city in supporting its summer play grounds.

The P.-T. A. made a donation to this cause.

Plans for the summer round-up were completed and all parents were urged to bring their children of preschool age to be examined by the health doctor.

The secretary read a letter from Mr. J. A. O'Hara, president, state chairman May Day committee, in which he thanked the P.-T. A. for aiding in child health day observance.

Grades 2 and 3 won the library book for having the most mothers present.

Mrs. James E. Davis will present her music pupils in a "Musical Contest," Monday evening, June the fifth in the Ouachita Parish school auditorium and extends a cordial invitation to all music minded people to be present.

Four gold medals will be awarded at this time to students who have not studied more than two years and to those who have studied three years and longer. Medals will also be awarded the students maintaining the highest average for the entire session.

The judges will be Mrs. Grover Cornett, Miss Lila Scogin and Mr. Max Kulcke.

The pupils who appear on the following program were privileged to select the composition in which they excell:

CHAPTER I

Bonnie Dundee stretched out a long and rather fine pair of legs, regarding the pattern of his dark-blue socks with distinct satisfaction; then he rested his black head with a sigh of satisfaction against the rich upholstery of an armchair not at all intended for his use.

"Good morning, Penny," he called out lazily, and waited good-humoredly for the storm to break.

"Miss Crain—to you!" The flying fingers did not stop an instant, but Dundee noticed with glee that the slim back stiffened ever more ragidly and that there was a decided toss of the brown head.

"But Penny is so much more like you," Dundee protested, unruffled. "And why should I be forced always to think of you as a long-legged bird, when even our mutual boss, District Attorney William S. Sanderson, has the privilege of calling you what you are—a bright and shining new penny."

"I've known Bill Sanderson since I was born," the unseen lips informed him truculently, even as the unseen fingers continued their fiercely staccato typing.

"Ah! That explains a lot!" Dundee conceded handsomely. "I just wondered, amidst all this bonhomie of 'Bill' and 'Penny,' why I—"

"I only call Mr. Sanderson 'Bill' when I forget!" the small creature defended herself sharply. "Goodness knows I try to be an efficient private secretary! And I could be a lot more efficient if lazy strangers didn't plump themselves down in our best visitors' chair, and try to flirt with me. I don't flirt; Do you hear?—I don't flirt with anybody!"

"Flirt with you, you funny little Penny?" Dundee's voice was a little sad, the voice of a man who finds himself grievously misunderstood. "I only want you to like me, if you can, and be a little nice to me, for after all I—"

"Oh, I know!" Penny Crain jerked the finished letter from her typewriter and spun about on her chair to face him. "I know you are 'Mr. James F. Dundee, special investigator attached to the office of the district attorney,' and that you have a right to drive me crazy if you want to."

"Crazy?" Dundee was genuinely amazed, contrite. "I beg your pardon most humbly, Miss Crain. I'll go back to my cell—"

"Your office is almost as big and nice as this one," Penny retorted, but her sharp, bright brown eyes—really almost the color of a new penny—softened until they took on a velvety depth.

Dundee did not fail to notice the softening, nor did the little heart-shaped face, with its low widow's-peak, its straight, short nose, and its pointed little chin, fail to please him any more acutely than on the other days of the one short week he had been privileged at intervals to gaze upon it.

"But the files are in this office and—other things," he told her, his blue eyes twinkling happily once more.

"Don't you dare touch my files again!" Penny cried, springing to her feet and almost running toward the wall which was completely concealed by drawers, cabinets and shelves, filled with the records of which she was the proud custodian. "That's why I said just now that you were driving me crazy. Thursday you took a whole folder of correspondence out of the letter files and put it back under the wrong initial. I had to hunt for it for two hours, with Bill—I mean, Mr. Sanderson—gnawing his nails with impatience. He thought I had filed it wrong, and you might have made me lose my job."

"I'm awfully sorry. I shan't touch your files again, Miss Crain."

"Oh—go on and call me Penny," she conceded impatiently. "What do you want now? . . . And you can get anything you need out of the files if you'll put the folder in the bottom drawer of my desk, so that I can file it myself—correctly!"

"Thank you, Penny," Bonnie Dundee said gravely. "I'd like awfully to have the complete transcript of 'The State versus Maginty.' Mr. Sanderson is determined to get a oonviction where our former district attorney most ingloriously failed. The new trial comes up in two weeks, and he wants me to try to uncover a missing link of evidence."

"I know," she nodded, and stretched her short, slender body to pull down the two heavy volumes he required.

Without a by-your-leave, Special Investigator Dundee resumed his comfortable seat, and laid the first of the volumes open upon his knees. But he did not seem to take a great deal of interest in the impaneling of jurors in the case of one Rufus Maginty, who had won the temporary triumph of a "hung jury" under the handling of the state's case by the deposed district attorney, Sherwood.

Rather, his eyes followed the small, brisk figure of Miss Penelope Crain as it moved about the room, and his ears listened to the tapping of her French heels. . . . French heels! Hadn't she been wearing sensible, Cuban-heeled oxfords all other days of this week of his "attachment" to the district attorney's office? . . . Cunning little thing, for all her thorniness and her sharpness with him, which he now saw that he had deserved. . . . Pretty, too. . . . Darned pretty! . . . What color was that dress of hers? . . . Chartreuse, didn't they call it? Chartreuse with big brown dots in it. Bet it was sleeveless under that short little jacket of golden-brown chiffon velvet. . . . By Jove—and Dundee lapsed into one of the English-isms he had picked up during his six months' work in England as a tyro in the records department of Scotland Yard, before he had come to Hamilton to make a humble beginning as a cub detective on the homicide squad—yes, by Jove, she was all dressed up, for some reason or other.

"Of course! Because it's Saturday and you have the afternoon off!" Dundee finished his reverie aloud, to the astonishment of the small person trying to reach a file drawer just a little too high for her. "I mean," he hastened to explain, "that I've just noticed how beautiful your costume is, and found a reason for it."

There was sudden color in the creamy face, made the more interesting—to Dundee, at least—by a sprinkling of golden-brown freckles across her nose. The French heels tapped an angry progress across the big office, and Penney sat down abruptly in her swivel chair, reached across the immaculate desk, snatched up a morning paper and tossed it, without a glance, in her tormentor's general direction.

"Page three, column two, first item," she informed him ungraciously, and then began to search with a funny sort of desperation for more work to occupy her insatiable fingers and her extraordinary energy.

Bonnie Dundee grinned indulgently as he opened the Hamilton Morning News and turned to the specified page and column.

"Ah, my old friend, the 'society editress,' in her very best style," he commented, as he began to read aloud:

"'Mrs. Juanita Selim, new and charming member, is entertaining the Forsyte Alumni Bridge club this afternoon, luncheon to be served at the exclusive new Breakaway Inn on Sheridan Road——'"

"I've read it—and I'm busy, so shut up!" Penny commanded, as she gathered up pencils to sharpen.

Quite meekly, Bonnie Dundee subsided into a silent perusal of an item he was sure could have no possible interest for himself, in either a personal or professional capacity, unless Penny's name was in it somewhere:

"——and after the jolly party of young matrons and maids will adjourn to Mrs. Selim's delightful home in the Primrose Meadows addition." He chuckled, and dared to interrupt the high importance of pointing-up pencils. "I say, that's funny, isn't it? . . . 'Primrose Meadows addition'!"

"I don't think it's funny," Penny retorted coldly. "It so happens that my mother named it, that my father went into bankruptcy trying to make a go of it, and that 'Mrs. Selims delightful home' was built to be our home, and in which we were fortunate to live only two months before the crash came."

"Shut up!' she ordered, but her voice was huskier than ever with tears.

Dundee's now thoroughly interested eyes raced down the absurdly written paragraphs:

"Although not an alumna of that famous and select school for girls, Forsyte-on-the-Hudson, graduation from which places any Hamilton girl in the very inner circles of Hamilton society, Mrs. Selim has been closely identified with the school, having for the past two years directed and staged Forsyte's annual play which ushers in the Easter vacation.

"Indeed it was Mrs. Selim's remarkable success with this year's play which caused Mrs. Peter Dunlap, long interested in a Little Theater for Hamilton, to induce the beautiful and charming young directress to return to Hamilton with her. Plans for the Little Theater are growing apace, and it is safe to conjecture that not all the conversation flying thick and fast about 'Nita's' bridge tables this afternoon will be concerned with contract 'conventions,' finesses which failed, and scores.

"Lovely 'Nita' was elected to membership a fortnight ago, when a vacancy occurred, due to the resignation of Miss Alice Humphrey, who has gone abroad for a year's study in Sorbonne. The two-table club now includes: Mesdames Hugo Marshall, Tracey A. Miles, Peter Dunlap, John C. Drake, Juanita Selim and Misses Polly Beale, Janet Raymond and Penelope Crain."

Dundee lowered the paper and stared at the profile of District Attorney Sanderson's private secretary. So she was a "society girl," a "Forsyte" girl ! Was that the reason, perhaps, why she had been so thorny with him, a mere "dick"? Well, he wasn't just a "dick" any longer. He was a special investigator. . . . A "society girl," playing at work. . . .

But there was more, and he read on: "As is well known, the girls have their 'hen-fight' bridge-luncheon every Saturday afternoon from the first of October to the first of June, and a bridge-dinner, in which mere men are graciously included, every Wednesday evening during the season. Mr. and Mrs. Tracey A. Miles are scheduled as next Wednesday's host and hostess."

"I take off my hat to your 'society editress,'," Dundee commented with false cheerfulness, when he had laid the paper back upon Penny's desk. "She makes half a column of this one item alone in what must be a meager Saturday bunch of 'Society Notes,' then writes it all over again, in the past tense, for an equally meager Monday column. . . . Like bridge, Miss Crain?"

Penny snatched up the paper and crushed it into her wastebasket. "I do! And I like my old friends, even if I am not able, financially, to keep up with them. . . . If that's why you've suddenly decided to stop being—comrades."

"Please forgive me again, Penny," he begged gently.

"You thought I was a 'society girl,' playing at work," she accured him as accurately as if she had read his mind. "I'm not! I was born into that crowd, and I still belong to it, because all of them are my real friends, but get this into your thick Scotch-Irish head, Mr. Dundee!—I'm working because I have to, and—and because I love it, too, and because I want to learn to make enough before I'm many years older to give mother some of the things she's missing so dreadfully since—since my father failed and—and ran away."

"Yes, ran away!" she repeated fiercely. "I might as well tell you myself. Plenty of others will be willing to, as soon as they know you are—my friend. . . . As I told you, my father—I used to call him Dad"—and her voice broke—"my father went bankrupt, but before the courts knew it he had sent some securities to a—to a woman in New York, and when he—left us, he went to her, because he left mother a note saying so. His defrauded creditors here have tried to—to catch him, but they haven't—yet——"

Very gently Bonnoe Dundee took the small hand that was distractedly rumpling the brown waves which swept back from the widow's-peak which made her forehead so irresistible. It lay fluttering in his big palm for a moment, then snatched itself away.

"I won't have you feeling sorry for me!" she cried angrily.

"Who owns your—the Primrose Meadows—house now? Mrs. Selim?" he asked.

"'The lovely Nita'?" Her voice scornful. "No. She rents it from Judge Hugo Marshall—or is supposed to pay him rent," she said with not a trace of malice. "Hugo is an old darling, but he is fearfully weak where pretty women are concerned. Nita Selim had known Hugo in New York—somehow—and as soon as Lois—Mrs. Dunlap, I mean—had got Nita off the train, the stranger in our midst hied herself to Hugo's office and he's been tagging after her ever since. . . . Though most of the men in our crowd are as bad or worse than poor old Hugo. How Karen keeps on looking so blissfully happy——"

"Karen?" Dundee interrupted.

"Mrs. Hugo Marshall," she explained impatiently. "Karen made her debut a year ago this last winter—a darling of a girl. Judge Marshall—retired judge, you know—had been proposing to the prettiest girl in each season's crop of debs for the last 20 years, and Hugo must have been the most nonplussed 'perennial bachelor' who ever led a grand march when Karen snapped him up. . . . Loved him—actually! And they've been blissfully happy ever since. . . . A baby boy three months old," she concluded in her laconic style. Then, ashamed: "I don't know why I'm gossiping like this!"

"Because you can't find another blessed scrap of work to do, you little efficiency fiend," Dundee laughed. "Come on! Gossip some more. My Maginty case will wait till afternoon, to be mulled over while you're losing your hard-earned salary at bridge with rich women."

"We don't play for high stakes," she corrected him. "Just a twentieth of a cent a point, though contract can run into money even at that. The winnings all go to the Forsyte Scholarship Fund. On Wednesday evenings the crowd plays for higher stakes—a tenth—and winners keepers. Therefore I can't afford to go, unless I sink so low as to let my escort pay my losses—which I sometimes do," she confessed, her brown head low for a moment.

"Is this Mrs. Pete Dunlap a deep-bosomed club woman, who starts Movements?" he asked, more to bring her out of her depression than anything else. "Bigger and Better Babies Movements, and Homes for Fallen Girls, and Little Theater Movement?"

The brown head flung itself up sharply, and the brown eyes hardened into bright pennies again. "Lois is the sweetest, finest, most comfortable woman in Hamilton, and I adore her—as does everyone else, Peter Dunlap hardly more than the rest of us. She is interested in a Little Theater for Hamilton, but she won't manage it. That's why she got hold of Nita Selim. Lois will simply put up barrels of money, without missing them, and give a grand job to a Little Broadway gold-digger. Funny thing is, she really delights in Nita. Thinks she's sweet and has never had a real chance."

"Oh—I suppose I'm a cat, but I can see through her so clearly. Not that she's bad; she's simply an opportunist. She's awfully sweet and deferential and 'frank' with women, but with men—well, she simply tucks her head so that her black curls fall forward enchantingly, gives them one wistful smile out of her big eyes that are like black pansies and—the clink of slave chains! . . . Now go on and think I'm catty, when I suppose I am!"

Bonnie Dundee grinned at her reassuringly. Not for him to explain that practically all women and many men found themselves "gossiping" when he led them on adroitly, for reasons of his own. Which helped make him the excellent detective he was, of course.

"So all the men in your crowd have fallen for Nita Selim, have they?"

"Practically all, in varying degrees, except Peter Dunlap, who has never looked at another woman since he was lucky enough to get Lois, and Clive Hammond, who's engaged to Polly Beale." Penny answered reluctantly, her color high.

"Including your young man?"

"I haven't a 'young man,' in the sense of being engaged," Penny retorted, then added honestly: "I have been letting Ralph Hammond—that's Clive's brother, you know—take me about a good deal. . . . Ralph and Clive have plenty of money," she defended herself hastily. "They are architects, Clive being the head of the firm and Ralph, who hasn't been out of college so long, a junior partner. It was the Hmmond firm that drew up the plans for my father's Primrose Meadows Addition houses. He had our house built as a sort of show-place, you know, so that prospective builders out there could see how artistic a home could be put up for a moderate sum of money. But he didn't finish even that—left half the gabled top story unfinished, and Nita has been teasing Hugo to finish it up for her. It looks," she added with a shrug, "as if Nita will get what she wants—as usual."

"And Ralph has acquired a set of slave chains?" Dundee suggested, with just the slightest note of sympathy.

"And how!" Penny assured him grimly. "A simile as out of date as my clothes are going to be if I don't get some new ones soon. Not that the crowd minds what I wear," she added loyally. "I could dress up in a window drape—"

"And be just as charming as you are in that grand new party dress you have on now," Dundee finished for her gallantly.

"New!" Penny snorted and turned back to her desk in a futile effort to find something left undone.

Dundee ignored the rebuff. "How many suckers—I mean, how many gentlemen with moderate incomes actually built in Primrose Meadows?"

"You are inquisitive, aren't you? . . . None! Our house, or rather the one Nita Selim is living in now, is the only house on what used to be a big farm. . . . Why?"

"I was just wondering," Dundee said softly, almost absent-mindedly, "why the 'olvely Nita' chose so isolated a place in which to live, when Hamilton has rather a large number of 'For Rent' signs out just now. . . . By the way, know what time it is now? . . . Twenty to one. Get your hat on, young woman. I'm going to drive you out to Breakaway Inn."

"You're not! I'm going to take a bus. One runs from the Square right past the Inn," she told him firmly.

And just as firmly Dundee escorted her out of the almost deserted, rather dirty old courthouse to where his brand new sports roadster was awaiting them in the parking space devoted to the motors of those who officially served Hamilton county.

"I know why you want to drive me out to the Inn," Penny told him suddenly, as the proud owner maneuvered his car through Saturday noon traffic. "You want to see Nita Selim. Clank! Clank! I can hear the padlocks snapping on the slave chains right now."

"Meow!" Dundee retorted, then grinned down at her with as much comradely affection as if they had been friends for years instead of for a couple of hours. "Is Nita very small?" he added.

"Little enough to tuck herself under the arm of a man a lot shorter than you," Penny assured him with curious vehemence. "And if Penelope Crain is no mean prophet, that's exactly what she'll do within five minutes after she meets you—just as she is wistfully inviting you to join the other men for the cocktail party which is scheduled to break up the bridge game at 5:30. Then, of course, you'll be urged to join us all at the dinner-dance at the Country Club tonight."

"Will she?" Dundee pretended to be vastly intrigued, which caused the remainder of the drive to be a rather silent one, due to Penny's unresponsiveness.

Breakaway Inn was intensely Spanish in architecture and transplanted shrubbery, but its stucco walls were of a rather more violent raspberry color than is considered quite esthetic in Spain or Mexico.

"There's Lois Dunlap's car just driving up," Penny cried, her face softening with the adoration she had frankly professed for her friend. But it clouded again almost instantly. "And Nita Selim."

As Dundee helped his new friend to alight his eyes were upon the two women being assisted by a uniformed chauffeur from Lois Dunlap's limousine.

In a moment the four were a laughing, exclamatory group.

"Oh, what a tall man you've got yourself, Penny darling!" the tiny, beautiful creature which could only be Mrs. Selim cried out happily. "May I meet him?"

"I shouldn't let you," Penny answered frankly, "but I will. . . . Mrs. Selim, Mr. Dundee. . . . And Mrs. Dunlap, Mr. Dundee. . . . How are you, Lois? And Peter and the brats?"

"All well, Penny. Petey's off on a week-end fishing trip, and not one of the brats has measles, scarlet fever or hay fever," Dundee heard Mrs. Dunlap say in the comfortable, affectionate voice that went with her comfortable, pleasant face and body. . . . Nice woman!

But his eyes were of necessity upon Nita Selim, for that miniature Venus was, as Penny had predicted, almost tucked under his arm by this time, her black-pansy eyes wide and wistful, her fine, soft black curls falling forward as she coaxed:

"You'll come to the cocktail party at my house at 5:30, won't you, Mr. Dundee?"

"Afraid I can't make it," Dundee smiled down at her. "I'm a busy man, Mrs. Selim. . . . You see, I'm Special Investigator attached to the District Attorney's office," he explained very deliberately.

"O-o-oh!" Nita Selim breathed. Then, step by step, she withdrew. And as she retreated, Dundee's keen eyes noted a hardening of the eyes, the sudden throbbing of a pulse in her very white neck. . . .

"No, don't mind about calling for me," Penny protested a moment later. "Ralph has already volunteered. . . . Thanks awfully!"

As Dundee backed out of the driveway his last glance was for a very small figure in a brown silk summer coat and palest yellow chiffon frock, slowly rejoining Penelope Crain and Lois Dunlap. What the devil had frightened her so? For she had been almost terrified. . . . Of course she might be one of those silly women who shudder at the sight of a detective, because they've smuggled in a diamond from Paris or a bottle of Bacardi from Havana.

But long before his car made the distance back to the city Dundee had shrugged off the riddle and was concentrating on all the facts he knew regarding the Maginty case. It was his first real assignment from Sanderson, and he was determined to make good.

Four hours later he was interrupted in his careful reading of the trial of Rufus Maginty by the ringing of the telephone bell. That made four times he had had to snap out the fact that District Attorney Sanderson was playing some well-earned golf at the Country Club, Dundee reflected angrily, as he picked up the receiver.

But the call was for him. And the voice on the other end of the wire was Penny Crain's, although almost unrecognizable.

"Speak more slowly, Penny!" Dundee urged. "What's that again? . . . Good Lord! You say that Nita Selim—"

"My God!" he said slowly, blankly. "Of all things—murder at bridge!"

SOCIETY

Youth of Today Great Concern To All Parents

The eyes of women of every state in the union were centered on convention headquarters in Seattle, Washington, this past week, where the National Congress of Parents and Teachers met to discuss the problems of childhood and fitting children to take effective part in the world of tomorrow.

Nearly 1,150 accredited delegates were registered by the opening day, May 26, an increase of nearly 400 over the maximum for previous years.

Every delegate carried a large notebook in which reports of proceedings and resolutions will go back to individual chapters. Records of past work are on exhibit at convention headquarters in the Olympic hotel.

Dr. Anthony F. Blanks, University of California, spoke on "The Kind of World Our Children Must Live In." "We are at the end," he said, "of the big business jag, and we feel just as people always feel at the end of a jag. If the next generation faces a heavier burden than ours, it is all the more reason why we must prepare them better. We can do without luxuries, even without what we used to call necessities, but the education you deny today is lost forever. Let us ride along bumpy roads for a while; it doesn't matter so long as the bumpy road leads to the open schoolhouse door. It costs $3,000 to convict and keep a felon for a year, and $150 a year to educate a child. And ignorance and crime are Siamese twins."

He quoted William Allen White's description of the youth of today—"scholastic hitch-hikers, looking for a free ride and not caring in what direction"—but insisted that a boy is still "the only material we have out of which to make a man. The next generation is Nature's earnest effort to make up for our mistakes. We hear a great deal about planning these days. But if we make a plan they will have to carry it out; if we vote long-term bonds, they will have to pay them—unless they repudiate them."

"The Spiritual and Ethical Life of the Child" was the subject of an address by Dr. Joseph M. Artman, secretary of the Religious Education association of Chicago.

"Our job today," he said, "is to create the standards of a new social order. No individual becomes great except through the causes to which he gives himself. If boys and girls are flying hither and yon, their chances of developing spirituality are nil. When they learn to make a selection, they begin to grow spiritually. And the larger the group for which you have made yourself responsible, in the sense of being concerned for it, the greater your spirituality. Why not make this crisis the turning point to a greater age?

The Sherrouse P.-T. A. held its regular meeting Thursday afternoon with Mrs. L. C. Couch presiding.

Mrs. Calhoun was responsible for the arrangement of the interesting program.

Piano Selection—Miss Beatrice Skirvin.

Mrs. Parker McComb, state chairman of study course, explained the various courses to be pursued by the study group. She gave the value of the study course in furnishing trained P.-T. A. workers for the future.

"Melesand" and "Where My Caravan Is Resting," were beautifully rendered by Mrs. J. Bolling Jones, Jr., accompanied by Don Britmoser. Dr. C. P. Gray gave a very instructive talk on "Motherhood."

The treasurer's report showed a favorable balance on hand.

Plans were made to aid the recreation department of the city in supporting its summer play grounds.

The P.-T. A. made a donation to this cause.

Plans for the summer round-up were completed and all parents were urged to bring their children of preschool age to be examined by the health doctor.

The secretary read a letter from Mr. J. A. O'Hara, president, state chairman May Day committee, in which he thanked the P.-T. A. for aiding in child health day observance.

Grades 2 and 3 won the library book for having the most mothers present.

Mrs. James E. Davis will present her music pupils in a "Musical Contest," Monday evening, June the fifth in the Ouachita Parish school auditorium and extends a cordial invitation to all music minded people to be present.

Four gold medals will be awarded at this time to students who have not studied more than two years and to those who have studied three years and longer. Medals will also be awarded the students maintaining the highest average for the entire session.

The judges will be Mrs. Grover Cornett, Miss Lila Scogin and Mr. Max Kulcke.

The pupils who appear on the following program were privileged to select the composition in which they excell:

CHAPTER I

Bonnie Dundee stretched out a long and rather fine pair of legs, regarding the pattern of his dark-blue socks with distinct satisfaction; then he rested his black head with a sigh of satisfaction against the rich upholstery of an armchair not at all intended for his use.

"Good morning, Penny," he called out lazily, and waited good-humoredly for the storm to break.

"Miss Crain—to you!" The flying fingers did not stop an instant, but Dundee noticed with glee that the slim back stiffened ever more ragidly and that there was a decided toss of the brown head.

"But Penny is so much more like you," Dundee protested, unruffled. "And why should I be forced always to think of you as a long-legged bird, when even our mutual boss, District Attorney William S. Sanderson, has the privilege of calling you what you are—a bright and shining new penny."

"I've known Bill Sanderson since I was born," the unseen lips informed him truculently, even as the unseen fingers continued their fiercely staccato typing.

"Ah! That explains a lot!" Dundee conceded handsomely. "I just wondered, amidst all this bonhomie of 'Bill' and 'Penny,' why I—"

"I only call Mr. Sanderson 'Bill' when I forget!" the small creature defended herself sharply. "Goodness knows I try to be an efficient private secretary! And I could be a lot more efficient if lazy strangers didn't plump themselves down in our best visitors' chair, and try to flirt with me. I don't flirt; Do you hear?—I don't flirt with anybody!"

"Flirt with you, you funny little Penny?" Dundee's voice was a little sad, the voice of a man who finds himself grievously misunderstood. "I only want you to like me, if you can, and be a little nice to me, for after all I—"

"Oh, I know!" Penny Crain jerked the finished letter from her typewriter and spun about on her chair to face him. "I know you are 'Mr. James F. Dundee, special investigator attached to the office of the district attorney,' and that you have a right to drive me crazy if you want to."

"Crazy?" Dundee was genuinely amazed, contrite. "I beg your pardon most humbly, Miss Crain. I'll go back to my cell—"

"Your office is almost as big and nice as this one," Penny retorted, but her sharp, bright brown eyes—really almost the color of a new penny—softened until they took on a velvety depth.

Dundee did not fail to notice the softening, nor did the little heart-shaped face, with its low widow's-peak, its straight, short nose, and its pointed little chin, fail to please him any more acutely than on the other days of the one short week he had been privileged at intervals to gaze upon it.

"But the files are in this office and—other things," he told her, his blue eyes twinkling happily once more.

"Don't you dare touch my files again!" Penny cried, springing to her feet and almost running toward the wall which was completely concealed by drawers, cabinets and shelves, filled with the records of which she was the proud custodian. "That's why I said just now that you were driving me crazy. Thursday you took a whole folder of correspondence out of the letter files and put it back under the wrong initial. I had to hunt for it for two hours, with Bill—I mean, Mr. Sanderson—gnawing his nails with impatience. He thought I had filed it wrong, and you might have made me lose my job."

"Oh—go on and call me Penny," she conceded impatiently. "What do you want now? . . . And you can get anything you need out of the files if you'll put the folder in the bottom drawer of my desk, so that I can file it myself—correctly!"

"Thank you, Penny," Bonnie Dundee said gravely. "I'd like awfully to have the complete transcript of 'The State versus Maginty.' Mr. Sanderson is determined to get a conviction where our former district attorney most ingloriously failed. The new trial comes up in two weeks, and he wants me to try to uncover a missing link of evidence."

"I know," she nodded, and stretched her short, slender body to pull down the two heavy volumes he required.

Without a by-your-leave, Special Investigator Dundee resumed his comfortable seat, and laid the first of the volumes open upon his knees. But he did not seem to take a great deal of interest in the impaneling of jurors in the case of one Rufus Maginty, who had won the temporary triumph of a "hung jury" under the handling of the state's case by the deposed district attorney, Sherwood.

Rather, his eyes followed the small, brisk figure of Miss Penelope Crain as it moved about the room, and his ears listened to the tapping of her French heels. . . . French heels! Hadn't she been wearing sensible, Cuban-heeled oxfords all other days of this week of his "attachment" to the district attorney's office? . . . Cunning little thing, for all her thorniness and her sharpness with him, which he now saw that he had deserved. . . . Pretty, too. . . . Darned pretty! . . . What color was that dress of hers? . . . Chartreuse, didn't they call it? Chartreuse with big brown dots in it. Bet it was sleeveless under that short little jacket of golden-brown chiffon velvet. . . . By Jove—and Dundee lapsed into one of the English-isms he had picked up during his six months' work in England as a tyro in the records department of Scotland Yard, before he had come to Hamilton to make a humble beginning as a cub detective on the homicide squad—yes, by Jove, she was all dressed up, for some reason or other.

"Of course! Because it's Saturday and you have the afternoon off!" Dundee finished his reverie aloud, to the astonishment of the small person trying to reach a file drawer just a little too high for her. "I mean," he hastened to explain, "that I've just noticed how beautiful your costume is, and found a reason for it."

There was sudden color in the creamy face, made the more interesting—to Dundee, at least—by a sprinkling of golden-brown freckles across her nose. The French heels tapped an angry progress across the big office, and Penney sat down abruptly in her swivel chair, reached across the immaculate desk, snatched up a morning paper and tossed it, without a glance, in her tormentor's general direction.

"Page three, column two, first item," she informed him ungraciously, and then began to search with a funny sort of desperation for more work to occupy her insatiable fingers and her extraordinary energy.

Bonnie Dundee grinned indulgently as he opened the Hamilton Morning News and turned to the specified page and column.

"Ah, my old friend, the 'society editress,' in her very best style," he commented, as he began to read aloud:

"'Mrs. Juanita Selim, new and charming member, is entertaining the Forsyte Alumni Bridge club this afternoon, luncheon to be served at the exclusive new Breakaway Inn on Sheridan Road——'"

"I've read it—and I'm busy, so shut up!" Penny commanded, as she gathered up pencils to sharpen.

Quite meekly, Bonnie Dundee subsided into a silent perusal of an item he was sure could have no possible interest for himself, in either a personal or professional capacity, unless Penny's name was in it somewhere:

"——and after the jolly party of young matrons and maids will adjourn to Mrs. Selim's delightful home in the Primrose Meadows addition." He chuckled, and dared to interrupt the high importance of pointing-up pencils. "I say, that's funny, isn't it? . . . 'Primrose Meadows addition'!"

"I don't think it's funny," Penny retorted coldly. "It so happens that my mother named it, that my father went into bankruptcy trying to make a go of it, and that 'Mrs. Selims delightful home' was built to be our home, and in which we were fortunate to live only two months before the crash came."

"Shut up!' she ordered, but her voice was huskier than ever with tears.

Dundee's now thoroughly interested eyes raced down the absurdly written paragraphs:

"Although not an alumna of that famous and select school for girls, Forsyte-on-the-Hudson, graduation from which places any Hamilton girl in the very inner circles of Hamilton society, Mrs. Selim has been closely identified with the school, having for the past two years directed and staged Forsyte's annual play which ushers in the Easter vacation.

"Indeed it was Mrs. Selim's remarkable success with this year's play which caused Mrs. Peter Dunlap, long interested in a Little Theater for Hamilton, to induce the beautiful and charming young directress to return to Hamilton with her. Plans for the Little Theater are growing apace, and it is safe to conjecture that not all the conversation flying thick and fast about 'Nita's' bridge tables this afternoon will be concerned with contract 'conventions,' finesses which failed, and scores.

"Lovely 'Nita' was elected to membership a fortnight ago, when a vacancy occurred, due to the resignation of Miss Alice Humphrey, who has gone abroad for a year's study in Sorbonne. The two-table club now includes: Mesdames Hugo Marshall, Tracey A. Miles, Peter Dunlap, John C. Drake, Juanita Selim and Misses Polly Beale, Janet Raymond and Penelope Crain."

Dundee lowered the paper and stared at the profile of District Attorney Sanderson's private secretary. So she was a "society girl," a "Forsyte" girl ! Was that the reason, perhaps, why she had been so thorny with him, a mere "dick"? Well, he wasn't just a "dick" any longer. He was a special investigator. . . . A "society girl," playing at work. . . .

But there was more, and he read on: "As is well known, the girls have their 'hen-fight' bridge-luncheon every Saturday afternoon from the first of October to the first of June, and a bridge-dinner, in which mere men are graciously included, every Wednesday evening during the season. Mr. and Mrs. Tracey A. Miles are scheduled as next Wednesday's host and hostess."

"I take off my hat to your 'society editress,'," Dundee commented with false cheerfulness, when he had laid the paper back upon Penny's desk. "She makes half a column of this one item alone in what must be a meager Saturday bunch of 'Society Notes,' then writes it all over again, in the past tense, for an equally meager Monday column. . . . Like bridge, Miss Crain?"

Penny snatched up the paper and crushed it into her wastebasket. "I do! And I like my old friends, even if I am not able, financially, to keep up with them. . . . If that's why you've suddenly decided to stop being—comrades."

"Please forgive me again, Penny," he begged gently.

"You thought I was a 'society girl,' playing at work," she accured him as accurately as if she had read his mind. "I'm not! I was born into that crowd, and I still belong to it, because all of them are my real friends, but get this into your thick Scotch-Irish head, Mr. Dundee!—I'm working because I have to, and—and because I love it, too, and because I want to learn to make enough before I'm many years older to give mother some of the things she's missing so dreadfully since—since my father failed and—and ran away."

"Yes, ran away!" she repeated fiercely. "I might as well tell you myself. Plenty of others will be willing to, as soon as they know you are—my friend. . . . As I told you, my father—I used to call him Dad"—and her voice broke—"my father went bankrupt, but before the courts knew it he had sent some securities to a—to a woman in New York, and when he—left us, he went to her, because he left mother a note saying so. His defrauded creditors here have tried to—to catch him, but they haven't—yet——"

Very gently Bonnoe Dundee took the small hand that was distractedly rumpling the brown waves which swept back from the widow's-peak which made her forehead so irresistible. It lay fluttering in his bigger palm for a moment, then snatched itself away.

"I won't have you feeling sorry for me!" she cried angrily.

"Who owns your—the Primrose Meadows—house now? Mrs. Selim?" he asked.

"'The lovely Nita'?" Her voice scornful. "No. She rents it from Judge Hugo Marshall—or is supposed to pay him rent," she added with a trace of malice. "Hugo is an old darling, but he is fearfully weak where pretty women are concerned. Nita Selim had known Hugo in New York—somehow—and as soon as Lois—Mrs. Dunlap, I mean—had got Nita off the train, the stranger in our midst hied herself to Hugo's office and he's been tagging after her ever since. . . . Though most of the men in our crowd are as bad or worse than poor old Hugo. How Karen keeps on looking so blissfully happy——"

"Karen?" Dundee interrupted.

"Mrs. Hugo Marshall," she explained impatiently. "Karen made her debut a year ago this last winter—a darling of a girl. Judge Marshall—retired judge, you know—had been proposing to the prettiest girl in each season's crop of debs for the last 20 years, and Hugo must have been the most nonplussed 'perennial bachelor' who ever led a grand march when Karen snapped him up. . . . Loved him—actually! And they've been blissfully happy ever since. . . . A baby boy three months old," she concluded in her laconic style. Then, ashamed: "I don't know why I'm gossiping like this!"

"Because you can't find another blessed scrap of work to do, you little efficiency fiend," Dundee laughed. "Come on! Gossip some more. My Maginty case will wait till afternoon, to be mulled over while you're losing your hard-earned salary at bridge with rich women."

"We don't play for high stakes," she corrected him. "Just a twentieth of a cent a point, though contract can run into money even at that. The winnings all go to the Forsyte Scholarship Fund. On Wednesday evenings the crowd plays for higher stakes—a tenth—and winners keepers. Therefore I can't afford to go, unless I sink so low as to let my escort pay my losses—which I sometimes do," she confessed, her brown head low for a moment.

"Is this Mrs. Pete Dunlap a deep-bosomed club woman, who starts Movements?" he asked, more to bring her out of her depression than anything else. "Bigger and Better Babies Movements, and Homes for Fallen Girls, and Little Theater Movement?"

The brown head flung itself up sharply, and the brown eyes hardened into bright pennies again. "Lois is the sweetest, finest, most comfortable woman in Hamilton, and I adore her—as does everyone else, Peter Dunlap hardly more than the rest of us. She is interested in a Little Theater for Hamilton, but she won't manage it. That's why she got hold of Nita Selim. Lois will simply put up barrels of money, without missing them, and give a grand job to a little Broadway gold-digger. Funny thing is, she really delights in Nita. Thinks she's sweet and has never had a real chance."

"And what do you think?" Dundee asked softly.

"Oh—I suppose I'm a cat, but I can see through her so clearly. Not that she's bad; she's simply an opportunist. She's awfully sweet and deferential and 'frank' with women, but with men—well, she simply tucks her head so that her black curls fall forward enchantingly, gives them one wistful smile out of her big eyes that are like black pansies and—the clink of slave chains! . . . Now go on and think I'm catty, which I suppose I am!"

Bonnie Dundee grinned at her reassuringly. Not for him to explain that practically all women and many men found themselves "gossiping" when he led them on adroitly, for reasons of his own. Which helped make him the excellent detective he was, of course.

"So all the men in your crowd have fallen for Nita Selim, have they?"

"Practically all, in varying degrees, except Peter Dunlap, who has never looked at another woman since he was lucky enough to get Lois, and Clive Hammond, who's engaged to Polly Beale," Penny answered reluctantly, her color high.

"Including your young man?"

"I haven't a 'young man,' in the sense of being engaged," Penny retorted, then added honestly: "I have been letting Ralph Hammond—that's Clive's brother, you know—take me about a good deal. . . . Ralph and Clive have plenty of money," she defended herself hastily. "They are architects, Clive being the head of the firm and Ralph, who hasn't been out of college so long, a junior partner. It was the Hmmond firm that drew up the plans for my father's Primrose Meadows Addition houses. He had our house built as a sort of show-place, you know, so that prospective builders out there could see how artistic a home could be put up for a moderate sum of money. But he didn't finish even that—left half the gabled top story unfinished, and Nita has been teasing Hugo to finish it up for her. It looks," she added with a shrug, "as if Nita will get what she wants—as usual."

"And Ralph has acquired a set of slave chains?" Dundee suggested, with just the slightest note of sympathy.

"And how!" Penny assured him grimly. "A simile as out of date as my clothes are going to be if I don't get some new ones soon. Not that the crowd minds what I wear," she added loyally. "I could dress up in a window drape—"

"And be just as charming as you are in that grand new party dress you have on now," Dundee finished for her gallantly.

"New!" Penny snorted and turned back to her desk in a futile effort to find something left undone.

Dundee ignored the rebuff. "How many suckers—I mean, how many gentlemen with moderate incomes actually built in Primrose Meadows?"

"You are inquisitive, aren't you? . . . None! Our house, or rather the one Nita Selim is living in now, is the only house on what used to be a big farm. . . . Why?"

"I was just wondering," Dundee said softly, almost absent-mindedly, "why the 'olvely Nita' chose so isolated a place in which to live, when Hamilton has rather a large number of 'For Rent' signs out just now. . . . By the way, know what time it is now? . . . Twenty to one. Get your hat on, young woman. I'm going to drive you out to Breakaway Inn."

"You're not! I'm going to take a bus. One runs from the Square right past the Inn," she told him firmly.

And just as firmly Dundee escorted her out of the almost deserted, rather dirty old courthouse to where his brand new sports roadster was awaiting them in the parking space devoted to the motors of those who officially served Hamilton county.

"I know why you want to drive me out to the Inn," Penny told him suddenly, as the proud owner maneuvered his car through Saturday noon traffic. "You want to see Nita Selim. Clank! Clank! I can hear the padlocks snapping on the slave chains right now."

"Meow!" Dundee retorted, then grinned down at her with as much comradely affection as if they had been friends for years instead of for a couple of hours. "Is Nita very small?" he added.

"Little enough to tuck herself under the arm of a man a lot shorter than you," Penny assured him with curious vehemence. "And if Penelope Crain is no mean prophet, that's exactly what she'll do within five minutes after she meets you—just as she is wistfully inviting you to join the other men for the cocktail party which is scheduled to break up the bridge game at 5:30. Then, of course, you'll be urged to join us all at the dinner-dance at the Country Club tonight."

"Will she?" Dundee pretended to be vastly intrigued, which caused the remainder of the drive to be a rather silent one, due to Penny's unresponsiveness.

Breakaway Inn was intensely Spanish in architecture and transplanted shrubbery, but its stucco walls were of a rather more violent raspberry color than is considered quite esthetic in Spain or Mexico.

"There's Lois Dunlap's car just driving up," Penny cried, her face softening with the adoration she had freely professed for her friend. But it clouded again almost instantly. "And Nita Selim."

As Dundee helped his new friend to alight his eyes were upon the two women being assisted by a uniformed chauffeur from Lois Dunlap's limousine.

In a moment the four were a laughing, exclamatory group.

"Oh, what a tall man you've got yourself, Penny darling!" the tiny, beautiful creature which could only be Mrs. Selim cried out happily. "May I meet him?"

"I shouldn't let you," Penny answered frankly, "but I will. . . . Mrs. Selim, Mr. Dundee. . . . And Mrs. Dunlap, Mr. Dundee. . . . How are you, Lois? And Peter and the brats?"

"All well, Penny. Petey's off on a week-end fishing trip, and not one of the brats has measles, scarlet fever or hay fever," Dundee heard Mrs. Dunlap say in the comfortable, affectionate voice that went with her comfortable, pleasant face and body. . . . Nice woman!

But his eyes were of necessity upon Nita Selim, for that miniature Venus was, as Penny had predicted, almost tucked under his arm by this time, her black-pansy eyes wide and wistful, her fine, soft black curls falling forward as she coaxed:

"You'll come to the cocktail party at my house at 5:30, won't you, Mr. Dundee?"

"Afraid I can't make it," Dundee smiled down at her. "I'm a busy man, Mrs. Selim. . . . You see, I'm Special Investigator attached to the District Attorney's office," he explained very deliberately.

"O-o-oh!" Nita Selim breathed. Then, step by step, she withdrew. And as she retreated, Dundee's keen eyes noted a hardening of the eyes, the sudden throbbing of a pulse in her very white neck. . . .

"No, don't mind about calling for me," Penny protested a moment later. "Ralph has already volunteered. . . . Thanks awfully!"

As Dundee backed out of the driveway his last glance was for a very small figure in a brown silk summer coat and palest yellow chiffon frock, slowly rejoining Penelope Crain and Lois Dunlap. What the devil had frightened her so? For she had been almost terrified. . . . Of course she might be one of those silly women who shudder at the sight of a detective, because they've smuggled in a diamond from Paris or a bottle of Bacardi from Havana.

But long before his car made the distance back to the city Dundee had shrugged off the riddle and was concentrating on all the facts he knew regarding the Maginty case. It was his first real assignment from Sanderson, and he was determined to make good.

Four hours later he was interrupted in his careful reading of the trial of Rufus Maginty by the ringing of the telephone bell. That made four times he had had to snap out the fact that District Attorney Sanderson was playing some well-earned golf at the Country Club, Dundee reflected angrily, as he picked up the receiver.

But the call was for him. And the voice on the other end of the wire was Penny Crain's, although almost unrecognizable.

"Speak more slowly, Penny!" Dundee urged. ' 'What's that again? . . . Good Lord! You say that Nita Selim—"

"My God!" he said slowly, blankly. "Of all things—murder at bridge!"

FIRST COTTON BLOOM

The first cotton bloom this season in the vicinity of Gilbert, has just been brought to the News-Star and Morning World office. It was grown by Perly Hill, a share cropper on the plantation of J. S. Gardner at Gilbert. Fifty acres are planted in cotton on this property and there are said to be a profusion of blooms. Mr. Gardner stated that he had found blooms as early as May 30.

SCORING RECORD SET AS YANKS WALLOP A'S, 17-11

MACKS SCORE 11 RUNS IN THIRD BUT LEAD FADES

Yanks Counter With 10-Run Rally in Fifth For Wild Victory

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—The Yankees and the Philadelphia Athletics set a season's record for scoring today as New York won out 17 to 11 in a mad exhibition of slugging.

Brown

The A's apparently put the game away as they sent 16 men to the plate and scored 11 runs in the third for the second biggest single inning this season.

Walter Brown, big recruit pitcher, stopped the Athletics dead in their tracks after that one big inning and the Yanks came back with one almost as big when they scored ten runs in the fifth. Babe Ruth topped off the afternoon's slugging by hitting his tenth home run of the season with two aboard in the eighth to tie Lou Gehrig, Wally Berger and Chuck Klein for the major league lead.

Tony Lazzeri started off the Yankees' deciding frame with his ninth homer of the season and Ben Chapman hit a circuit blow with Ruth and Gehrig on base to send the Yanks ahead.

EARNSHAW FINED AND SUSPENDED

Mack Punishes Pitcher For Failure To Get Into Condition

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—Connie Mack, tall leader of the Philadelphia Athletics, announced tonight he had suspended his star right handed pitcher, George Earnshaw, for ten days and fined him $500.

Mack said both actions were taken because of Earnshaw's "failure to get into condition."

"If he gets into shape in the next ten days I will reinstate him," Mack said, intimating at the same time that the suspension would be continued otherwise.

The Athletics' veteran manager and the big right hander have been at odds during a good part of the season. During the Athletics' recent western trip, Earnshaw was sent home from Detroit to "get himself into condition" although big George insisted there was nothing wrong with him.

Usually sharing the major share of the Athletics' pitching burden, with Robert Moses Grove, crack left-hander, Earnshaw has pitched only 41 innings for the Mackmen this season, winning two games and losing two.

Earnshaw's failure to come through, as a matter of fact, has left so glaring a weakness in the Athletics' pitching defense that Grove has been called off his starting duties to serve exclusively in relief roles. The wiry southpaw has pitched in nine of the Athletics' last 12 games, of which [illegible] have been won.

[illegible] have been frequent rumors that Earnshaw, as a result of his differences with the club, would be put on the trading block.

Muldoon, "Iron Duke" of Boxing, Dies of Cancer

By Stuart Cameron
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, June 3.—(U.P.)—William Muldoon, the man of iron, died today, a victim of cancer which sapped the strength of his once mighty body and dulled his will to live.

Famous as a conditioner of prominent men, Muldoon's latter day public renown came from his service as member of the New York state athletic commission.

An operation for cancer was performed 18 months ago by Dr. Joseph W. McCarthy of Post-Graduate hospital. The relief was, however, only temporary.

Three weeks ago Muldoon began to weaken perceptibly. Dr. Kelly began making daily visits, and allowed his patient few callers.

Muldoon passed his 88th birthday in a semi-stupor last May 25 and since had been conscious only a few hours at a time.

The big house where he died is a part of the widely known Muldoon health farm at Purchase, near White Plains in Westchester county.

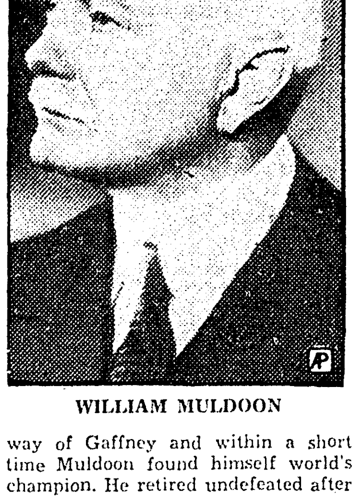
Visitors came away from Muldoon's home with tales of his amazing determination to keep young. But with the approach of warmer weather he suffered more and more from fatigue.

"Iron Duke" they called him, the benevolent despot of sport. He had presence, dignity, fire and imagination. Clean play was his creed, descipline his by-word.

Muldoon, who dominated the world of sports during the last quarter of the century, was born May 25, 1845, the son of a farmer, in Belfast, N. Y., as a boy of 17, he marched off to fight in the Civil war, and here Muldoon got his first taste of athletic competition.

"The officers in charge realized the value of some form of athletic diversion," Muldoon once said, "an so they picked out athletic-looking fellows from the ranks to teach wrestling."

After the war he came to New York and worked as a waiter and "bouncer." Then he joined the New York police force and within a few years was placed in charge of the department gymnasium. It was while one of the "finest" that he first attracted attention as a wrestler. He beat Jim Gaffney, champion wrestler of the "cops" with such ease that sporting men matched the new athletic wonder with Chris Bauer, a top-ranking wrestler of the day. Bauer went the way of Gaffney and within a short time Muldoon found himself world's champion. He retired undefeated after years of competition.



WILLIAM MULDOON

Muldoon turned to training boxers. Jack Dempsey, the nonpariel, John L. Sullivan and Kid McCoy, were among his charges.

As head of the New York state boxing commission, Muldoon had much to do with the popularization of the sport.

This was his fomula for leadership: "Courage, tenacity, a willingness to take punishment in order to give punishment—that's what makes a man a champion."

Perhaps one of the most spectacular events of his career was the dinner given in his honor on his 84th birthday. The dinner cost $85 per plate and attracted approximately 700 leaders in the world of sports, art and business.

On the occasion of this birthday an interviewer asked for a return visit the next year. Muldoon told the reporter he considered himself "too young" to submit to yearly interviews and made an appointment for 16 years later when he would have been 100.

WILD RED BERRY MEETS M'NAUGHT

Canadian Champion to Be Sent Out To Stop Kansan Thursday

Wild Red Berry, the "Kansas Panther" who made his local debut last Thursday night in the roughest match seen here since wrestling was revived, will meet Scotty McNaught, the Canadian middleweight champion, at Roosevelt stadium next Thursday night, Promoter Guy Owen announced last night.

Berry and McNaught will be featured in the main event and it will be best two out of three falls, without a time limit. Last week Berry and George Ligoski, another rough customer, battled 45 minutes, with each winning a fall. The time limit caught them before the third fall had been determined but no such occurance will hinder the two principals next Thursday.

Berry and Ligoski went at it with everything in their match, with apparently nothing barred. They hit with closed fists, gouged eyes, pulled hair, kicked, bit and scratched. Nothing Referee Georgie Sanders could do would make them cut out the rough stuff. Berry spent part of his time wrangling with the customers, until it looked as if somebody might set out after his scalp.

McNaught, who holds the Lord Lonsdale belt, hasn't been particularly rough in his previous appearances here. He has put on two fine wrestling exhibitions, showing a smooth style that the fans enjoyed. Just how he will fare against a wrestler of the Berry type remains to be seen. Scotty is husky enough to hold his own with just about anybody his weight and the match with the "Kansas Panther" should be interesting.

Owen said he expected to line up a strong supporting bout for the Berry-McNaught battle.

Hair to Meet Cason For City Tennis Title Today

George Hair, former northeast Louisiana champion, and L. D. "Supe" Cason will clash this afternoon for the city singles tennis championship in the final match of the Monroe invitational tennis tournament. The match will be played on the Forsythe park courts, starting at 3 o'clock.

Hair won the right to meet Cason, who defeated Elizabeth Kennedy Friday, by eliminating Darwin Nichols yesterday in a hard fought contest, 6-3, 6-0, 8-10, 6-4.

A sterling silver statuette will be awarded the winner of the tournament, while the runner-up will be given a number of tennis balls.

FREDERICK FIRST IN BATTING RACE

Brooklyn Slugger Regains National League Lead With .365

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—After yielding his place to Pepper Martin for about a week, Johnny Frederick of Brooklyn staged a batting comeback during the past week and regained first place among the National league's hitters. Johnny improved his mark only three points, from .362 up to .365 after Friday's games, but that was enough to outlast Martin and Pie Traynor of Pittsburgh, who has been about the most persistent rival Frederick has encountered.

Traynor remained right behind his Brooklyn rival, holding second place Friday with a .348 average while Martin skidded off to fifth, going from last week's .369 mark down to .344. Chuck Klein of the Phillies, still the leading long-distance hitter, moved up to third notch at .347, followed by his teammate, Virgil (Spud) Davis at .346.

Klein held his claims to the lead in four of the slugging departments with totals of 60 hits, 16 doubles, 10 home runs and 41 runs batted in. Another Phillie, Chick Fullis, equalled his hit total while Wally Berger of Boston tied for the home run lead.

Martin continued to lead in scoring with 35 runs and shared the base-stealing lead with Jake Flowers of Brooklyn, who pilfered three sacks in one game to reach the top. Two Pittsburghers, Paul Waner and Fred Lindstrom, continued to divide the other first place, having five triples each.

"The second division" of the list of leading hitters was closely grouped. Tied for sixth place were Gabby Hartnett of Chicago and Johnny Vergez of New York at .322, followed by Randy Moore, Boston, .321, and Wally Berger, Boston, and Jim Collins, St. Louis, at .320.

The youthful Leroy (Bud) Parmelee of New York lost his first game on the hill and dropped to second place among the flingers with four victories and one defeat. Tex Carleton of St. Louis returned to the lead with six games won and one lost.

Waterproof Tigers To Meet Delhi Team Next

WATERPROOF, June 3.—(Special)—Fresh from a 10 to 4 victory over the Olla team, the Waterproof Tigers will next engage the Delhi Bears. The game will be played in Waterproof.

The Tigers have obtained the services of several new players including Lefty Thaxton and Thornton, a catcher. Thaxton is a portsider and has been winning the majority of his games.

Douglas White elongated right-hander of the Tigers, has also been hurling many of the contests for the Bengals and is in fine form. The club is managed by Kit Parker.

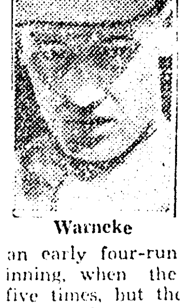
Enzor's Lions of Catahoula parish and will probably be opposed by Chief Henry Gaude, the veteran right-hander of the Redskins.

WARNEKE STOPS CARDS' STREAK

Stephenson and Hartnett Hit Homer to Beat Red Birds, 8-6

CHICAGO, June 3. — (AP) — Lonnie Warneke turned in his season's eighth victory today as the Cubs snapped the St. Louis Cardinals' seven game winning streak with an 8 to 6 victory in the series final.



Warneke

It was only the second defeat in the last 14 games for the first place Red Birds.

Handicapped by a two-base wild throw by Shortstop Billy Jurges, which led to three unearned St. Louis runs. Warneke lost an early four-run lead in the fifth inning, when the Cardinals scored five times, but the Cubs came right back with four more in their half of the fifth.

Home runs by Stephenson and Hartnett and a triple by Babe Herman featured the Chicagoans' four-run comeback in the fifth. It was the ninth circuit clout for the Cub catcher.

MR. DEMPSEY'S BOUT

Jack Dempsey makes his debut as a prize fight promoter in New York next Thursday night and from all indications, his Baer-Schmeling match will be a success, at least from an attendance standpoint. Dempsey has promoted boxing shows elsewhere but this is his first venture with a big attraction in the domain usually dominated by Madison Square Garden.

Schmeling

Aside from the Dempsey angle, the match may or may not be something to get excited about. According to the ballyhood, both principals are in "the pink" and each is ready to pound the other into submission.

Using old Paulino Uzcudun as a yard stick with which to measure Thursday's battlers, Schmeling should win. Baer and Uzcudun fought 20 rounds at Reno with the Basque taking the decision. Schmeling gave Uzcudun a sound thrashing when they met in a 15-round engagement. However, your first rank heavyweight fights so seldom that it's not logical to base your deductions entirely on his past record.

Baer has been something of a Maxie Rosenbloom of the heavyweights. He has carried his clownish antics into his training camps and whether or not he will discard the mantle of buffoonery before he climbs into the ring against the German remains to be seen. If he doesn't, he may find himself flat on his back before many rounds have passed. Baer is notoriously slow and if he takes time to mix in a little clowning with his serious work after the gong rings Thursday, he's due for a surprise.

On the other hand, Baer packs a tremendous punch. He will outweigh Schmeling and will enter the ring in perfect condition. He hasn't suffered a single cut or injury in his training routine and unless something happens between now and Thursday night, he will be in tiptop shape for the encounter. Schmeling will have to stay away from those roundhouse swings. If the former champion becomes careless, he may find a haymaker landing full on that chin of his.

When Baer and Schmeling began training several weeks ago, the German was a 6 to 1 favorite in the betting. The odds have been scaled down to five to four for Schmeling and there is a possibility that it will be an even money affair by Thursday. That indicates that either Baer has looked unusually impressive in his workouts or the Californian has been getting the breaks in the ballyhoo, thus making him appear a better fighter than he really is.

From this angle, it looks like Schmeling. True, he may run into one of those wild Baerish swings but if he uses his noodle, if any, he ought to come out of Mr. Dempsey's show with another victory to his credit.

THE VALLEY LOOP

The Ouachita Valley league is sailing along serenely, furnishing some good baseball for a half dozen towns in this section. Most of these towns had baseball last season but when the league was organized this spring, it gave the teams something besides a mere victory to shoot at. A championship, with a trophy as a reward, keeps a team hustling and the fans interested.

President Dent and his associates have adopted a sane policy this season and there will be no belated efforts to "buy a pennant" when the race gets hot. No team with a percentage above .333 will be allowed to strengthen its lineup. No players who have participated in professional baseball will be allowed on the roster.

The fans are seeing some close games, with the teams evenly matched as a whole. One or two teams have been lagging but there seems little chance for a runaway race, and that means sustained interest throughout the season.

These semi-pro leagues help baseball immeasurably and the Ouachita Valley deserves the splendid support it is receiving from fans throughout its territory.

MULDOON PASSES

Muldoon had long been one of the game's outstanding characters. He trained many of the famous battlers of the old era and it was he who choached John L. Sullivan to victory over Jake Kilrain at Richburg, Miss., just 44 years ago.

Sullivan was in bed, near death from typhoid fever but Muldoon nursed him back to health and took charge of his training activities. John L. was wobbly from illness but Muldoon set down a code of training rules and routine that gradually brought the Boston strong boy around to some sort of fighting shape and then set about to convince Sullivan that he really could beat Kilrain. History records that Muldoon's hardest task was to overcome his mental depression of Sullivan's. John L. won in 75 rounds but the victory belonged to Muldoon.

There are not enough Muldoons in boxing. The "iron duke" will be sadly missed.

AMERICAN DERBY TO MR. KHAYYAM

Head Play Thoroughly Beaten in Rich World's Fair Feature

CHICAGO, June 3.—(AP)—Galloping down the stretch before a World's fair crowd of 30,000 spectators, Mr. Khayyam, the big bay colt owned by J. M. Austin of Old Westbury, Long Island, N. Y., repeated his triumph over Head Play in the $25,000 added American Derby today, winning by himself.

Struggling 2 1-2 lengths back, came the Preakness winner, Head Play, thoroughly beaten. Fair Rochester, a 40 to 1 shot, finished a fast closing third, with Bamboula, one of the two fillies in the race, sharing in the rich purse by taking fourth place. In the wake of the leaders were Charley O., Gold Basis, Technique and Swinhaven. The original starting field of 10 was reduced to eight by withdrawal of Silent Shot and Sun Envoy.

By his victory, Mr. Khayyam convincingly demonstrated he is out for a bid for the 3-year-old championship of the American turf and that his triumph over Head Play at Jamaica two weeks ago was a performance of merit. Mr. Khayyam beat Head Play just as easily today as he did in the New York stake.

Under a perfect ride by Veteran Jockey Pete Walls, Mr. Khayyam galloped to victory in the mile and a quarter route in 2:04 1-5.

Going to the post second choice in the wagering, Mr. Khayyam returned $6.82 for a $2 bet in the mutuels, $3.28 to place and $3.58 to show. Place price of Head Play was $3.22, with $3.04 to show, while Fair Rochester paid $7.16 to show.

The race had a gross value of $28,416, with $23,416 going to Owner Austin along with a silver trophy. Mrs. Silas B. Mason of Richmond, Ky., who bought Head Play on the eve of the Kentucky Derby, received $3,000, while Lon Jones and Son of Louisville received $1,500 for Fair Rochester's efforts. A. A. Baroni, of Reno, Nevada, bagged $500 for Bamboula's feat in finishing fourth.

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—C. V. Whitney's Equipoise, holder of the American turf record of 1:34 2-5 for one mile, today won the 40th running of the Metropolitan mile at Belmont park. Mrs. Dodge Sloan's three-year-old Okapi was second and the Howe stables Scotch Gold, an added starter, third. Ten ran.

SOUTHERN LEAGUE

LOOKOUTS WALLOP BARONS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 3.—(AP)—Bill Hughes' ambition to run his string of consecutive victories to nine was blasted by a base hit barrage today as Chattanooga defeated Birmingham 14 to 3 and the Barons kept intact their record of dropping every Saturday engagement thus far this season. Monahan, Chattanooga first baseman, hits two home runs.

SWEATERS AWARDED

FERRIDAY, June 3.—(Special)—Sweaters were awarded to members of the senior class of the Ferriday high school who won the honors during the past year. Margaret Frances Wiseman and Ruth Wilgus received their awards and Ruby Drane was given a sweater to replace one stolen from her recently. The local school has adopted a policy of giving sweaters to seniors only.

VON ELM, FOULIS SHOOT 72'S FOR TIE AT ST. PAUL

By Paul Mickelson
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 3.—(AP)—A par shelling brigade laid down a heavy barrage of brilliant performances at Keller course today but the firing failed to dislodge George Von Elm, stubborn Teuton, and Jimmy Foulis of Chicago, from the lead in the $5,000 St. Paul open with their 36-hole records of 142.

Deadlocked yesterday with par-smashing 70's Von Elm and Foulis, a new comer to the tournament, matched each other again today with perfect 72's to keep even at the halfway mark in the battle for top money of $1,500. One shot behind them, riding in with a great 69, was Olin Dutra of Los Angeles, national professional chmapion.

Par was broken four times and equalled by seven others today as the notorious wind storm of Keller stayed away to give the golfers ideal playing conditions. Ed Dudley of Wilmington, Del., shot rounds of 33-35 for a 68 to jump from a tie for 27th yesterday into the running with a 36-hole total of 147. Neil White, University of Southern California sophomore, snared a 148. Pat Sawyer of Minneapolis, 19-year-old Minnesota amateur champion, was the fourth to rout par with a 71.

Archie Hambrick of Zanesville, O., who surprised the big field of Ryder Cup players and noted stars yesterday by taking third with a par 72, came right back with another perfect performance today for a 144, two behind the leaders. Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., and Dudley led the Ryder Cup stars five shots behind the pace setters with 147's. Captain Walter Hagen had a 73-75—148, while the fifth member of the team in competition here, Leo Diegel, fell definitely out of the picture with a total of 155.

Five listed 146 totals—Harry Cooper, Chicago; Len Mattson, the Keller pro; Lester Bolstad of St. Paul, former Big Ten champion; Ralph Guldahl, St. Louis, and Sam Parks, Jr., Uniontown, Pa. Johnny Revolta, young Menominee, Mich., star, was far back with 151, three better than Bobby Cruickshank, the wee Scot who now campaigns out of Richmond, Va.

Shooting the same steady but brilliant game that made him famous even before he deserted the amateur ranks to become golf's business man, Von Elm just breezed along to keep abreast with Foulis. He was so consistent that he shot even par on 16 holes. Foulis putted for birdies on every hole on the front nine, three-putted on the tenth and got the stroke back on 18 with a good putt.

Dutra, back on his happy hunting ground of golf where he beat the field for the national pro title last year, came to the final tee needing an impossible deuce on the par 5 hole to tie the leaders. His second shot nestled behind a bunker to the right of the green. As a gallery of 2,000 looked on, he hauled out his niblick, and sent the ball in the cup for an eagle three.

The final 36 holes will be played tomorrow.

TALLULAH PLAYS OAK GROVE TODAY

Big Six Leaders Tangle In Double Header This Afternoon

Tallulah travels to Oak Grove today to meet the league leading Lions in a doubleheader in the feature games of the Big Six Industrial league.

The two teams are old rivals and two hotly contested battles are expected at the West Carroll fair grounds this afternoon. While Oak Grove holds a big lead, Tallulah is still in the thick of the fight and a pair of victories for the Indians would tighten the race considerably. A large crowd is expected to witness the twin bill.

Monroe will forfeit two games to Bastrop. The games were scheduled to be played at Forsythe park but the Monroe club has not been reorganized and Manager Cary Phillips will be unable to put a team on the field. A definite decision concerning the future of the Monroe club will be made Monday. The club either will be continued here or the franchise transferred to Winnsboro.

It was announced yesterday by the league president that a protest of a game played between Tallulah and Bastrop at Tallulah recently had been upheld and that a part of the game must be played over when the two teams meet again. The protest arose over a decision made by the umpire.

Municipal Club Directors In Called Meeting Today

A called meeting of the board of directors of the Municipal Golf club will be held this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the club house, according to an announcement made last night by Lund Harper. All directors are urged to be present.

The municipal club's team will go to Crossett, Ark., next Sunday for a match with the Crossett golfers, Harper said.

MACKS SCORE 11 RUNS IN THIRD BUT LEAD FADES

Yanks Counter With 10-Run Rally in Fifth For Wild Victory

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—The Yankees and the Philadelphia Athletics set a season's record for scoring today as New York won out 17 to 11 in a mad exhibition of slugging.

Brown

The A's apparently put the game away as they sent 16 men to the plate and scored 11 runs in the third for the second biggest single inning this season.

Walter Brown, big recruit pitcher, stopped the Athletics dead in their tracks after that one big inning and the Yanks came back with one almost as big when they scored ten runs in the fifth. Babe Ruth topped off the afternoon's slugging by hitting his tenth home run of the season with two aboard in the eighth to tie Lou Gehrig, Wally Berger and Chuck Klein for the major league lead.

Tony Lazzeri started off the Yankees' deciding frame with his ninth homer of the season and Ben Chapman hit a circuit blow with Ruth and Gehrig on base to send the Yanks ahead.

EARNSHAW FINED AND SUSPENDED

Mack Punishes Pitcher For Failure To Get Into Condition

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—Connie Mack, tall leader of the Philadelphia Athletics, announced tonight he had suspended his star right handed pitcher, George Earnshaw, for ten days and fined him $500.

Mack said both actions were taken because of Earnshaw's "failure to get into condition."

"If he gets into shape in the next ten days I will reinstate him," Mack said, intimating at the same time that the suspension would be continued otherwise.

The Athletics' veteran manager and the big right hander have been at odds during a good part of the season. During the Athletics' recent ywestern trip, Earnshaw was sent home from Detroit to "get himself into condition" although big George insisted there was nothing wrong with him.

Usually sharing the major share of the Athletics' pitching burden with Robert Moses Grove, crack left-hander, Earnshaw has pitched only 41 innings for the Mackmen this season, winning two games and losing two.

Earnshaw's failure to come through, as a matter of fact, has left so glaring a weakness in the Athletics' pitching defense that Grove has been called off his starting duties to serve exclusively in relief roles. The wiry southpaw has pitched in nine of the Athletics' last 12 games, of which eight have been won.

There have been frequent rumors that Earnshaw, as a result of his differences with the club, would be put on the trading block.

Muldoon, "Iron Duke" of Boxing, Dies of Cancer

By Stuart Cameron
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, June 3.—(U.P.)—William Muldoon, the man of iron, died today, a victim of cancer which sapped the strength of his once mighty body and dulled his will to live.

Famous as a conditioner of prominent men, Muldoon's latter day public renown came from his service as member of the New York state athletic commission.

An operation for cancer was performed 18 months ago by Dr. Joseph W. McCarthy of Post-Graduate hospital. The relief was, however, only temporary.

Three weeks ago Muldoon began to weaken perceptibly. Dr. Kelly began making daily visits, and allowed his patient few callers.

Muldoon passed his 88th birthday in a semi-stupor last May 25 and since had been conscious only a few hours at a time.

The big house where he died is a part of the widely known Muldoon health farm at Purchase, near White Plains in Westchester county.

Visitors came away from Muldoon's home with tales of his amazing determination to keep young. But with the approach of warmer weather he suffered more and more from fatigue.

"Iron Duke" they called him, the benevolent despot of sport. He had presence, dignity, fire and imagination. Clean play was his creed, descipline his by-word.

Muldoon, who dominated the world of sports during the last quarter of the century, was born May 25, 1845, the son of a farmer, in Belfast, N. Y., as a boy of 17, he marched off to fight in the Civil war, and here Muldoon got his first taste of athletic competition.

"The officers in charge realized the value of some form of athletic diversion," Muldoon once said, "an so they picked out athletic-looking fellows from the ranks to teach wrestling."

After the war he came to New York and worked as a waiter and "bouncer." Then he joined the New York police force and within a few years was placed in charge of the department gymnasium. It was while one of the "finest" that he first attracted attention as a wrestler. He beat Jim Gaffney, champion wrestler of the "cops" with such ease that sporting men matched the new atheltic wonder with Chris Bauer, a top-ranking wrestler of the day. Bauer went the way of Gaffney and within a short time Muldoon found himself world's champion. He retired undefeated after years of competition.

WILLIAM MULDOON

As head of the New York state boxing commission, Muldoon had much to do with the popularization of the sport.

This was his fomula for leadership: "Courage, tenacity, a willingness to take punishment in order to give punishment—that's what makes a man a champion."

Perhaps one of the most spectacular events of his career was the dinner given in his honor on his 84th birthday. The dinner cost $85 per plate and attracted approximately 700 leaders in the world of sports, art and business.

On the occasion of this birthday an interviewer asked for a return visit the next year. Muldoon told the reporter he considered himself "too young" to submit to yearly interviews and made an appointment for 16 years later when he would have been 100.

WILD RED BERRY MEETS M'NAUGHT

Canadian Champion to Be Sent Out To Stop Kansan Thursday

Wild Red Berry, the "Kansas Panther" who made his local debut last Thursday night in the roughest match seen here since wrestling was revived, will meet Scotty McNaught, the Canadian middleweight champion, at Roosevelt stadium next Thursday night, Promoter Guy Owen announced last night.

Berry and McNaught will be featured in the main event and it will be best two out of three falls, without a time limit. Last week Berry and George Ligoski, another rough customer, battled 45 minutes, with each winning a fall. The time limit caught them before the third fall had been determined but no such occurance will hinder the two principals next Thursday.

Berry and Ligoski went at it with everything in their match, with apparently nothing barred. They hit with closed fists, gouged eyes, pulled hair, kicked, bit and scratched. Nothing Referee Georgie Sanders could do would make them cut out the rough stuff. Berry spent part of his time wrangling with the customers, until it looked as if somebody might set out after his scalp.

McNaught, who holds the Lord Lonsdale belt, hasn't been particularly rough in his previous appearances here. He has put on two fine wrestling exhibitions, showing a smooth style that the fans enjoyed. Just how he will fare against a wrestler of the Berry type remains to be seen. Scotty is husky enough to hold his own with just about anybody his weight and the match with the "Kansas Panther" should be interesting.

Owen said he expected to line up a strong supporting bout for the Berry-McNaught battle.

Hair to Meet Cason For City Tennis Title Today

George Hair, former northeast Louisiana champion, and L. D. "Supe" Cason will clash this afternoon for the city singles tennis championship in the final match of the Monroe invitational tennis tournament. The match will be played on the Forsythe park courts, starting at 3 o'clock.

Hair won the right to meet Cason, who defeated Elizabeth Kennedy Friday, by eliminating Darwin Nichols yesterday in a hard fought contest, 6-3, 6-0, 8-10, 6-4.

A sterling silver statuette will be awarded the winner of the tournament, while the runner-up will be given a number of tennis balls.

FREDERICK FIRST IN BATTING RACE

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—After yielding his place to Pepper Martin for about a week, Johnny Frederick of Brooklyn staged a batting comeback during the past week and regained first place among the National league's hitters. Johnny improved his mark only three points, from .362 up to .365 after Friday's games, but that was enough to outlast Martin and Pie Traynor of Pittsburgh, who has been about the most persistent rival Frederick has encountered.

Traynor remained right behind his Brooklyn rival, holding second place Friday with a .348 average while Martin skidded off to fifth, going from last week's .369 mark down to .344. Chuck Klein of the Phillies, still the leading long-distance hitter, moved up to third notch at .347, followed by his teammate, Virgil (Spud) Davis at .346.

Klein held his claims to the lead in four of the slugging departments with totals of 60 hits, 16 doubles, 10 home runs and 41 runs batted in. Another Phillie, Chick Fullis, equalled his hit total while Wally Berger of Boston tied for the home run lead.

Martin continued to lead in scoring with 35 runs and shared the base-stealing lead with Jake Flowers of Brooklyn, who pilfered three sacks in one game to reach the top. Two Pittsburghers, Paul Waner and Fred Lindstrom, continued to divide the other first place, having five triples each.

"The second division" of the list of leading hitters was closely grouped. Tied for sixth place were Gabby Hartnett of Chicago and Johnny Vergez of New York at .322, followed by Randy Moore, Boston, .321, and Wally Berger, Boston, and Jim Collins, St. Louis, at .320.

The youthful Leroy (Bud) Parmelee of New York lost his first game on the hill and dropped to second place among the flingers with four victories and one defeat. Tex Carleton of St. Louis returned to the lead with six games won and one lost.

Waterproof Tigers To Meet Delhi Team Next

WATERPROOF, June 3.—(Special)—Fresh from a 10 to 4 victory over the Olla team, the Waterproof Tigers will next engage the Delhi Bears. The game will be played in Waterproof.

The Tigers have obtained the services of several new players including Lefty Thaxton and Thornton, a catcher. Thaxton is a portsider and has been winning the majority of his games.

Douglas White elongated right-hander of the Tigers, has also been hurling many of the contests for the Bengals and is in fine form. The club is managed by Kit Parker.

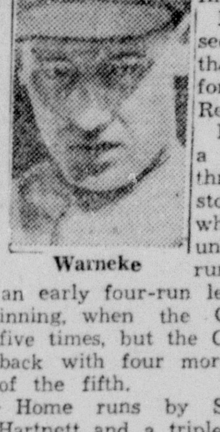
WARNEKE STOPS CARDS' STREAK

Stephenson and Hartnett Hit Homer to Beat Red Birds, 8-6

CHICAGO, June 3. — (AP) — Lonnie Warneke turned in his season's eighth victory today as the Cubs snapped the St. Louis Cardinals' seven game winning streak with an 8 to 6 victory in the series final.



Warneke

It was only the second defeat in the last 14 games for the first place Red Birds.

Handicapped by a two-base wild throw by Shortstop Billy Jurges, which led to three unearned St. Louis runs, Warneke lost an early four-run lead in the fifth inning, when the Cardinals scored five times, but the Cubs came right back with four more in their half of the fifth.

Home runs by Stephenson and Hartnett and a triple by Babe Herman featured the Chicagoans' four-run comeback in the fifth. It was the ninth circuit clout for the Cub catcher.

MR. DEMPSEY'S BOUT

Jack Dempsey makes his debut as a prize fight promoter in New York next Thursday night and from all indications, his Baer-Schmeling match will be a success, at least from an attendance standpoint. Dempsey has promoted boxing shows elsewhere but this is his first venture with a big attraction in the domain usually dominated by Madison Square Garden.

Schmeling

Aside from the Dempsey angle, the match may or may not be something to get excited about. According to the ballyhood, both principals are in "the pink" and each is ready to pound the other into submission.

Using old Paulino Uzcudun as a yard stick with which to measure Thursday's battlers, Schmeling should win. Baer and Uzcudun fought 20 rounds at Reno with the Basque taking the decision. Schmeling gave Uzcudun a sound thrashing when they met in a 15-round engagement. However, your first rank heavyweight fights so seldom that it's not logical to base your deductions entirely on his past record.

Baer has been something of a Maxie Rosenbloom of the heavyweights. He has carried his clownish antics into his training camps and whether or not he will discard the mantle of buffoonery before he climbs into the ring against the German remains to be seen. If he doesn't, he may find himself flat on his back before many rounds have passed. Baer is notoriously slow and if he takes time to mix in a little clowning with his serious work after the gong rings Thursday, he's due for a surprise.

On the other hand, Baer packs a tremendous punch. He will outweigh Schmeling and will enter the ring in perfect condition. He hasn't suffered a single cut or injury in his training routine and unless something happens between now and Thursday night, he will be in tiptop shape for the encounter. Schmeling will have to stay away from those roundhouse swings. If the former champion becomes careless, he may find a haymaker landing full on that chin of his.

When Baer and Schmeling began training several weeks ago, the German was a 6 to 1 favorite in the betting. The odds have been scaled down to five to four for Schmeling and there is a possibility that it will be an even money affair by Thursday. That indicates that either Baer has looked unusually impressive in his workouts or the Californian has been getting the breaks in the ballyhoo, thus making him appear a better fighter than he really is.

From this angle, it looks like Schmeling. True, he may run into one of those wild Baerish swings but if he uses his noodle, if any, he ought to come out of Mr. Dempsey's show with another victory to his credit.

THE VALLEY LOOP

The Ouachita Valley league is sailing along serenely, furnishing some good baseball for a half dozen towns in this section. Most of these towns had baseball last season but when the league was organized this spring, it gave the teams something besides a mere victory to shoot at. A championship, with a trophy as a reward, keeps a team hustling and the fans interested.

President Dent and his associates have adopted a sane policy this season and there will be no belated efforts to "buy a pennant" when the race gets hot. No team with a percentage above .333 will be allowed to strengthen its lineup. No players who have participated in professional baseball will be allowed on the roster.

The fans are seeing some close games, with the teams evenly matched as a whole. One or two teams have been lagging but there seems little chance for a runaway race, and that means sustained interest throughout the season.

These semi-pro leagues help baseball immeasurably and the Ouachita Valley deserves the splendid support it is receiving from fans throughout its territory.

MULDOON PASSES

Muldoon had long been one of the game's outstanding characters. He trained many of the famous battlers of the old era and it was he who choached John L. Sullivan to victory over Jake Kilrain at Richburg, Miss., just 44 years ago.

Sullivan was in bed, near death from typhoid fever but Muldoon nursed him back to health and took charge of his training activities. John L. was wobbly from illness but Muldoon set down a code of training rules and routine that gradually brought the Boston strong boy around to some sort of fighting shape and then set about to convince Sullivan that he really could beat Kilrain. History records that Muldoon's hardest task was to overcome his mental depression of Sullivan's. John L. won in 75 rounds but the victory belonged to Muldoon.

There are not enough Muldoons in boxing. The "iron duke" will be sadly missed.

AMERICAN DERBY TO MR. KHAYYAM

CHICAGO, June 3.—(AP)—Galloping down the stretch before a World's fair crowd of 30,000 spectators, Mr. Khayyam, the big bay colt owned by J. M. Austin of Old Westbury, Long Island, N. Y., repeated his triumph over Head Play in the $25,000 added American Derby today, winning by himself.

Struggling 2 1-2 lengths back, came the Preakness winner, Head Play, thoroughly beaten. Fair Rochester, a 40 to 1 shot, finished a fast closing third, with Bamboula, one of the two fillies in the race, sharing in the rich purse by taking fourth place. In the wake of the leaders were Charley O., Gold Basis, Technique and Swinhaven. The original starting field of 10 was reduced to eight by withdrawal of Silent Shot and Sun Envoy.

By his victory, Mr. Khayyam convincingly demonstrated he is out for a bid for the 3-year-old championship of the American turf and that his triumph over Head Play at Jamaica two weeks ago was a performance of merit. Mr. Khayyam beat Head Play just as easily today as he did in the New York stake.

Under a perfect ride by Veteran Jockey Pete Walls, Mr. Khayyam galloped to victory in the mile and a quarter route in 2:04 1-5.

Going to the post second choice in the wagering, Mr. Khayyam returned $6.82 for a $2 bet in the mutuels, $3.28 to place and $3.58 to show. Place price of Head Play was $3.22, with $3.04 to show, while Fair Rochester paid $7.16 to show.

The race had a gross value of $28,416, with $23,416 going to Owner Austin along with a silver trophy. Mrs. Silas B. Mason of Richmond, Ky., who bought Head Play on the eve of the Kentucky Derby, received $3,000, while Lon Jones and Son of Louisville received $1,500 for Fair Rochester's efforts. A. A. Baroni, of Reno, Nevada, bagged $500 for Bamboula's feat in finishing fourth.

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—C. V. Whitney's Equipoise, holder of the American turf record of 1:34 2-5 for one mile, today won the 40th running of the Metropolitan mile at Belmont park. Mrs. Dodge Sloan's three-year-old Okapi was second and the Howe stables Scotch Gold, an added starter, third. Ten ran.

LOOKOUTS WALLOP BARONS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 3.—(AP)—Bill Hughes' ambition to run his string of consecutive victories to nine was blasted by a base hit barrage today as Chattanooga defeated Birmingham 14 to 3 and the Barons kept intact their record of dropping every Saturday engagement thus far this season. Monahan, Chattanooga first baseman, hits two home runs.

Score by innings:
Chattanooga .....001 110 524—14 22 2
Birmingham ......300 000 000— 3 12 4

VOLS DEFEAT PELS

NEW ORLEANS, June 3.—(AP)—Nashville tied the score in the eighth inning with a four run rally and then added three more in the tenth here today to defeat the New Orlean Pelicans 9 to 6, and crept nearer the second place berth occupied by the Pells.

Score by innings:
Nashville ....000 002 040 3—9 11 0
New Orleans ...001 230 000 0—6 12 2

Speece, Reid and Baker; Perrin, Reddock, Galehouse and Autry.

CHICKS DOWN SMOKIES

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 3.—(AP)—Bill Rabb held the Chicks hitless until two were out in the sixth inning today, and then collapsed under a batting attack that caused his removal in the seventh, after the Chicks had accumulated eight hits. Memphis won, 7 to 1.

Score by innings:
Knoxville ....000 000 100—1 5 0
Memphis ....000 002 50x—7 9 2

Rabb, Doljack and Head; Griffin and O'Neil.

ROCKS BEAT CRACKERS

LITTLE ROCK, June 3.—(AP)—Little Rock made it two straight over Atlanta in tonight's game, battering out a 7 to 6 victory.

Score by innings: R. H. E.
Atlanta ....100 002 030— 6 8 3
Little Rock ....102 000 004— 7 15 5

SWEATERS AWARDED

FERRIDAY, June 3.—(Special)—Sweaters were awarded to members of the senior class of the Ferriday high school who won the honors during the past year. Margaret Frances Wiseman and Ruth Wilgus received their awards and Ruby Drane was given a sweater to replace one stolen from her recently. The local school has adopted a policy of giving sweaters to seniors only.

VON ELM, FOULIS SHOOT 72'S FOR TIE AT ST. PAUL

By Paul Mickelson
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 3.—(AP)—A par shelling brigade laid down a heavy barrage of brilliant performances at Keller course today but the firing failed to dislodge George Von Elm, stubborn Teuton, and Jimmy Foulis of Chicago, from the lead in the $5,000 St. Paul open with their 36-hole records of 142.

Deadlocked yesterday with par-smashing 70's Von Elm and Foulis, a new comer to the tournament, matched each other again today with perfect 72's to keep even at the halfway mark in the battle for top money of $1,500. One shot behind them, riding in with a great 69, was Olin Dutra of Los Angeles, national professional chmapion.

Par was broken four times and equalled by seven others today as the notorious wind storm of Keller stayed away to give the golfers ideal playing conditions. Ed Dudley of Wilmington, Del., shot rounds of 33-35 for a 68 to jump from a tie for 27th yesterday into the running with a 36-hole total of 147. Neil White, University of Southern California sophomore, snared a 148. Pat Sawyer of Minneapolis, 19-year-old Minnesota amateur champion, was the fourth to rout par with a 71.

Archie Hambrick of Zanesville, O., who surprised the big field of Ryder Cup players and noted stars yesterday by taking third with a par 72, came right back with another perfect performance today for a 144, two behind the leaders. Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., and Dudley led the Ryder Cup stars five shots behind the pace setters with 147's. Captain Walter Hagen had a 73-75—148, while the fifth member of the team in competition here, Leo Diegel, fell definitely out of the picture with a total of 155.

Five listed 146 totals—Harry Cooper, Chicago; Len Mattson, the Keller pro; Lester Bolstad of St. Paul, former Big Ten champion; Ralph Gudahl, St. Louis, and Sam Parks, Jr., Uniontown, Pa. Johnny Revolta, young Menominee, Mich., star, was far back with 151, three better than Bobby Cruickshank, the wee Scot who now campaigns out of Richmond, Va.

Shooting the same steady but brilliant game that made him famous even before he deserted the amateur ranks to become golf's business man, Von Elm just breezed along to keep abreast with Foulis. He was so consistent that he shot even par on 16 holes. Foulis putted for birdies on every hole on the front nine, three-putted on the tenth and got the stroke back on 18 with a good putt.

Dutra, back on his happy hunting ground of golf where he beat the field for the national pro title last year, came to the final tee needing an impossible deuce on the par 5 hole to tie the leaders. His second shot nestled behind a bunker to the right of the green. As a gallery of 2,000 looked on, he hauled out his niblick, and sent the ball in the cup for an eagle three.

The final 36 holes will be played tomorrow.

TALLULAH PLAYS OAK GROVE TODAY

Big Six Leaders Tangle In Double Header This Afternoon

Tallulah travels to Oak Grove today to meet the league leading Lions in a doubleheader in the feature games of the Big Six Industrial league.

The two teams are old rivals and two hotly contested battles are expected at the West Carroll fair grounds this afternoon. While Oak Grove holds a big lead, Tallulah is still in the thick of the fight and a pair of victories for the Indians would tighten the race considerably. A large crowd is expected to witness the twin bill.

Monroe will forfeit two games to Bastrop. The games were scheduled to be played at Forsythe park but the Monroe club has not been reorganized and Manager Cary Phillips will be unable to put a team on the field. A definite decision concerning the future of the Monroe club will be made Monday. The club either will be continued here or the franchise transferred to Winnsboro.

It was announced yesterday by the league president that a protest of a game played between Tallulah and Bastrop at Tallulah recently had been upheld and that a part of the game must be played over when the two teams meet again. The protest arose over a decision made by the umpire.

Municipal Club Directors In Called Meeting Today

A called meeting of the board of directors of the Municipal Golf club will be held this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the club house, according to an announcement made last night by Lund Harper. All directors are urged to be present.

The municipal club's team will go to Crossett, Ark., next Sunday for a match with the Crossett golfers, Harper said.

RECORDS FALL AS L. S. U. WINS A. A. U. TRACK MEET

TIGERS PILE UP BIG POINT TOTAL FOR TEAM TITLE

Torrance, Hardin Each Set Two New Marks At New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, June 3.—(AP)—Louisiana State university ran up the staggering total of 98 1-2 points here today to win the team championship of the annual Southern A. A. U., senior track and field meet. Several new southern records were established.

Loyola of New Orleans was second with 48 points and St. Aloysius of New Orleans third with 15. Other team standings were: New Orleans Athletic club, 13; Baton Rouge, La., [illegible]; Southwestern Louisiana institute, Lafayette, La., 6; Grammercy, La., 4, and Hattiesburg, Miss., 3-4. Independents ran up 18 points.

The giant Jack Torrance and Glenn "Slats" Hardin, both of L. S. U., set two new records each, and their teammates rolled up new marks in two other events.

Torrance tossed the shot 48 feet 3-4 inches to better the mark of 48 feet 3 3-8 inches set by Guy Nesom of Alexandria, a former L. S. U. athlete. His second record of the day was in the 56-pound weight, which he threw 32 feet 3 inches to beat the distance of 30 feet 10 3-4 inches established by Gilbert Ritchie of the Birmingham, Ala., Athletic club.

Hardin ran the 400 meters in 49 seconds flat to top his own mark of 49.2 seconds established last year. He was credited with his second record in the 220 meter low hurdles, which he stepped in 23.4 seconds, as this was the first year the event was run.

The day's best performance came in the javelin when Nathan Blair, of L. S. U., threw the spear 202 feet [illegible] 5-8 inches to better the record of 200 feet 2 inches set by Douglas Graydon of Little Rock, Ark. It was Blair's best toss of the year.

O'Neil of L. S. U., stepped the 800 meters in 1 minute 56.1 seconds, to slice more than a second off the mark of 1:57.6 set by George Leppert of Loyola.

Al Moreau of L. S. U., was credited with the sensational time of 14.6 seconds in the high hurdles, but the mark was disallowed because he knocked over a hurdle. John Morris of Lafayette, holder of the southern mark of 14.9 seconds, was right on Moreau's heels, and probably broke his own records, but the judges failed to time him.

STATE TOURNEY AT BATON ROUGE

Golfers Will Attempt To Wrest Title From McClure This Week

BATON ROUGE, La., June 3.—(AP)—Whether other good Louisiana golfers can prevent Edwin T. McClure, of Shreveport, from winning a third successive state title will be determined in the annual state golf tournament over the Westdale Country club course here June 7 to 11.

McClure, 1931 and 1932 champion, and state title winner four times in all, will head a strong field of competitors in the annual competition which will be held under supervision of the Louisiana Golf association.

Other Louisiana linksmen whose championship ambitions have been dampened more than once by the Shreveport player's consistent display of skill have been polishing up on their troublesome strokes for some time in determined hope of dethroning him.

Warm competition is expected to be furnished by such players as Fred Odom and Al Reuning, winners respectively of the 1933 and 1932 New Orleans city championships; Ray Bradford of Alexandria; Bobby Anderson, Baton Rouge city champion; Jimmy Lacombe and Mickman Greene, former Baton Rouge city champions, and Vance Liddell, Louisiana State university golf team captain.

The tournament will start with qualifying play Wednesday, June 7, and first round matches in all flights will begin Thursday at 8 a.m. and second round matches of all flights and first round consolation matches will be held Friday.

Saturday morning will be devoted to third round matches in all flights, second round competition in the consolation groups, and the afternoon to the championship flight semi-finals, the second flight final, the championship consolation semi-finals, and the finals of all consolation flights.

The championship finalists will play 18 holes Sunday morning and 18 holes in the afternoon for the title.

The championship consolation flight final match is set for Sunday morning.

By Edward J. Neil
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, June 3.—There's a suspicion among the experts and the fans alike that Max Schmeling's fifteen round duel with Max Baer in the Yankee stadium Thursday night, June 8, may wind up closest to a two-man riot the ring has seen since the Dempsey-Firpo brawl.

Already his ticket sales are approaching $100,000. It seems possible, with the weather favoring, that the first major heavyweight battle of the season will lure at least 60,000 to the American league ball park with total receipts edging the $300,000 mark.

Experts and public have in the last few days given the odds to Schmeling, champion and ex-champion all in the space of two years and two fights with Jack Sharkey. He is seemingly a strong 2 to 1 favorite.

Both the boxers are young—Baer 24, Schmeling 27. Between them they pack most of the hitting power left in a heavyweight crop gone to seed. Both are aggressive, walloping fighters. Schmeling is cool, crowding, deadly accurate. Baer is a big, rollicking youngster who snorts and growls and heaves punches with both hands, contemptuous of punishment.

Methodical Schmeling is the most feared heavyweight of the day. Never far from perfect condition, he has worked himself easily to the peak at Lake Swannonoa in New Jersey and he seems today to box a bit smarter, block punches better and hit just as hard as ever. He drives his left straight to the head with the accuracy of a needle threader. His right hand smash is the deadliest punch the heavyweights boast. It knocked out out Johnny Risko, Young Stribling, Mickey Walker and cut Paulino Uzcudun's face badly.

Baer, magnificent 200-pound, curly headed youngster, seems to scorn defense, one of the chief reasons for the odds in favor of the accurate German. Baer has never been flattened but his record is spotty.

But in the past two years he has waded through the outstanding heavyweights with the exception of Jack Sharkey, Primo Carnera and Schmeling. Two 20-round bouts in Reno under Dempsey's promotion, one a victory over Levinsky, the other a defeat by Pauline, have steadied him somewhat. Potentially he seems to be the strongest, most colorful heavyweight since Dempsey's day.

The easiest wager the gamblers are eager to make is that the fight won't go fifteen rounds. It is generally expected that the winner will be the next heavyweight champion of the worlld, capable of beating either the ageing Sharkey, or the ponderous Carnera, who meet in title battle here June 29.

Here's how Thursday's warriors compare physically:

Schmeling		Baer

WACO TRIMS SENATORS

BATON ROUGE, La., June 3.—(AP)—Five hit pitching by Devaney, ace of the Waco ball club, stopped the winning stride of Baton Rouge's Senators 4 to 1 here today in the series opener. The Solons nicked Devaney for one unearned run. George Cox of Baton Rouge hurled well for six innings but weakened toward the close.

Score by innings:

		R	H	E
Waco	100 000 201—4		9	1
Baton Rouge	000 010 000—1		5	3

Devaney and Avinger; Cox and Krauss.

JACKSON BEATS TYLER

PINE BLUFF, Ark., June 3.—(AP)—McDaniels' home run in the last half of the ninth inning, scoring two men ahead of him, gave Jackson a 9 to 8 victory over Tyler in the first game of a two game series here. The series was transferred here as Sunday baseball is not permitted at Jackson.

The score:

Tyler ....100 020 023—8 9 0
Jackson ....030 000 033—9 15 3

SPORTS BLANK LONGVIEW

SHREVEPORT, June 3.—(AP)—Shreveport blanked Longview's Dixie league entry 7 to 0 here today. Gill held the Texans to seven hits, while Shreveport was pounding Taylor for 10. Shreveport's big inning was the seventh, in which three runs were scored.

The score:

SENATORS BEAT SOX

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—With the lead changing hands five times, the Washington Senators today made it two out of three over the Boston Red Sox by banging out 12 hits for an 8 to 5 victory.

The Nationals took kindly to the offerings of Lloyd Brown, a former teammate, and pounded him off the hill in the fourth inning when they went into the lead for the third time. Brown yielded eight hits.

Earl Whitehill for Washington was faring but little better, Boston having tied the score in the fifth on a homer by Jolley and placed men on first and second in the sixth, before he was relieved by Russell.

In the sixth the Senators scored two runs to win by means of a walk to Cronin, a single by Schulte and a three-base muff of Kuhel's long fly by Jolley. Doubles by Goslin and Cronin in the eighth gave Washington its final run.

Shreveport Boy Advances In Jackson Net Tourney

JACKSON, Miss., June 3.—(AP)—Milton Rudy of Shreveport, Louisiana prep champ, clashes with Billy Simpson of Greenville, Miss., Sunday morning for the right to oppose Ramsey Potts of Memphis, southern prep titleholder, in the finals Sunday afternoon of the junior singles division in the Mississippi open tennis championships.

The play of Potts dominated the picture today and tomorrow he will play in the finals of both doubles and singles.

Potts won four matches straight in singles and in the doubles waded with his partner, Dick Dunlap, also of Memphis, through two rounds of competition to enter the finals against John Noblin of Jackson and John Graeber of Yazoo City. Though Potts had to play eight sets of tennis in his one-day drive to the finals, he polished off most opponents easily and is the favorite tonight to become a double crown-wearer Sunday.

REDS BEAT BUCS TWICE

PITTSBURGH, June 3.—(AP)—Jack Quinn went to the rescue of the Cincinnati Reds today and pushed the Pittsburgh Pirates down to a tie with New York for third place in the standings.

After the Reds won the first, 9 to 5, Pittsburgh threatened in the ninth inning of the second game by scoring three runs. Quinn relieved Kolp in the box and retired the side to give Cincinnati the victory, 5 to 4.

Jim Bottomley connected with a single, double and triple to drive in six of his team's nine runs in the first game.

HODAPP LEADS IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

CHICAGO, June 3.—(AP)—Urban (Johnny) Hodapp, the Boston Red Sox's second baseman, apparently has become the hitter he was expected to be when he broke into the American league several years ago.

Traded to the Chicago White Sox by Cleveland last year and sent by the Sox to Boston, Hodapp finally hit his stride and according to semi-official figures which include Friday's games was the league's leading hitter with an average of .374. During the past week he belted the pitching for 12 hits and replaced Sam West of St. Louis at the top of the list.

West, after two weeks of inactivity due to an injury, lost 18 points and slipped to fourth place behind Ben Chapman of the Yankees and Al Simmons of the White Sox.

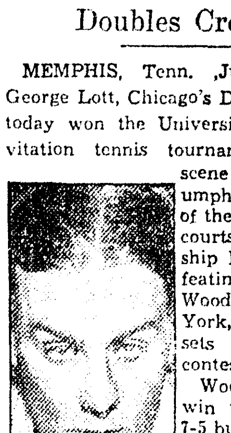
While the other boys were fighting for top position in the averages, Lou Gehrig of the Yankees retained the leadership in two departments and took over another. He had 10 home runs and had scored 36 times, and in addition passed Simmons in total bases by running his collection to 90. Simmons remained as the leader in base hits with 59, nine more than he had a week ago.

Luke Appling, Chicago's young shortstop, moved out ahead of Jimmy Foxx of the Athletics in batting in runners, having propelled in 35. The rest of the individual leaderships remained in the same hands. Earl Combs of New York had seven triples; Earl Averill of Cleveland 15 two base hits, and Gerald Walker, Detroit outfielder, six stolen bases.

LOTT WINS TITLE BY BEATING WOOD

Wood and Sutter Defeat Lott and Vines For Doubles Crown

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 3.—(AP)—George Lott, Chicago's Davis cup star, today won the University club's invitation tennis tournament at the scene of his triumph in the finals of the national clay courts championship last year, defeating Sidney B. Wood, Jr., of New York, after four sets of bitterly-contested tennis.



Lott

Wood rallied to win the third set, 7-5 but the Chicago master of the fore court seemed assured of victory from the start, although he had to fight for every point.

His trips to the net for volley after volley drew frequent applause from a gallery of three thousand. The final score was 6-4, 6-3, 5-7, 6-2.

Ellsworth Vines, national champion, suffered his second setback of the tournament when he and Lott lost the doubles championship fight to Wood and Cliff Sutter of New Orleans. Wood and Sutter won, 2-6, 7-5, 7-5 in a finals match, reduced to three sets by agreement, due to the lateness of the hour.

The blond New Yorker, Wood, who eliminated Vines in the singles semi-finals yesterday, fought Lott on even terms for the first eight games of the first set until Lott broke through his service to win 6-4. Lott added the next one, 6-3, playing steady, almost unbeatable tennis.

The Chicago lad followed up his advantage in the third set and led at 5-4, when at match point. Wood made a rally that won the admiration of the crowd. He came up to 5-all, and won the set, 7-5. Lott began the fourth set aggressively, going to a 4-2 lead. From that time on, Wood's hopes faded, for the Chicago star had a service advantage and made the most of it. He added two sets in rapid succession, to win the deciding set, 6-2.

Wood, linked with Cliff Sutter of New Orleans, won a semi-final doubles match a little later, defeating Robert (Lefty) Bryan of Chattanooga and Berkeley Bell of New York, 6-4, 6-3.

After a brief rest, Vines and Lott met Wood and Sutter for the doubles championship.

Lott and Vines won the first set of the doubles finals, 6-2. This match, too, was reduced to a best two out of three basis.

Sutter and Wood won the second set, 7-5.

The third and deciding set went to Sutter and Wood after a struggle in which the advantage constantly shifted from one team to the other. Vines and Lott were favored to win, and were seeded number one in the doubles draw. The two teams were 5-all in games when the New Orleans-New York combination forged ahead to win.

IT'S FIELD AGAINST VINSON AT JACKSON

LAUREL, Miss., June 3—(AP)—Because he has won two amateur and two open titles in a row, Gene Vinson of Meridian has assumed so outstanding a position in Mississippi golf that other competitors in the annual tournament beginning here Wednesday have as their motto "The Field Against Vinson."

There is nothing vindictive in the "league" being formed against the Meridian boy. Everything will be done in strict good feeling and above board. But the boys, young and old, large and small, are "laying" for Vinson. If the Lauderdale county comet wants to wear his third straight amateur crown, he will have to shoot his very best golf to get it.

That spirit is being openly expressed here as a few of the players who [illegible] will be demanded in New Orleans for highly important business conferences Tuesday and Wednesday, play their qualifying rounds Sunday and Monday.

There will be less than a dozen of these and the bulk of the entries will shoot qualifying rounds next Wednesday. Match play starts Thursday and will be doubled up to bring the finals Saturday.

Vinson, accompanied by another Meridian flash, Hunter George Weddington, has been playing the local course frequently the past few weeks and it is no secret that he has had trouble with his long tee shots rolling off the turtle-backed fairways. This gives strength to the belief that Vinson will be hard-pressed to win the four 18-hole matches he must face before reaching the finals.

Weddington is one of the younger players who will be threats to Vinson. Maynard Craft of Jackson, 1931 runner-up to Gene, is another.

RECORDS FALL AS L. S. U. WINS A. A. U. TRACK MEET

Torrance, Hardin Each Set Two New Marks At New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, June 3.—(AP)—Louisiana State university ran up the staggering total of 98 1-2 points here today to win the team championship of the annual Southern A. A. U., senior track and field meet. Several new southern records were established.

Loyola of New Orleans was second with 48 points and St. Aloysius of New Orleans third with 15. Other team standings were: New Orleans Athletic club, 13; Baton Rouge, La., ; Southwestern Louisiana institute, Lafayette, La., 6; Grammercy, La., 4, and Hattiesburg, Miss., 3-4. Independents ran up 18 points.

The giant Jack Torrance and Glenn "Slats" Hardin, both of L. S. U., set two new records each, and their teammates rolled up new marks in two other events.

Torrance tossed the shot 48 feet 3-4 inches to better the mark of 48 feet 3 3-8 inches set by Guy Nesom of Alexandria, a former L. S. U. athlete. His second record of the day was in the 56-pound weight, which he threw 32 feet 3 inches to beat the distance of 30 feet 10 3-4 inches established by Gilbert Ritchie of the Birmingham, Ala., Athletic club.

Hardin ran the 400 meters in 49 seconds flat to top his own mark of 49.2 seconds established last year. He was credited with his second record in the 220 meter low hurdles, which he stepped in 23.4 seconds, as this was the first year the event was run.

The day's best performance came in the javelin when Nathan Blair, of L. S. U., threw the spear 202 feet 5-8 inches to better the record of 200 feet 2 inches set by Douglas Graydon of Little Rock, Ark. It was Blair's best toss of the year.

O'Neil of L. S. U., stepped the 800 meters in 1 minute 56.1 seconds, to slice more than a second off the mark of 1:57.6 set by George Leppert of Loyola.

Al Moreau of L. S. U., was credited with the sensational time of 14.6 seconds in the high hurdles, but the mark was disallowed because he knocked over a hurdle. John Morris of Lafayette, holder of the southern mark of 14.9 seconds, was right on Moreau's heels, and probably broke his own records, but the judges failed to time him.

STATE TOURNEY AT BATON ROUGE

Golfers Will Attempt To Wrest Title From McClure This Week

BATON ROUGE, La., June 3.—(AP)—Whether other good Louisiana golfers can prevent Edwin T. McClure, of Shreveport, from winning a third successive state title will be determined in the annual state golf tournament over the Westdale Country club course here June 7 to 11.

McClure, 1931 and 1932 champion, and state title winner four times in all, will head a strong field of competitors in the annual competition which will be held under supervision of the Louisiana Golf association.

Other Louisiana linksmen whose championship ambitions have been dampened more than once by the Shreveport player's consistent display of skill have been polishing up on their troublesome strokes for some time in determined hope of dethroning him.

Warm competition is expected to be furnished by such players as Fred Odom and Al Reuning, winners respectively of the 1933 and 1932 New Orleans city championships; Ray Bradford of Alexandria; Bobby Anderson, Baton Rouge city champion; Jimmy Lacombe and Hickman Greene, former Baton Rouge city champions, and Vance Liddell, Louisiana State university golf team captain.

The tournament will start with qualifying play Wednesday, June 7, and first round matches in all flights will begin Thursday at 8 a.m. and second round matches of all flights and first round consolation matches will be held Friday.

Saturday morning will be devoted to third round matches in all flights, second round competition in the consolation groups, and the afternoon to the championship flight semi-finals, the second flight final, the championship consolation semi-finals, and the finals of all consolation flights.

The championship finalists will play 18 holes Sunday morning and 18 holes in the afternoon for the title.

The championship consolation flight final match is set for Sunday morning.

By Edward J. Neil

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, June 3.—There's a suspicion among the experts and the fans alike that Max Schmeling's fifteen round duel with Max Baer in the Yankee stadium Thursday night, June 8, may wind up closest to a two-man riot the ring has seen since the Dempsey-Firpo brawl.

Already his ticket sales are approaching $100,000. It seems possible, with the weather favoring, that the first major heavyweight battle of the season will lure at least 60,000 to the American league ball park with total receipts edging the $300,000 mark.

Experts and public have in the last few days given the odds to Schmeling, champion and ex-champion all in the space of two years and two fights with Jack Sharkey. He is seemingly a strong 2 to 1 favorite.

Both the boxers are young—Baer 24, Schmeling 27. Between them they pack most of the hitting power left in a heavyweight crop gone to seed. Both are aggressive, walloping fighters. Schmeling is cool, crowding, deadly accurate. Baer is a big, rollicking youngster who snorts and growls and heaves punches with both hands, contemptuous of punishment.

Methodical Schmeling is the most feared heavyweight of the day. Never far from perfect condition, he has worked himself easily to the peak at Lake Swannonoa in New Jersey and he seems today to box a bit smarter, block punches better and hit just as hard as ever. He drives his left straight to the head with the accuracy of a needle threader. His right hand smash is the deadliest punch the heavyweights boast. It knocked out out Johnny Risko, Young Stribling, Mickey Walker and cut Paulino Uzcudun's face badly.

Baer, magnificent 200-pound, curly headed youngster, seems to scorn defense, one of the chief reasons for the odds in favor of the accurate German. Baer has never been flattened but his record is spotty.

But in the past two years he has waded through the outstanding heavyweights with the exception of Jack Sharkey, Primo Carnera and Schmeling. Two 20-round bouts in Reno under Dempsey's promotion, one a victory over Levinsky, the other a defeat by Pauline, have steadied him somewhat. Potentially he seems to be the strongest, most colorful heavyweight since Dempsey's day.

The easiest wager the gamblers are eager to make is that the fight won't go fifteen rounds. It is generally expected that the winner will be the next heavyweight champion of the worlld, capable of beating either the ageing Sharkey, or the ponderous Carnera, who meet in title battle here June 29.

Here's how Thursday's warriors compare physically:

WACO TRIMS SENATORS

BATON ROUGE, La., June 3.—(AP)—Five hit pitching by Devaney, ace of the Waco ball club, stopped the winning stride of Baton Rouge's Senators 4 to 1 here today in the series opener. The Solons nicked Devaney for one unearned run. George Cox of Baton Rouge hurled well for six innings but weakened toward the close.

Score by innings:

Waco ....100 000 201—4 9 1
Baton Rouge ......000 010 000—1 5 3

Devaney and Avinger; Cox and Krauss.

JACKSON BEATS TYLER

PINE BLUFF, Ark., June 3.—(AP)—McDaniels' home run in the last half of the ninth inning, scoring two men ahead of him, gave Jackson a 9 to 8 victory over Tyler in the first game of a two game series here. The series was transferred here as Sunday baseball is not permitted at Jackson.

The score:

Tyler ....100 020 023—8 9 0
Jackson ....030 000 033—9 15 3

SPORTS BLANK LONGVIEW

SHREVEPORT, June 3. — (AP) — Shreveport blanked Longview's Dixie league entry 7 to 0 here today. Gill held the Texans to seven hits, while Shreveport was pounding Taylor for 10. Shreveport's big inning was the seventh, in which three runs were scored.

The score:

Longview ....000 000 000—0 7 4
Shreveport ....201 100 30x—7 10 0

Taylor and Cox; Gill and Tresh.

LIONS DEFEAT OILERS

EL DORADO, Ark., June 3.—(AP)—El Dorado snapped a three-game losing streak by defeating Henderson 3 to 2 here tonight.

El Dorado cut short an Oiler rally in the ninth inning with a double play, after the score had been tied. Errors contributed to Henderson's loss.

Score by innings:

Henderson ....010 000 001—2 8 4
El Dorado ....110 000 001—3 7 3

McPhaul and Moore; Edwards and Coleman.

VIDALIA PLAYS FERRIDAY

FERRIDAY, June 3. — (Special) — Two left-handers, Parker Lewis, of the Ferriday Black Cats, and Roy Dickson of the Vidalia Tigers, will be on the mound for the Tigers and the Cats Sunday afternoon when the clubs meet for the first time this year at the Fisher field. The left-handers will have all-star casts supporting them and fans of this locality are expecting to see the best game of the present season when the age-old rivals of the diamond meet.

SENATORS BEAT SOX

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—With the lead changing hands five times, the Washington Senators today made it two out of three over the Boston Red Sox by banging out 12 hits for an 8 to 5 victory.

The Nationals took kindly to the offerings of Lloyd Brown, a former teammate, and pounded him off the hill in the fourth inning when they went into the lead for the third time. Brown yielded eight hits.

Earl Whitehill for Washington was faring but little better, Boston having tied the score in the fifth on a homer by Jolley and placed men on first and second in the sixth, before he was relieved by Russell.

In the sixth the Senators scored two runs to win by means of a walk to Cronin, a single by Schulte and a three-base muff of Kuhel's long fly by Jolley. Doubles by Goslin and Cronin in the eighth gave Washington its final run.

Shreveport Boy Advances In Jackson Net Tourney

JACKSON, Miss., June 3.—(AP)—Milton Rudy of Shreveport, Louisiana prep champ, clashes with Billy Simpson of Greenville, Miss., Sunday morning for the right to oppose Ramsey Potts of Memphis, southern prep titleholder, in the finals Sunday afternoon of the junior singles division in the Mississippi open tennis championships.

The play of Potts dominated the picture today and tomorrow he will play in the finals of both doubles and singles.

Potts won four matches straight in singles and in the doubles waded with his partner, Dick Dunlap, also of Memphis, through two rounds of competition to enter the finals against John Noblin of Jackson and John Graeber of Yazoo City. Though Potts had to play eight sets of tennis in his one-day drive to the finals, he polished off most opponents easily and is the favorite tonight to become a double crown-wearer Sunday.

REDS BEAT BUCS TWICE

PITTSBURGH, June 3.—(AP)—Jack Quinn went to the rescue of the Cincinnati Reds today and pushed the Pittsburgh Pirates down to a tie with New York for third place in the standings.

After the Reds won the first, 9 to 5, Pittsburgh threatened in the ninth inning of the second game by scoring three runs. Quinn relieved Kolp in the box and retired the side to give Cincinnati the victory, 5 to 4.

Jim Bottomley connected with a single, double and triple to drive in six of his team's nine runs in the first game.

CHICAGO, June 3.— (AP) —Urban (Johnny) Hodapp, the Boston Red Sox's second baseman, apparently has become the hitter he was expected to be when he broke into the American league several years ago.

Traded to the Chicago White Sox by Cleveland last year and sent by the Sox to Boston, Hodapp finally hit his stride and according to semi-official figures which include Friday's games was the league's leading hitter with an average of .374. During the past week he belted the pitching for 12 hits and replaced Sam West of St. Louis at the top of the list.

West, after two weeks of inactivity due to an injury, lost 18 points and slipped to fourth place behind Ben Chapman of the Yankees and Al Simmons of the White Sox.

While the other boys were fighting for top position in the averages, Lou Gehrig of the Yankees retained the leadership in two departments and took over another. He had 10 home runs and had scored 36 times, and in addition passed Simmons in total bases by running his collection to 90. Simmons remained as the leader in base hits with 59, nine more than he had a week ago.

Luke Appling, Chicago's young shortstop, moved out ahead of Jimmy Foxx of the Athletics in batting in runners, having propelled in 35. The rest of the individual leaderships remained in the same hands. Earl Combs of New York had seven triples; Earl Averill of Cleveland 15 two base hits, and Gerald Walker, Detroit outfielder, six stolen bases.

LOTT WINS TITLE BY BEATING WOOD

Wood and Sutter Defeat Lott and Vines For Doubles Crown

MEMPHIS, Tenn. June 3.—(AP)—George Lott, Chicago's Davis cup star, today won the University club's invitation tennis tournament at the scene of his triumph in the finals of the national clay courts championship last year, defeating Sidney B. Wood, Jr., of New York, after four sets of bitterly-contested tennis.

Lott

Wood rallied to win the third set, 7-5 but the Chicago master of the fore court seemed assured of victory from the start, although he had to fight for every point.

His trips to the net for volley after volley drew frequent applause from a gallery of three thousand. The final score was 6-4, 6-3, 5-7, 6-2.

Ellsworth Vines, national champion, suffered his second setback of the tournament when he and Lott lost the doubles championship fight to Wood and Cliff Sutter of New Orleans. Wood and Sutter won, 2-6, 7-5, 7-5 in a finals match, reduced to three sets by agreement, due to the lateness of the hour.

The blond New Yorker, Wood, who eliminated Vines in the singles semi-finals yesterday, fought Lott on even terms for the first eight games of the first set until Lott broke through his service to win 6-4. Lott added the next one, 6-3, playing steady, almost unbeatable tennis.

The Chicago lad followed up his advantage in the third set and led at 5-4, when at match point, Wood made a rally that won the admiration of the crowd. He came up to 5-all, and won the set, 7-5. Lott began the fourth set aggressively, going to a 4-2 lead. From that time on, Wood's hopes faded, for the Chicago star had a service advantage and made the most of it. He added two sets in rapid succession, to win the deciding set, 6-2.

Wood, linked with Cliff Sutter of New Orleans, won a semi-final doubles match a little later, defeating Robert (Lefty) Bryan of Chattanooga and Berkeley Bell of New York, 6-4, 6-3.

After a brief rest, Vines and Lott met Wood and Sutter for the doubles championship.

Lott and Vines won the first set of the doubles finals, 6-2. This match, too, was reduced to a best two out of three basis.

Sutter and Wood won the second set, 7-5.

The third and deciding set went to Sutter and Wood after a struggle in which the advantage constantly shifted from one team to the other. Vines and Lott were favored to win, and were seeded number one in the doubles draw. The two teams were 5-all in games when the New Orleans-New York combination forged ahead to win.

IT'S FIELD AGAINST VINSON AT JACKSON

LAUREL, Miss., June 3.—(AP)—Because he has won two amateur and two open titles in a row, Gene Vinson of Meridian has assumed so outstanding a position in Mississippi golf that other competitors in the annual tournament beginning here Wednesday have as their motto "The Field Against Vinson."

There is nothing vindictive in the "league" being formed against the Meridian boy. Everything will be done in strict good feeling and above board. But the boys, young and old, large and small, are "laying" for Vinson. If the Lauderdale county comet wants to wear his third straight amateur crown, he will have to shoot his very best golf to get it.

That spirit is being openly expressed here as a few of the players whose presence will be demanded in New Orleans for highly important business conferences Tuesday and Wednesday, play their qualifying rounds Sunday and Monday.

There will be less than a dozen of these and the bulk of the entries will shoot qualifying rounds next Wednesday. Match play starts Thursday and will be doubled up to bring the finals Saturday.

Vinson, accompanied by another Meridian flash, Hunter George Weddington, has been playing the local course frequently the past few weeks and it is no secret that he has had trouble with his long tee shots rolling off the turtle-backed fairways. This gives strength to the belief that Vinson will be hard-pressed to win the four 18-hole matches he must face before reaching the finals.

Weddington is one of the younger players who will be threats to Vinson. Maynard Craft of Jackson, 1931 runner-up to Gene, is another.

MODERN METHODS UTILIZED BY WEIL

Fourth and Stubbs Cleaning Establishment Stresses Service

D. B. Weil, owner of Weil Cleaners, is one of the progressive merchants who is participating in the campaign to popularize Fourth and Stubbs as a community shopping center for residents of the north side.

Knowing that satisfied customers are the best advertisers for any business, Weil Cleaners takes a personal pride in perfecting each order entrusted to them. Weil Cleaners holds membership in the National Association of Dyers and Cleaners, who maintain a constant research of fabrics and cleaning methods and their customers benefit as a result of this research.

Weil Cleaners maintains pickup and delivery service and three cash and carry stores, one of which is located at Fourth and Stubbs. At the present time, this firm is featuring men's summer wash suits, their method being such as to give special attention to individual stains, especially those around the cuff and pockets. Through the use of a low titre soap, which does not require extremely warm water, any tendency of shrinkage of summer wash suits is minimized.

Missing buttons are replaced and minor repairs are made without any additional charge.

Fourth and Stubbs is the ideal shopping center for residents of the north side of Monroe. There is plenty of parking space and the merchants who are cooperating in this campaign are all progressive and maintain modern establishments.

Cooperating merchants are, besides Mr. Weil, the North Side Pharmacy, Mitchell Denoux, manager; Sparco Service Station, whose manager is Clyde Hatten; Sur-Wa Store No. 5, Buddy Burford, manager, and the North Side Barber shop, owned by J. B. Glass.

Two Extension Classes Are Organized at Clarks

RUSTON, La., June 3.—(Special)—Two classes to be conducted under the auspices of the Louisiana Tech extension division have been organized at Clarks, it has been announced here.

One of the courses will be a study of the English essay, taught by Madison Hall of the Tech English department. This course will deal with a study of the historical development of the essay in English and American literature.

The other class will study the principles and elements of sociology, and will be taught by D. G. Armstrong, director of the Tech extension division. This course is designed to aid students in observing social phenomena and in recording their observations.

Both of these classes already have been organized at Clarks and will meet for the first time at 3 p.m. Wednesday, June 7, in the Clarks high school building.

These classes will meet regularly at 3 p.m. on Wednesdays and Fridays for a period of six weeks. The classes will be conducted for two hours at a time.

CLEANER

D. B. Weil, owner of Weil Cleaners, is cooperating with four other progressive north side merchants in popularizing Fourth and Stubbs as a shopping center. Mr. Weil maintains a branch at Fourth and Stubbs and is making a specialty this month of men's summer wash suits.

TRAVEL BY BUS IS ECONOMICAL

Interurban Transportation Co. Offers Dependable Service

Travel by motor coach is both economical and pleasant and the Interurban Transportation company offers dependable schedules, experienced drivers and courteous service, plus luxurious, comfortable parlor car coaches.

The Interurban Transportation company operates complete bus service to all points. Their own lines extend as far south as Baton Rouge and Lake Charles, while their two northernmost points are Monroe and Shreveport. However, convenient connections are available, thus giving their patrons fast through service to and from any point in the nation.

For instance, three coaches are operated each way between Monroe and Alexandria. The schedules are arranged so that Interurban buses leave and arrive at convenient hours. The trip from Monroe to Alexandria is a most pleasant drive, in comfortable parlor coaches and over paved roads. There is no dirt or dust and there are no hot, stuffy coaches to contend with. In fact, a trip by bus in the summer time is delightful.

Travel by Interurban motor coaches provides a real saving for patrons. Fares are most reasonable, with round trip rates available at all times and special excursion fares in effect from time to time.

Travel by Interurban bus is absolutely safe and dependable. Travelers will save money if they will consult an Interurban Transportation company agent or driver when planning a trip.

Wounded Fugitive Sought After Burglary Attempt

NEW ORLEANS, June 3.—(AP)—Police today sought a white burglar believed to have been wounded when he was routed from a downtown residence early today by shots fired by Mrs. Peter Haley, 61.

Mrs. Haley said she fired two shots at the man and believed one of them wounded him. The intruder fled in the darkness after making an outcry.

HOME IS BURNED

MARION, La., June 3.—(Special)—The dwelling of Albert B. Welch, five miles south of here, was completely destroyed by fire about noon Friday, the fire originating from sparks falling on the roof. At the time of the fire, only Mrs. Welch and the children were at home, and the relief crew, working near the residence, upon discovering the fire, attempted to remove the household effects, but the fire had gained such headway that it was impossible to remove but little of the furniture. The loss was not covered by insurance.

ALVIS ANNOUNCES SUMMER SPECIAL

Reduced Rates for Permanent Guests Go Into Effect Again

Effective immediately, the Alvis hotel is offering specially reduced summer rates to permanent guests, according to an announcement yesterday by Ernest C. Gibson, popular manager of the hotel.

The Alvis has rooms arranged singly and en suite, every room having a bath, telephone and ceiling fan. In other words, the Alvis offers complete modern hotel service.

This is following the same policy introduced by Mr. Gibson in Monroe last summer, at which time several families found it cheaper, more comfortable and convenient to live on the cool upper floors of the Alvis than in cottages and apartments here in town during the hot summer months.

Mr. Gibson and his corps of able assistants insist on personal service at the Alvis and guests are assured that every effort will be made to insure their comfort.

In connection with the Alvis hotel, there is operated the Alvis Coffee shop, featuring regular meals and a la carte service, at which a family can live as cheap or cheaper than they could cook at home.

Mr. Gibson will be glad to furnish details to anyone who will come down and inspect his offering, or an appointment can be arranged by calling phone 2990.

CHEVROLET CARS SHOW LARGE GAIN

Car and Truck Registration Far Exceeds Second Place Make

Registrations of new Chevrolet passenger cars and trucks in the first quarter this year accounted for 37.2 per cent of the total of the industry and exceeded the combined registrations of the next three leading makes, a statement released yesterday by the Chevrolet Motor company announced, according to Jack Rogers of the Lee-Rogers Chevrolet company, local dealers.

In the three months Chevrolet titled 96,621 new units as compared with 47,509 new cars and trucks for the second-place make, 29,823 for the third, and 14,354 for the four-place holder, another General Motors car in a higher price range than the first three, the statement read.

Of Chevrolet's total registrations for the first quarter, 14,278 were truck units representing 45.5 per cent of all trucks registered by the industry in the period. The total compares with 7,956 trucks titled by the second leading manufacturer, it was claimed.

Every one of the first three months shows a surprisingly uniform number of Chevrolet registrations, the banking situation in late February and March neutralizing the normal seasonal upturn at that time. In January, Chevrolet registered 34,809 units, in the shorter month of February 30,441 and in March with its banking troubles, 31,371.

In the first quarter the industry registered 259,376 new units in the domestic market. Chevrolet's percentage of 37.2 of the total compares with 35.7 in the same period last year, the statement observed.

Mrs. Melvin Thomas Is Slightly Improved

The condition of Mrs. Melvin Thomas of Winnfield, was reported slightly improved at the Clinic here last night. Physicians said, however, that she was "still very critically ill."

Mrs. Thomas was brought here from Winnfield a week ago last night for an emergency operation.

In its first six weeks the Knoxville, Tenn., barter exchange gave work to 100 jobless on 130 jobs and sold or swapped $500 worth of goods.

HOTEL OWNER

E. C. Gibson, owner and manager of the Alvis hotel, yesterday announced that special summer rates for permanent guests would again be in effect at the Alvis this summer. Mr. Gibson believes in personal service for each guest and has built up a large patronage at the Alvis.

URGES PURCHASE OF KELVINATORS

St. John Electric Co., Quotes Statement Of Manufacturer

The right time to buy a Kelvinator is now, according to Harry A. St. John proprietor of St. John Electric company, 243 South Grand street. The St. John Electric company sells, services and guarantees this popular electric refrigerator.

The rising commodity prices indicate that there will be a general advance all along the line, according to Mr. St. John.

"There is no doubt of the superiority of the Kelvinator," Mr. St. John said yesterday. "We believe we can convince any prospective purchaser that the best electric refrigerator is the Kelvinator. And a recent statement issued by the Kelvinator corporation of Detroit, concerning the market, is significant."

Following is the statement:

"Commodity prices are advancing. Copper, zinc, lead, tin, rubber and other materials used in a Kelvinator, have increased from 22 to 63 per cent since Kelvinator announced the present low prices.

"Washington says that all wages must be raised. Buying power must be restored. This can only mean a general rise in commodity prices. The industrial emergency bill gives the president power to carry out this program. And already, the president has the authority to raise prices by the inflation of our currency. It is doubtful if this generation will ever again see prices as low as they are today.

"Electric refrigeration prices are too low. This is particularly true of Kelvinator—because Kelvinator prices apply to standard, full-quality 1933 Kelvinator merchandise. Kelvinator did not bring out "cheap" models—built down to a low price. The R-42, which now sells for $97 installed, plus freight is full-sized, full-powered, full-value—a standard 1933 model. And it's the same throughout the entire line.

"Although we announced our prices would be increased when material costs went up, so far we have not had to do so. But, even the rigid economies effected in manufacturing would not have prevented an increase if it had not been for the tremendous volume of business during the past two months.

"In April more than 30,000 Kelvinators were shipped—the largest month's business in Kelvinator's 19 years in the industry. And May has established another new all-time record for Kelvinator shipments for surpassing that of the previous month.

"Prices have not been raised—so far."

WALTERS TO HOLD FORMAL OPENING

Radio Owners Invited To Inspect Modern Store Wednesday

Lloyd Walters recently moved his radio service and repair shop to larger quarters at 402 Wood street and will hold "open house" Wednesday. Mr. Walters has invited radio owners of Monroe and West Monroe to visit and inspect his new shop at any hour Wednesday until 9 p. m.

The Walters shop has the most complete radio equipment of any shop in north Louisiana and Mr. Walters is prepared to handle any radio job, large or small. He has a complete stock of radio tubes and accessories.

The shop is offering at present some sensational bargains in General Motors receiving sets. These are brand new receivers and are being sold at a fraction of their original price. Each set carries both the General Motors and the Walters guarantee. Mr. Walters also is authorized agent for United Motors automobile radio sets. He also carries a complete stock of Westinghouse mazda lamps.

Mr. Walters has maintained a radio service shop in Monroe for four years and his business has grown from a modest beginning to its present size. His many satisfied customers, for whom he has rendered first class work, have made possible the phenominal growth of this progressive radio shop.

Mr. Walters recently passed an examination whereby he becomes a member of the official Radio Service Men's association, the only member of this group of technicians in this territory. He also is official technician for Scott laboratory-built radio receivers, one of the highest type of radio receiving sets manufactured.

Mr. Walters will be glad to inspect receivers for radio owners and furnish an estimate of the cost of proposed repairs. This inspection is made without cost or obligation. The Walters repair shop is located at 402 Wood street and Mr. Walters may be reached by calling phone 463.

TRAVEL BY BUS IS ECONOMICAL

Interurban Transportation Co. Offers Dependable Service

Travel by motor coach is both economical and pleasant and the Interurban Transportation company offers dependable schedules, experienced drivers and courteous service, plus luxurious, comfortable parlor car coaches.

The Interurban Transportation company operates complete bus service to all points. Their own lines extend as far south as Baton Rouge and Lake Charles, while their two northernmost points are Monroe and Shreveport. However, convenient connections are available, thus giving their patrons fast through service to and from any point in the nation.

For instance, three coaches are operated each way between Monroe and Alexandria. The schedules are arranged so that Interurban buses leave and arrive at convenient hours. The trip from Monroe to Alexandria is a most pleasant drive, in comfortable parlor coaches and over paved roads. There is no dirt or dust and there are no hot, stuffy coaches to contend with. In fact, a trip by bus in the summer time is delightful.

Travel by Interurban motor coaches provides a real saving for patrons. Fares are most reasonable, with round trip rates available at all times and special excursion fares in effect from time to time.

Travel by Interurban bus is absolutely safe and dependable. Travelers will save money if they will consult an Interurban Transportation company agent or driver when planning a trip.

Wounded Fugitive Sought After Burglary Attempt

NEW ORLEANS, June 3.—(AP)—Police today sought a white burglar believed to have been wounded when he was routed from a downtown residence early today by shots fired by Mrs. Peter Haley, 61.

Mrs. Haley said she fired two shots at the man and believed one of them wounded him. The intruder fled in the darkness after making an outcry.

HOME IS BURNED

MARION, La., June 3.—(Special)—The dwelling of Albert B. Welch, five miles south of here, was completely destroyed by fire about noon Friday, the fire originating from sparks falling on the roof. At the time of the fire, only Mrs. Welch and the children were at home, and the relief crew, working near the residence, upon discovering the fire, attempted to remove the household effects, but the fire had gained such headway that it was impossible to remove but little of the furniture. The loss was not covered by insurance.

ALVIS ANNOUNCES SUMMER SPECIAL

Effective immediately, the Alvis hotel is offering specially reduced summer rates to permanent guests, according to an announcement yesterday by Ernest C. Gibson, popular manager of the hotel.

The Alvis has rooms arranged singly and en suite, every room having a bath, telephone and ceiling fan. In other words, the Alvis offers complete modern hotel service.

This is following the same policy introduced by Mr. Gibson in Monroe last summer, at which time several families found it cheaper, more comfortable and convenient to live on the cool upper floors of the Alvis than in cottages and apartments here in town during the hot summer months.

Mr. Gibson and his corps of able assistants insist on personal service at the Alvis and guests are assured that every effort will be made to insure their comfort.

In connection with the Alvis hotel, there is operated the Alvis Coffee shop, featuring regular meals and a la carte service, at which a family can live as cheap or cheaper than they could cook at home.

Mr. Gibson will be glad to furnish details to anyone who will come down and inspect his offering, or an appointment can be arranged by calling phone 2990.

CHEVROLET CARS SHOW LARGE GAIN

Car and Truck Registration Far Exceeds Second Place Make

Registrations of new Chevrolet passenger cars and trucks in the first quarter this year accounted for 37.2 per cent of the total of the industry and exceeded the combined registrations of the next three leading makes, a statement released yesterday by the Chevrolet Motor company announced, according to Jack Rogers of the Lee-Rogers Chevrolet company, local dealers.

In the three months Chevrolet titled 96,621 new units as compared with 47,509 new cars and trucks for the second-place make, 29,823 for the third, and 14,354 for the four-place holder, another General Motors car in a higher price range than the first three, the statement read.

Of Chevrolet's total registrations for the first quarter, 14,278 were truck units representing 45.5 per cent of all trucks registered by the industry in the period. The total compares with 7,956 trucks titled by the second leading manufacturer, it was claimed.

Every one of the first three months shows a surprisingly uniform number of Chevrolet registrations, the banking situation in late February and March neutralizing the normal seasonal upturn at that time. In January, Chevrolet registered 34,809 units, in the shorter month of February 30,441 and in March with its banking troubles, 31,371.

In the first quarter the industry registered 259,376 new units in the domestic market. Chevrolet's percentage of 37.2 of the total compares with 35.7 in the same period last year, the statement observed.

Mrs. Melvin Thomas Is Slightly Improved

The condition of Mrs. Melvin Thomas of Winnfield, was reported slightly improved at the Clinic here last night. Physicians said, however, that she was "still very critically ill."

Mrs. Thomas was brought here from Winnfield a week ago last night for an emergency operation.

In its first six weeks the Knoxville, Tenn., barter exchange gave work to 100 jobless on 130 jobs and sold or swapped $500 worth of goods.

URGES PURCHASE OF KELVINATORS

St. John Electric Co., Quotes Statement Of Manufacturer

The right time to buy a Kelvinator is now, according to Harry A. St. John proprietor of St. John Electric company, 243 South Grand street. The St. John Electric company sells, services and guarantees this popular electric refrigerator.

The rising commodity prices indicate that there will be a general advance all along the line, according to Mr. St. John.

"There is no doubt of the superiority of the Kelvinator," Mr. St. John said yesterday. "We believe we can convince any prospective purchaser that the best electric refrigerator is the Kelvinator. And a recent statement issued by the Kelvinator corporation of Detroit, concerning the market, is significant."

Following is the statement:

"Commodity prices are advancing. Copper, zinc, lead, tin, rubber and other materials used in a Kelvinator, have increased from 22 to 63 per cent since Kelvinator announced the present low prices.

"Washington says that all wages must be raised. Buying power must be restored. This can only mean a general rise in commodity prices. The industrial emergency bill gives the president power to carry out this program. And already, the president has the authority to raise prices by the inflation of our currency. It is doubtful if this generation will ever again see prices as low as they are today.

"Electric refrigeration prices are too low. This is particularly true of Kelvinator—because Kelvinator prices apply to standard, full-quality 1933 Kelvinator merchandise. Kelvinator did not bring out "cheap" models—built down to a low price. The R-42, which now sells for $97 installed, plus freight is full-sized, full-powered, full-value—a standard 1933 model. And it's the same throughout the entire line.

"Although we announced our prices would be increased when material costs went up, so far we have not had to do so. But, even the rigid economies effected in manufacturing would not have prevented an increase if it had not been for the tremendous volume of business during the past two months.

"In April more than 30,000 Kelvinators were shipped—the largest month's business in Kelvinator's 19 years in the industry. And May has established another new all-time record for Kelvinator shipments for surpassing that of the previous month.

"Prices have not been raised—so far."

WALTERS TO HOLD FORMAL OPENING

Radio Owners Invited To Inspect Modern Store Wednesday

Lloyd Walters recently moved his radio service and repair shop to larger quarters at 402 Wood street and will hold "open house" Wednesday. Mr. Walters has invited radio owners of Monroe and West Monroe to visit and inspect his new shop at any hour Wednesday until 9 p. m.

The Walters shop has the most complete radio equipment of any shop in north Louisiana and Mr. Walters is prepared to handle any radio job, large or small. He has a complete stock of radio tubes and accessories.

The shop is offering at present some sensational bargains in General Motors receiving sets. These are brand new receivers and are being sold at a fraction of their original price. Each set carries both the General Motors and the Walters guarantee. Mr. Walters also is authorized agent for United Motors automobile radio sets. He also carries a complete stock of Westinghouse mazda lamps.

Mr. Walters has maintained a radio service shop in Monroe for four years and his business has grown from a modest beginning to its present size. His many satisfied customers, for whom he has rendered first class work, have made possible the phenominal growth of this progressive radio shop.

Mr. Walters recently passed an examination whereby he becomes a member of the official Radio Service Men's association, the only member of this group of technicians in this territory. He also is official technician for Scott laboratory-built radio receivers, one of the highest type of radio receiving sets manufactured.

Mr. Walters will be glad to inspect receivers for radio owners and furnish an estimate of the cost of proposed repairs. This inspection is made without cost or obligation. The Walters repair shop is located at 402 Wood street and Mr. Walters may be reached by calling phone 463.

Cotton

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, June 3.—(AP)—The cotton market was active in the short session today and prices reacted about $1 a bale net after early steadiness.

Liverpool was closed for the Whitsuntide holidays but sterling showed a good advance. As a result the opening here was steady with initial trades 3 to 7 points up. The market improved somewhat after the start on firm stocks, July trading up to 9.23, October to 9.45 and December to 9.60, or 5 to 7 points above yesterday's close.

Later. the market turned easy on a break in stocks, weakness in other commodity markets, good weather in the cotton belt and considerable hedging against Red Cross cotton. As a result, prices dropped rather sharply, July to 8.94, October to 9.20 and December to 9.36. down 24 to 29 points from the early highs.

The market rallied one to three points at the end on some week-end covering and closed steady at net declines for the day of 18 to 20 points.

Exports for the day were 29,746 bales.

ORLEANS SPOT COTTON

NEW ORLEANS. June 3.—(AP)—Spot cotton closed steady 19 points down. Sales 640; low middling 8.46; middling 8.96; good middling 9.36.

Receipts 2,703; stock 936,834.

New York

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—A decline of about $1 per bale in cotton today was attributed to active liquidation following reports from Washington which tended to increase uncertainty regarding acreage reduction possibilities.

July contracts broke to 8.98 while December sold off to 9.41, making net losses of 20 to 21 points on active positions and a reaction of about 42 to 44 points from the high prices of last Wednesday.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—Stocks heavy; brisk profit-taking. Bonds firm; U. S. governments steady. Curb irregular; industrials, specialties strong. Foreign exchanges steady; changes narrow. Cotton lower, local and southern selling; favorable weather. Sugar and coffee closed.

CHICAGO.—Wheat lower; bearish Washington reports. Corn easy; favorable weather. Cattle nominally steady. Hogs: Fully steady, active, top $5.05.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, June 3.—(AP)—Downturns in grain values early today followed reports that some provisions of the farm relief act would not be applied to this year's wheat crop. Opening unchanged to 1-2 off, wheat afterward sagged all around. Corn also started unchanged to 1-2 down, and then underwent a general setback.

Wheat closed nervous, 1 3-8 to 1 5-8 under yesterday's finish, corn 1-2 to 3-4 down, oats 1-8 to 1-2 off, and provisions unchanged to 20 cents decline.

New York Stocks

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—Financial markets stumbled over profit-taking barriers today and price declines were general in both stocks and staples. Late rallying efforts in leading shares retrieved some of the earlier losses, but the close was rather heavy. Trading volume was unusually large, transactions approximating 3,800,000 shares.

The stock market started off at a fast pace, blocks of 1,000 to 12,000 shares changing hands. Losses of 1 to 3 or more points were suffered by leading issues following their climb yesterday to the highest levels since 1931. Rails and utilities resisted for a while, but they too, slid off when supporting orders in other divisions failed to bring any substantial recovery.

Wheat, corn and cotton dropped with stocks and bar silver lost 1-8 of a cent at 35 1-2 cents an ounce. Wheat declines approximated a cent and corn eased around 1-2 a cent. Cotton was particularly heavy, losing 90 cents to $1.30 a bale. Bonds were fairly steady, although some of the more speculative loans were a trifle reactionary. Foreign exchanges were comparatively steady.

Stocks apparently ignored the report on freight car loadings for the week ended May 27, which showed an advance of 9.691 over the previous week to a total of 541,309, or 20,060 ahead of the similar week in 1932. The increase in traffic, however, was about according to previous estimates.

Shares losers of 1 to around 3 points included American Can, Corn Products, U. S. Steel, Drug, Chrysler, Santa Fe, McIntyre Porcupine, Anaconda, American Telephone, Westinghouse, Montgomery Ward, Case, DuPont, Consolidated Gas, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Delaware & Hudson, Union Pacific, American Tobacco B, New York Central and Sears Roebuck. Allied Chemical steadied and National Distillers and Loew's rallied.

The financial district was especially interested in the overnight news from Washington on the close vote by which the senate finance committee favored the industries control feature of the administration's national recovery bill. While this feature was retained, the fact that the committee voted to eliminate the provision giving the president licensing power over industries was the subject of much discussion in the banking sector.

At the same time speculative enthusiasm appeared slightly dampened by a financial ticker report from the capital that the administration was closely watching the trend of prices on the stock exchange here with the view that the recent movement on shares and commodities has been unusually rapid. This dispatch intimated that some steps might be taken to warn against speculative frenzy which would tend to put share and commodity prices out of bounds and thus interfere with the government's plans for a steady and sound recovery.

General business and trade news continued favorable for the market. Steel and electric power output were showing resistance to seasonal declines and automobile production was at its top level for the year.

TECH RECEIVES COTTON SAMPLES

To Be Used During Short Course In Grading And Stapling

RUSTON, June 3.—(Special)—About 5,000 samples of all types and grades of cotton have been received at Louisiana Tech to be used in a short course in cotton grading and stapling, R. L. Reese, head of the Tech agriculture department, has announced.

The short course will be held at Tech from July 3 to 29. Instruction will be given by C. E. Killingsworth of the bureau of agricultural economics of the United States department of agriculture.

Reese stated that he already has received about 50 inquiries regarding the cotton grading course. The course will be open to any white person interested in learning how to grade and staple cotton correctly, regardless of whether the person is a cotton grower, buyer, college student, or any other individual.

At the close of the course, a certificate showing that the work has been done will be awarded to those who have met the requirements as to attendace and proficiency in the work. College credit towards graduation in the agricultural course will be available to college students. It is planned to give an examination for federal license in cotton grading at the end of the course.

The work will consist chiefly of actual practice in grading and stapling the samples of cotton under the supervision of instructors. Lectures and demonstrations will be given as needed, but no textbook will be required, Reese said.

The classes will be divided into two groups. One will meet from 9 to 12 a. m. and the other from 1 to 4 p. m., it has been announced. Students may take the work with both groups without additional cost. The tuition will be not more than $10 or less than $8, depending upon how many enroll.

Reduced living costs at Tech this summer will be available to those attending the cotton grading course.

The first short course in cotton grading and stapling at Louisiana Tech was held here last summer. Following are the persons who were enrolled at that time:

Frank W. Buckley, Mooringsport; N. A. Clinton, Clay; C. E. Colvin, Jr., Ruston; T. D. Colvin, Dubach; J. N. Compton, Farmerville; D. M. Cooper, Marthaville; J. M. Edmiston, Ruston; Fred Farrar, Ruston; W. J. Frank, Dubach; W. A. Grafton, Marion; William Haynes, Minden; R. F. Henry, Dubach; Claude C. Jones, Rayville; J. C. Lewis, Dubach; O. R. Liverman, Vivian.

Burt Lomax, Ruston; Dallas Lomax, Ruston; Ed McCallum, Ruston; Joe Marsalis, Homer; Dave C. Mickie, Mer. Rouge; Bennie Moncrief, Ruston; Lue M. Nappier, Simsboro; R. M. Schelling, Oak Grove; J. V. Sizemore, Choudrant; A. C. Smith, Atlanta, Texas; Luther Smith, Atlanta, Texas; Thomas L. Smith, Dubach; Don Spencer, Clay; M. R. Standifer, St. Joseph; Paul Van Dalsem, Aplin, Ark.; J. E. Woodward, Ruston; and William Otis Woodward, Dubach.

Baby Clinics Are Being Sponsored In Claiborne

HOMER, June 3.—(Special)—The home demonstration council and Claiborne parish health unit are sponsoring a series of baby clinics for preschool children to be held in the various communities of the parish. The first will be held June 12 at Summerfield.

Dr. H. R. Marlatt, director of the unit, Miss Katie Mitchell, community nurse, and others will be in charge of the examinations. These are held annually and are well attended.

City Briefs

Prompt responses were received by the Monroe Welfare association to its request for an ice box, made through the columns of The News-Star and Morning World, said Mrs. W. P. McCall, secretary. Saturday two good ice boxes were delivered to the association. One was donated by John Collens, of Collens' pharmacy, and the other was from Mrs. W. O. Ramey.

For the purpose of selecting a cast for a play to be given by the organization, a meeting of the St. Matthew's Parochial School Alumni association will be held at 8 o'clock Tuesday night at the school.

The play to be presented by the association is "Daddy Long Legs." It will be directed by Mrs. Louise Harberson.

The Rodney J. Hobbs post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will leave at 9 a. m. today for Farmerville, where they are to be the guests of Chaplain Tom Roberts at the First Baptist church at 11 o'clock this morning.

The sermon will be specially suited to the ex-service men, who are to attend through a special invitation by Reverend Roberts, pastor of the church.

Starting Thursday, the West Monroe Kiwanis club is to hold its luncheon at the Crosley school cafeteria. For the past weeks, the weekly luncheon has been held in the First Baptist church of West Monroe.

Through the action of the newly-formed Ouachita Dairy association, on June 1 the uniform retail price of 10 cents a quart for milk went into effect. The wholesale price is eight cents a quart.

Farmers in the vicinity of Eros are preparing to ship tomatoes to northern markets. Tomato buyers are stationed at the various shipping points along the Tremont and Gulf railroad and a satisfactory season and fairly good profits are anticipated, it was reported by Warren A. Downs, of Eros.

William S. Adcock, living at 219 Haynes street, West Monroe, underwent a serious operation at St. Francis sanitarium Friday night. He was reported Saturday to be resting as well as could be expected.

Early closing will become effective in this city tomorrow, stores closing at 5 instead of at 6 p.m. The Saturday night closing hour is to be 9 p.m. with the exception of ten-cent stores, which are to close at 9:30 p.m.

Confederate Decoration day was observed here Saturday by the banks of Monroe and West Monroe. The postoffice and courts, however, did not observe the day.

L. M. Joiner, pastor of the Assembly of God church in Swartz, has returned from an evangelistic tour in Houston, Texas, and elsewhere. He will now resume his regular duties here. His theme for Sunday evening is to be "And He came to himself."

An additional building is being constructed for the Terminal Paper Bag company in Brownville, which was first opened two months ago, and which is now running two shifts daily and operating at capacity limit. It is planned to add more units as may be required.

Friends of little Elsie Whittington, of 1217 South Second street, will regret to learn that she is seriously ill in St. Francis sanitarium of pneumonia.

The city council of West Monroe is to meet Monday night for the June meeting. Routine business will be transacted.

Homer Scouts' New Log Hut Formally Dedicated

HOMER, June 3.—(Special)—Dedicatory exercises for the Boy Scouts' new log cabin, one of the largest and most complete in this section was held Friday night with Major Lamont Seals giving the dedication address. The cabin is located on the municipal park grounds.

Other speakers were C. W. Hanchey, scoutmaster of Troop 44 sponsored by the American Legion; Rev. C. G. McClure, scoutmaster of Troop 42, and Gray Mann, who gave the American Legion's viewpoint toward scouting.

SELL OPERA HOUSE TO BUILD HOME

COLUSA, Calif.—(AP)—The county board of supervisors authorized the sale of the historic opera house, built during the gold boom days, for one dollar to a relief committee which will use the lumber to build a new farm home for a family whose residence was destroyed by fire.

Cotton

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, June 3.—(AP)—The cotton market was active in the short session today and prices reacted about $1 a bale net after early steadiness.

Liverpool was closed for the Whitsuntide holidays but sterling showed a good advance. As a result the opening here was steady with initial trades 3 to 7 points up. The market improved somewhat after the start on firm stocks, July trading up to 9.23, October to 9.45 and December to 9.60, or 5 to 7 points above yesterday's close.

Later, the market turned easy on a break in stocks, weakness in other commodity markets, good weather in the cotton belt and considerable hedging against Red Cross cotton. As a result, prices dropped rather sharply, July to 8.94, October to 9.20 and December to 9.36, down 24 to 29 points from the early highs.

The market rallied one to three points at the end on some week-end covering and closed steady at net declines for the day of 18 to 20 points.

Exports for the day were 29,746 bales.

New York

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—A decline of about $1 per bale in cotton today was attributed to active liquidation following reports from Washington which tended to increase uncertainty regarding acreage reduction possibilities.

July contracts broke to 8.98 while December sold off to 9.41, making net losses of 20 to 21 points on active positions and a reaction of about 42 to 44 points from the high prices of last Wednesday.

Closing quotations were at the lowest of the day on most positions with the tone barely steady at net declines of 18 to 26 points.

Produce

NEW ORLEANS, June 3.—(AP)—(USDA)—Green corn and new potatoes were stronger but other commodities held about steady. Louisiana green corn sold 1.25-2.00 per hundred ears. Ungraded Bliss Triumph potatoes sold 1.00-1.25 and Burbanks brought 1.50 per cwt. Creole onions continued at 2.50 and sweet potatoes brought 75-1.00 per cwt. Garlic sold 25-75 per double string. Beets ranged 15-20 and carrots 15-25 per dozen bunches.

Snap beans brought 1.25-1.50; butter beans 1.50-2.00; squash 25-50; cucumbers 50-75; peppers 60-1.00 and Louisiana okra 3.00-3.50 per bushel.

Iceberg lettuce sold 2.10-2.35 per crate of 5 to 6 dozen heads. Louisiana tomatoes brought 1.25-1.50 per 30-lb. box. Celery brought 3.00 per crate of 3 to 4 dozen stalks.

Auction prices of lemons ranged 4.05-5.25 per box. Oranges from Florida brought 2.00-2.60 per box. Washington Delicious apples sold 2.25-2.50 and Winesap brought 1.50-1.85 per box. Cantaloupes were in light demand at 3.60-4.00 per crate of 45 melons.

Friday Louisiana shipped 77 cars potatoes, 6 cars tomatoes, 4 mixed vegetables, 4 cars peppers and 1 car each celery, carrots and sweet potatoes.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—Stocks heavy; brisk profit-taking. Bonds firm; U. S. governments steady. Curb irregular; industrials, specialties strong. Foreign exchanges steady; changes narrow. Cotton lower, local and southern selling; favorable weather. Sugar and coffee closed.

CHICAGO.—Wheat lower; bearish Washington reports. Corn easy; favorable weather. Cattle nominally steady. Hogs: Fully steady, active, top $5.05.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, June 3.—(AP)—Downturns in grain values early today followed reports that some provisions of the farm relief act would not be applied to this year's wheat crop. Opening unchanged to 1-2 off, wheat afterward sagged all around. Corn also started unchanged to 1-2 down, and then underwent a general setback.

Wheat closed nervous, 1 3-8 to 1 5-8 under yesterday's finish, corn 1-2 to 3-4 down, oats 1-8 to 1-2 off, and provisions unchanged to 20 cents decline.

New York Stocks

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—Financial markets stumbled over profit-taking barriers today and price declines were general in both stocks and staples. Late rallying efforts in leading shares retrieved some of the earlier losses, but the close was rather heavy. Trading volume was unusually large, transactions approximating 3,800,000 shares.

The stock market started off at a fast pace, blocks of 1,000 to 12,000 shares changing hands. Losses of 1 to 3 or more points were suffered by leading issues following their climb yesterday to the highest levels since 1931. Rails and utilities resisted for a while, but they too, slid off when supporting orders in other divisions failed to bring any substantial recovery.

Wheat, corn and cotton dropped with stocks and bar silver lost 1-8 of a cent at 35 1-2 cents an ounce. Wheat declines approximated a cent and corn eased around 1-2 a cent. Cotton was particularly heavy, losing 90 cents to $1.30 a bale. Bonds were fairly steady, although some of the more speculative loans were a trifle reactionary. Foreign exchanges were comparatively steady.

Stocks apparently ignored the report on freight car loadings for the week ended May 27, which showed an advance of 9,691 over the previous week to a total of 541,309, or 20,060 ahead of the similar week in 1932. The increase in traffic, however, was about according to previous estimates.

Shares losers of 1 to around 3 points included American Can, Corn Products, U. S. Steel, Drug, Chrysler, Santa Fe, McIntyre Porcupine, Anaconda, American Telephone, Westinghouse, Montgomery Ward, Case, DuPont, Consolidated Gas, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Delaware & Hudson, Union Pacific, American Tobacco B, New York Central and Sears Roebuck. Allied Chemical steadied and National Distillers and Loew's rallied.

The financial district was especially interested in the overnight news from Washington on the close vote by which the senate finance committee favored the industries control feature of the administration's national recovery bill. While this feature was retained, the fact that the committee voted to eliminate the provision giving the president licensing power over industries was the subject of much discussion in the banking sector.

At the same time speculative enthusiasm appeared slightly dampened by a financial ticker report from the capital that the administration was closely watching the trend of prices on the stock exchange here with the view that the recent movement on shares and commodities has been unusually rapid. This dispatch intimated that some steps might be taken to warn against speculative frenzy which would tend to put share and commodity prices out of bounds and thus interfere with the government's plans for a steady and sound recovery.

General business and trade news continued favorable for the market. Steel and electric power output were showing resistance to seasonal declines and automobile production was at its top level for the year.

TECH RECEIVES COTTON SAMPLES

To Be Used During Short Course In Grading And Stapling

RUSTON, June 3.—(Special)—About 5,000 samples of all types and grades of cotton have been received at Louisiana Tech to be used in a short course in cotton grading and stapling, R. L. Reese, head of the Tech agriculture department, has announced.

The short course will be held at Tech from July 3 to 29. Instruction will be given by C. E. Killingsworth of the bureau of agricultural economics of the United States department of agriculture.

The cotton samples were sent to Tech from the Louisiana Cotton Cooperative association in New Orleans. Each sample bears a label of identification.

Reese stated that he already has received about 50 inquiries regarding the cotton grading course. The course will be open to any white person interested in learning how to grade and staple cotton correctly, regardless of whether the person is a cotton grower, buyer, college student, or any other individual.

At the close of the course, a certificate showing that the work has been done will be awarded to those who have met the requirements as to attendace and proficiency in the work. College credit towards graduation in the agricultural course will be available to college students. It is planned to give an examination for federal license in cotton grading at the end of the course.

The work will consist chiefly of actual practice in grading and stapling the samples of cotton under the supervision of instructors. Lectures and demonstrations will be given as needed, but no textbook will be required, Reese said.

The classes will be divided into two groups. One will meet from 9 to 12 a. m. and the other from 1 to 4 p. m., it has been announced. Students may take the work with both groups without additional cost. The tuition will be not more than $10 or less than $8, depending upon how many enroll.

Reduced living costs at Tech this summer will be available to those attending the cotton grading course.

The first short course in cotton grading and stapling at Louisiana Tech was held here last summer. Following are the persons who were enrolled at that time:

Frank W. Buckley, Mooringsport; N. A. Clinton, Clay; C. E. Colvin, Jr., Ruston; T. D. Colvin, Dubach; J. N. Compton, Farmerville; D. M. Cooper, Marthaville; J. M. Edmiston, Ruston; Fred Farrar, Ruston; W. J. Frank, Dubach; W. A. Grafton, Marion; William Haynes, Minden; R. F. Henry, Dubach; Claude C. Jones, Rayville; J. C. Lewis, Dubach; O. R. Baby Clinics Are Being Sponsored In Claiborne

HOMER, June 3.—(Special)—The home demonstration council and Claiborne parish health unit are sponsoring a series of baby clinics for pre-school children to be held in the various communities of the parish. The first will be held June 12 at Summerfield.

Dr. H. R. Marlatt, director of the unit, Miss Katie Mitchell, community nurse, and others will be in charge of the examinations. These are held annually and are well attended.

City Briefs

Prompt responses were received by the Monroe Welfare association to its request for an ice box, made through the columns of The News-Star and Morning World, said Mrs. W. P. McCall, secretary. Saturday two good ice boxes were delivered to the association. One was donated by John Collens, of Collens' pharmacy, and the other was from Mrs. W. O. Ramey.

For the purpose of selecting a cast for a play to be given by the organization, a meeting of the St. Matthew's Parochial School Alumni association will be held at 8 o'clock Tuesday night at the school.

The play to be presented by the association is "Daddy Long Legs." It will be directed by Mrs. Louise Harberson.

The Rodney J. Hobbs post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will leave at 9 a. m. today for Farmerville, where they are to be the guests of Chaplain Tom Roberts at the First Baptist church at 11 o'clock this morning.

The sermon will be specially suited to the ex-service men, who are to attend through a special invitation by Reverend Roberts, pastor of the church.

Starting Thursday, the West Monroe Kiwanis club is to hold its luncheon at the Crosley school cafeteria. For the past weeks, the weekly luncheon has been held in the First Baptist church of West Monroe.

Through the action of the newly-formed Ouachita Dairy association, on June 1 the uniform retail price of 10 cents a quart for milk went into effect. The wholesale price is eight cents a quart.

Farmers in the vicinity of Eros are preparing to ship tomatoes to northern markets. Tomato buyers are stationed at the various shipping points along the Tremont and Gulf railroad and a satisfactory season and fairly good profits are anticipated, it was reported by Warren A. Downs, of Eros.

William S. Adcock, living at 219 Haynes street, West Monroe, underwent a serious operation at St. Francis sanitarium Friday night. He was reported Saturday to be resting as well as could be expected.

Early closing will become effective in this city tomorrow, stores closing at 5 instead of at 6 p.m. The Saturday night closing hour is to be 9 p.m. with the exception of ten-cent stores, which are to close at 9:30 p.m.

Confederate Decoration day was observed here Saturday by the banks of Monroe and West Monroe. The postoffice and courts, however, did not observe the day.

L. M. Joiner, pastor of the Assembly of God church in Swartz, has returned from an evangelistic tour in Houston, Texas, and elsewhere. He will now resume his regular duties here. His theme for Sunday evening is to be "And He came to himself."

An additional building is being constructed for the Terminal Paper Bag company in Brownville, which was first opened two months ago, and which is now running two shifts daily and operating at capacity limit. It is planned to add more units as may be required.

Friends of little Elsie Whittington, of 1217 South Second street, will regret to learn that she is seriously ill in St. Francis sanitarium of pneumonia.

The city council of West Monroe is to meet Monday night for the June meeting. Routine business will be transacted.

Homer Scouts' New Log Hut Formally Dedicated

HOMER, June 3.—(Special)—Dedicatory exercises for the Boy Scouts' new log cabin, one of the largest and most complete in this section was held Friday night with Major Lamont Seals giving the dedication address. The cabin is located on the municipal park grounds.

Other speakers were C. W. Hanchey, scoutmaster of Troop 44 sponsored by the American Legion; Rev. C. G. McClure, scoutmaster of Troop 42, and Gray Mann, who gave the American Legion's viewpoint toward scouting.

SELL OPERA HOUSE TO BUILD HOME

COLUSA, Calif.—(AP)—The county board of supervisors authorized the sale of the historic opera house, built during the gold boom days, for one dollar to a relief committee which will use the lumber to build a new farm home for a family whose residence was destroyed by fire.

PARISH STUDENTS GIVEN DIPLOMAS

Commencement Exercises For O. P. H. S. Are Held Friday Night

Before an audience that virtually filled the large Neville high school auditorium, the commencement exercises for the class of 1933, of the Ouachita parish high school were conducted Friday night. The 198 graduates, the largest in the history of the school, were grouped on the stage dressed in white and with the young women carrying large bouquets of sweet peas.

The invocation was by Rev. L. M. Cole, followed by "Daybreak," by the glee club of the school.

The salutatory address, "Tribute to Service," was presented by Gloria Gray, while the valedictory was, "Tribute to a Builder," by Rosa Rutledge. A musical selection: "The Builder," was rendered by the glee club.

The address of the evening was by Rev. J. M. Workman, pastor of the First Methodist church, Conway, Ark.

The speaker said in part:

"Back in Babylon, the prophet Ezekiel had a vision from heaven. It was like a chariot from the skies. As he studied the apparition, he declared: 'For the spirit of the living creature was in the wheels.'

"Ezekiel's people were depressed and were endeavoring to beat their way back financially and spiritually. The times were somewhat like those we are confronted with today. He did not look to earth for relief. He scanned the heavens and there he felt he saw the solution. He pictured the son of man coming in a cherubim. 'There was a living spirit within the wheels.'

"So it may be with you graduates, tonight, the living spirit is hidden within, that spirit that changeth not.

"Helen Keller, bereft of sight, hearing and speech through many years, when asked as to what she would ask were she to be able to make request of something that she might desire above all else, did not ask for sight, for hearing, for speech. She declared quickly, in response to the interrogation, that what she would desire above all else would be for lasting, universal peace. Such a decision on the part of a woman so sorely afflicted indicates in no uncertain way that she indeed possesses the living spirit of the eternal God within.

"There is need of the living spirit within the wheels of the modern day; there is need of the kind of personality that embraces goodness and truth. Then there is need that one love one's fellow man as much as he loves himself."

The story was then related of the unselfish devotion of a fisherman off the Massachusetts coast who, in bringing in the body of his dead comrade in a boat, suffered unflinichingly the loss of both hands that were frozen to the oars.

"It is the life within that builds toward the eternal," declared the speaker. "The worst tragedy is for a soul to know that the spirit within has become devoid of self-respect, self-confidence and of those other traits that make life worth while.

"May that living spirit within forever guide the members of the class of 1933," he concluded.

After the rendering of "A Gypsy Night," by the glee club, Rev. E. F. Hayward, rector of Grace church, presented diplomas to the members of the class and at the conclusion devoted several minutes to an eulogy of John Williams, member of the class who met death by drowning last week. He stated that the young man was an excellent student and possessed a clean-cut type of manhood. His grades, through high school, averaged 94 per cent. "I think that John Williams, from his home above looks down on this commencement," stated the speaker, "and that he is filled with happiness."

Mrs. Lewis Slater, in behalf of the D. A. R., presented to Ardelle Johnson the medal that is given each year for excellence in history. This pupil's grade in this subject was 99.01, Mrs. Slater stated.

MORGAN AND MIDGET

Claude Reese Is Freed Under Bond Of $2,000

FERRIDAY, La., June 3.—(Special)—Claude Reese of Ferriday, who was arrested by parish officers in connection with the robbery of the business establishment of J. Aust Davide at Clayton together with three others, has been released under bond of $2,000.

The bond was originally fixed at $5,000, but at the request of attorneys for Reese, it was lowered to $2,000. The other trio are still held.

One of the men, Jim Russell, who was wounded when he fled from the officers, has admitted his part in the robbery, but fails to implicate the others being held for the crime, Walter Owens and Bob Norris. All three are being held at the Vidalia jail. No date has been set for the preliminary hearings of the robbery.

Kiln at Lumber Plant Is Destroyed By Fire

DUBACH, June 3.—(Special)—The J. F. Robinson Lumber company lost another kiln of lumber by fire and a second one was partially damaged here yesterday. An unofficial estimate of the loss is placed at $350.

A week ago the same company lost two full kilns of lumber by fire. The volunteer fire department of the city was aided by members of the Ruston fire department which were probably responsible for limiting the loss to a small figure.

FONTENOT GETS S'EASTERN JOB

Education Board Transfers Sims to Successor's Position

BATON ROUGE, La., June 3.—(AP)—Appointment of Y. L. Fontenot, purchasing agent of Louisiana State normal college, as president of Southeastern Louisiana college at Hammond to succeed L. A. Sims and the naming of Sims to Fontenot's former post at the normal were approved today by the state board of education.

The change of positions between the college officials was recommended by State Superintendent of Education T. H. Harris and was approved following announced resignation of Sims as Southeastern president.

The board action was taken at a special meeting.

Approval of the Southeastern college presidency and faculty appointments for the coming year was deferred at a board meeting a week ago at suggestion of Superintendent Harris to permit investigation of complaints Harris said had been made against Sims by citizens of Hammond and vicinity.

Harris praised Sims' presidential administration at Southeastern, saying he thought there was "no criticism due him," but that it was evident that a large number of persons would be dissatisfied regardless of whether he was kept or dismissed by the board and that he thought the transfer was to the best interests of Sims and the college.

"I think Mr. Sims has absolutely made good as president of the college," the state superintendent said. "He has been honest and upright. He has assembled a competent faculty. He has kept up with the students. He has administered the college well. He has never come to this board with any wildcat financing schemes and he has never run us in debt.

"I think there is no criticism due him, but because of the dissension I think for his sake and for the sake of the college he should no longer remain there."

The board approved the election of Joseph A. Riehl as director of extension and history instructor at Southwestern Louisiana Institute at Lafayette, to succeed Dr. G. J. Tinsley, who recently resigned to become a dean at the normal.

Addition of Miss Lucille Gauthier and Miss Amelie Judice to the Southwestern faculty as room teachers was approved.

Discussing possible participation in funds to be released under the national rehabilitation act, Superintendent Harris said he thought that while there was no authority for the board to incur debt, that a schedule of college needs should be set up and presented for what it was worth.

The board decided to seek funds to carry out the $2,610,000 building program presented to the 1930 legislature for the nine institutions under board supervision.

Louisiana normal, $750,000; Louisiana Polytechnic institute and Southwestern Louisiana institute $500,000 each; Southeastern Louisiana college $300,000; state school for the deaf, $150,000; state school for the blind and the state school for the negro deaf and blind $30,000 each, and the Louisiana negro normal $100,000.

Separate applications for funds are to be made for the state school for the deaf and for Southeastern, each of which have $100,000 unpaid legislative appropriations, it was stated.

TALLULAH HOME BURNS

TALLULAH, La., June 3. — (Special).—The residence of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Wroten and contents were completely destroyed by fire of undetermined origin this morning at two o'clock. No one was in the home at the time. The loss is estimated at $9.000.

LONG NAMED IN SUIT

Senator Huey P. Long, Louisiana, was named defendant in a $250,000 damage action filed by Mrs. Ruffin G. Pleasant, wife of a former Louisiana governor. She charged the senator with defaming her character and with illegally causing her arrest in connection with a reputed attempt to eject her from the state capitol at Baton Rouge a year ago. Canning Kitchen Opens At School In Tallulah

TALLULAH, La., June 3.—(Special)—The canning kitchen, operated under the auspices of the home demonstration department of Madison parish has opened in the grade school building here. The kitchen is equipped with steam pressure cookers, sealers, etc., and is free to the citizens of this parish, gas and water being furnished free of cost by the Louisiana Power and Light company. Miss Bertha B. Keller, home demonstration agent for Madison parish, will be in charge of the kitchen each Tuesday and Friday and will instruct white people in canning, and Jerusha Griffin, colored home demonstration agent for the parishes of East Carroll, West Carroll and Madison will direct the work for negroes on Mondays.

FIRE LOSS FALLS IN WEST MONROE

Annual Report of State Official Made Public Yesterday

Fire losses in the city of West Monroe for the year of 1932 were slightly less than those of 1931, according to the annual report of the state fire marshal, R. G. Gregory, submitted to the governor and now made public. Mr. Gregory places the fire loss in West Monroe for 1932 at $62,231 and the 1931 loss at $70,888.

In the year 1930, West Monroe's fire loss was $52,480, and in 1929 the loss was placed at $26,917.

Values in 1929 were considerably higher than in 1932, and if losses in the latter year had been computed on the 1929 basis of values, the figures would have been larger, it was said.

The fire loss for the state in 1932 is placed at $6,131.607 by Mr. Gregory. This is in comparison with $4,924,078 in 1931.

The largest single loss by fire in the state last year was that caused by the destruction of the Tangipohoa parish plant of the Natalbahy Lumber company. This was placed at $250,064.

There were 202 fires in Ouachita parish in 1932, according to the report of the fire marshal. Values of properties are placed as totalling $1,264,130, and the total damage done as $260.404.

Fires in this state in 1932 caused the loss of 58 lives and a total of 130 were injured.

Union Oil Mill To Add 3 Big Storage Tanks

Added storage facilities so as to be able to accommodate 30 days' production of cottonseed oil, are to be provided at the Union Oil Mill, Inc., in West Monroe, stated Manager Charles W. Wallace. Three large storage tanks are now being placed in position.

Two of the added storage tanks will be located on the west side of the plant, near two others now in use, while the third is to be located at the south end of the plant.

This mill, rated when running at fullest capacity as the largest cottonseed mill in the country, turns out an enormous product. Delay in securing the requisite tank cars now will be remedied so that the plant can use the new facilities and a delay of a day or two in getting cars will not mean that the mill will have to be closed down, it was said.

PARISH STUDENTS GIVEN DIPLOMAS

Commencement Exercises For O. P. H. S. Are Held Friday Night

Before an audience that virtually filled the large Neville high school auditorium, the commencement exercises for the class of 1933, of the Ouachita parish high school were conducted Friday night. The 198 graduates, the largest in the history of the school, were grouped on the stage dressed in white and with the young women carrying large bouquets of sweet peas.

The invocation was by Rev. L. M. Cole, followed by "Daybreak," by the glee club of the school.

The salutatory address, "Tribute to Service," was presented by Gloria Gray, while the valedictory was, "Tribute to a Builder," by Rosa Rutledge. A musical selection: "The Builder," was rendered by the glee club.

The address of the evening was by Rev. J. M. Workman, pastor of the First Methodist church, Conway, Ark.

The speaker said in part:

"Back in Babylon, the prophet Ezekiel had a vision from heaven. It was like a chariot from the skies. As he studied the apparition, he declared: 'For the spirit of the living creature was in the wheels.'

"Ezekiel's people were depressed and were endeavoring to beat their way back financially and spiritually. The times were somewhat like those we are confronted with today. He did not look to earth for relief. He scanned the heavens and there he felt he saw the solution. He pictured the son of man coming in a cherubim. 'There was a living spirit within the wheels.'

"So it may be with you graduates, tonight, the living spirit is hidden within, that spirit that changeth not.

"Helen Keller, bereft of sight, hearing and speech through many years, when asked as to what she would ask were she to be able to make request of something that she might desire above all else, did not ask for sight, for hearing, for speech. She declared quickly, in response to the interrogation, that what she would desire above all else would be for lasting, universal peace. Such a decision on the part of a woman so sorely afflicted indicates in no uncertain way that she indeed possesses the living spirit of the eternal God within.

"There is need of the living spirit within the wheels of the modern day; there is need of the kind of personality that embraces goodness and truth. Then there is need that one love one's fellow man as much as he loves himself."

The story was then related of the unselfish devotion of a fisherman off the Massachusetts coast who, in bringing in the body of his dead comrade in a boat, suffered unflinichingly the loss of both hands that were frozen to the oars.

"It is the life within that builds toward the eternal," declared the speaker. "The worst tragedy is for a soul to know that the spirit within has become devoid of self-respect, self-confidence and of those other traits that make life worth while.

"May that living spirit within forever guide the members of the class of 1933," he concluded.

After the rendering of "A Gypsy Night," by the glee club, Rev. E. F. Hayward, rector of Grace church, presented diplomas to the members of the class and at the conclusion devoted several minutes to an eulogy of John Williams, member of the class who met death by drowning last week. He stated that the young man was an excellent student and possessed a clean-cut type of manhood. His grades, through high school, averaged 94 per cent. "I think that John Williams, from his home above looks down on this commencement," stated the speaker, "and that he is filled with happiness."

Mrs. Lewis Slater, in behalf of the D. A. R., presented to Ardelle Johnson the medal that is given each year for excellence in history. This pupil's grade in this subject was 99.01, Mrs. Slater stated.

Claude Reese Is Freed Under Bond Of $2,000

FERRIDAY, La., June 3.—(Special)—Claude Reese of Ferriday, who was arrested by parish officers in connection with the robbery of the business establishment of J. Aust Davide at Clayton together with three others, has been released under bond of $2,000.

The bond was originally fixed at $5,000, but at the request of attorneys for Reese, it was lowered to $2,000. The other trio are still held.

One of the men, Jim Russell, who was wounded when he fled from the officers, has admitted his part in the robbery, but fails to implicate the others being held for the crime, Walter Owens and Bob Norris. All three are being held at the Vidalia jail. No date has been set for the preliminary hearings of the robbery.

DUBACH, June 3.—(Special)—The J. F. Robinson Lumber company lost another kiln of lumber by fire and a second one was partially damaged here yesterday. An unofficial estimate of the loss is placed at $350.

A week ago the same company lost two full kilns of lumber by fire. The volunteer fire department of the city was aided by members of the Ruston fire department which were probably responsible for limiting the loss to a small figure.

FONTENOT GETS S'EASTERN JOB

Education Board Transfers Sims to Successor's Position

BATON ROUGE, La., June 3.—(AP)—Appointment of Y. L. Fontenot, purchasing agent of Louisiana State normal college, as president of Southeastern Louisiana college at Hammond to succeed L. A. Sims and the naming of Sims to Fontenot's former post at the normal were approved today by the state board of education.

The change of positions between the college officials was recommended by State Superintendent of Education T. H. Harris and was approved following announced resignation of Sims as Southeastern president.

Harris quoted Sims as asserting that he was resigning "because of his love for Southeastern."

The board action was taken at a special meeting.

Approval of the Southeastern college presidency and faculty appointments for the coming year was deferred at a board meeting a week ago at suggestion of Superintendent Harris to permit investigation of complaints Harris said had been made against Sims by citizens of Hammond and vicinity.

Harris praised Sims' presidential administration at Southeastern, saying he thought there was "no criticism due him," but that it was evident that a large number of persons would be dissatisfied regardless of whether he was kept or dismissed by the board and that he thought the transfer was to the best interests of Sims and the college.

"I think Mr. Sims has absolutely made good as president of the college," the state superintendent said. "He has been honest and upright. He has assembled a competent faculty. He has kept up with the students. He has administered the college well. He has never come to this board with any wildcat financing schemes and he has never run us in debt.

"I think there is no criticism due him, but because of the dissension I think for his sake and for the sake of the college he should no longer remain there."

The board approved the election of Joseph A. Riehl as director of extension and history instructor at Southwestern Louisiana Institute at Lafayette, to succeed Dr. G. J. Tinsley, who recently resigned to become a dean at the normal.

Addition of Miss Lucille Gauthier and Miss Amelie Judice to the Southwestern faculty as room teachers was approved.

Discussing possible participation in funds to be released under the national rehabilitation act, Superintendent Harris said he thought that while there was no authority for the board to incur debt, that a schedule of college needs should be set up and presented for what it was worth.

The board decided to seek funds to carry out the $2,610,000 building program presented to the 1930 legislature for the nine institutions under board supervision.

The money if received would be distributed as follows:

Louisiana normal, $750,000; Louisiana Polytechnic institute and Southwestern Louisiana institute $500,000 each; Southeastern Louisiana college $300,000; state school for the deaf, $150,000; state school for the blind and the state school for the negro deaf and blind $30,000 each, and the Louisiana negro normal $100,000.

Separate applications for funds are to be made for the state school for the deaf and for Southeastern, each of which have $100,000 unpaid legislative appropriations, it was stated.

FIRE LOSS FALLS IN WEST MONROE

Annual Report of State Official Made Public Yesterday

Fire losses in the city of West Monroe for the year of 1932 were slightly less than those of 1931, according to the annual report of the state fire marshal, R. G. Gregory, submitted to the governor and now made public. Mr. Gregory places the fire loss in West Monroe for 1932 at $62,231 and the 1931 loss at $70,888.

In the year 1930, West Monroe's fire loss was $52,480, and in 1929 the loss was placed at $26,917.

Values in 1929 were considerably higher than in 1932, and if losses in the latter year had been computed on the 1929 basis of values, the figures would have been larger, it was said.

The fire loss for the state in 1932 is placed at $6,131,607 by Mr. Gregory. This is in comparison with $4,924,078 in 1931.

The largest single loss by fire in the state last year was that caused by the destruction of the Tangipohoa parish plant of the Natalbahy Lumber company. This was placed at $250,064.

There were 202 fires in Ouachita parish in 1932, according to the report of the fire marshal. Values of properties are placed as totalling $1,264,130, and the total damage done as $260,404.

Fires in this state in 1932 caused the loss of 58 lives and a total of 130 were injured.

GILBERT WAS NOT DISCOURAGED BY THIS FIRST FAILURE, AND IN 1583 LED ANOTHER EXPEDITION ACROSS THE ATLANTIC. LANDING IN NEWFOUNDLAND, HE CLAIMED THE ISLAND FOR THE ENGLISH QUEEN.

DECIDING THAT NEWFOUNDLAND WAS TOO COLD AND FOGGY FOR A COLONY, GILBERT SAILED SOUTHWARD TO THE COAST OF MAINE LOOKING FOR A MORE FAVORABLE SPOT TO PLANT A SETTLEMENT.

BRIDAL FASHIONS

The June Wedding March Leads a Smart Fashion Procession Down the Aisle

JUNE—the most romantic month of all. And what bride doesn't want to look her best on this most important of events—her wedding day?

The Summer bride is very fortunate—for the warm weather wedding allows so varied a choice of color and fabric. But let's talk about the attendants first in the picture sketched below.

To make the wedding procession a really beautiful picture, the maid-of-honor and the bridesmaids must of course have picturesque costumes chosen for them.

Look at the lovely maid-of-honor in her stunning frock of plaid chiffon. Note that the skirt hangs straight and descends right to the floor. These is an unusual bertha collar that knots in front. Very ingenious, too, is the swathed effect at the hipline which is cut to resemble an apron, and ties at the back.

Organdy is the perfect material for the June bridesmaid's frock. These bridesmaids are wearing extremely bouffant dresses of this material, one in green and the other in yellow. Two deep ruffles form the cape sleeves, matching the flared peplum below the waist. The blouse, cut on surplice lines, crosses high and there is a narrow belt that ends in a small flat bow at the side. The slips worn beneath the dresses are of matching taffeta.

HERE COMES THE BRIDE

SHE leads the procession in this simple and dignified gown of ivory white satin which depends entirely upon its subtle drapery for grace and smartness. The boat neckline gives the fashionable broad-shouldered effect and the bodice drapes softly over the bosom, forming a soft knot at the waistline where it blends into a crushed girdle effect. The headdress is a little cap of white satin that stands out at each side and to which is attached the voluminous, tiered, white tulle veil. Our June bride completes her costume with a string of lovely pearls and an arm bouquet of lilies.

FAMILY HEIRLOOMS

Juliet Wilbor Tompkins

MISS SALLIE WARBURTON lay on her deathbed. At least the family acted as though it were her deathbed, tiptoeing in and letting her speak her mind with no more comeback than a sweetish "Yes, dear!" Percy, her brother and lifelong victim—for he was a gentle soul of safe and conservative habits of thought—found excuses for not going south, as he usually did at this time. Nieces and grandnieces ran in with flowers, staying only a few minutes lest they tire her. Barney, her grandnephew, sat by her and did not even mention how hard up he was; evidently money had become a delicate matter with the adminstration of her estate so near. Miss Sallie felt a malevolent desire to quash his hopes—which were based on nothing but his perennial need—but was too weak to carry it out.

Her Cousin Katharine was made of stronger stuff. She quite frankly brought the talk around to the silver tea set.

"You must leave that to Percy or to some older member of the family who will really care about it," she said brightly. "The young ones are so indifferent to family heirlooms."

Evidently that fool of a doctor had told them that the end was only a matter of days. Well, it certainly had been a devastating case of grippe and perhaps at eighty-four one could not be expected to weather it.

Katharine had set her thinking about old family treasures. She had not realized before how completely she must give them up. She had the nurse get them out that evening and lay them on the bed. They were poignantly dear to her for they stood for the time when the Warburtons had been the great people of the town. Much can happen to a family in eighty-four years. The old Warburton place had long ago been cut up into building lots, the Warburton mills had been pulled down, the Warburton fortune had poured into many channels and dwindled to unimportance. Miss Sallie lived in a small house on a side street with one maid and had just enough to manage on. Most of the treasures had gone when the family house burned, long ago, but she had clung to these fragments through the lean days.

There was the diamond bracelet that had celebrated Miss Sallie's introduction to society sixty-five years ago, a broad band of big square diamonds, solidly valuable; the point lace bertha that her father had brought back to her mother from Paris, still perfect in its exquisite fragility, lying between folds of blue tissue paper; her father's gold watch, engraved with a hunting scene, and his father's gold-headed cane; the family tea set, kept polished and tied up in red flannel bags; the oval locket covered with pearls, holding the picture of her sister Nannie's soldier lover, who never came back from the war; a few lesser things such as a cameo pin, a filigree bouquet-holder, a fine gold watch chain. Miss Sallie mused over them for a long time, touching them with her weak hands. She hated separating them, sending them on in different directions. As heirlooms they would peter out like the family fortune.

SHE had the nurse make a list of them before they were put away and dictated the name to go after each: Katharine for the silver tea set—since she was so crazy to have it that she couldn't keep from hinting; Grandfather's cane to Percy; the point lace bertha to Alicia who was always saying how she adored lace, though she knew no more of its value than the cat did; the diamond bracelet to Alicia's daughter Pauline who was coming out this autumn, a silly proceeding with no more background than she had to show — Warburton debuts used to be social events: the locket to her grandniece Anne, who had been named for Nannie and was engaged to be married, so there was a chance that she would feel the sentiment in that faded little soldier picture; the watch—well, Barney ought to have that. Miss Sallie saw Barney's face, trying to express touched appreciation over an old watch when what he so desperately and everlastingly wanted was money, and a snort of amusement startled the nurse.

"I'd like to give Barney his watch," she whispered. "Perhaps I will. Perhaps I'll give them all—" She drifted off to sleep.

The next day Miss Sallie's spark of life was very dim. Once or twice it was so nearly gone that Alicia and Katharine stayed in the house, and Percy came in the afternoon. Several others, dropping in on their way home from work, stayed on, talking in hushed voices. Early in the evening Miss Sallie rallied a little and, seeing Katharine beside her, indicated the list.

"Give the things to them now and tell me what Barney said," she murmured, her expression faint but not at all of heaven. "He's down there, I'll bet — I can hear you all whispering. You get the silver tea set of course."

KATHARINE protested, wiped her eyes, but Miss Sallie was weary and cut her short.

"The things are all in that cupboard. Take them down now and distribute them," she commanded. "Then come up and tell me what Barney said. Tell him that is all he gets."

Katharine obeyed and presently stole back with Barney's love and gratitude. "He was almost too moved to say anything," she explained. Miss Sallie's lips twitched but her eyes seemed to have closed for good.

In the morning she was still dimly there. When the bustle of day began in the streets, her eyes opened, looked about.

"I think she wants to say something," the doctor whispered to Percy. Percy, very shaken and miserable, smiled into the asking eyes and bent low for the last words.

"What is it, Sallie?" he asked huskily.

Miss Sallie's voice was a ghost of sound; each word meant a separate effort. "What—did—the—market—do—yesterday?"

"Good lord!" Percy muttered and sank into a chair, wiping his forehead.

"There was a strong recovery in most issues," the doctor said. "Even the oils picked up."

Miss Sallie smiled contentedly and went to sleep. By night she was stronger. The doctor explained that there was often a rally just before the end. In the morning Miss Sallie took her gruel with reluctance.

"Next time, you bring me a chop and a baked potato," she commanded. The doctor admitted that nothing mattered now, so the order was obeyed. A week later, Miss Sallie was sitting up.

"I could have told you that I wasn't dying," she said severely to Percy, and told him that he might as well go south, as there was nothing now to wait for.

"You will get pneumonia again and it will carry you off; you haven't my resistance," she declared. "If I have a relapse you can come back. And you've got the cane anyway."

PERCY had the gold-headed cane with him. "I like carrying it," he said, thinking to please her. "I can see the old gentleman setting out with it in his hand—can't you?"

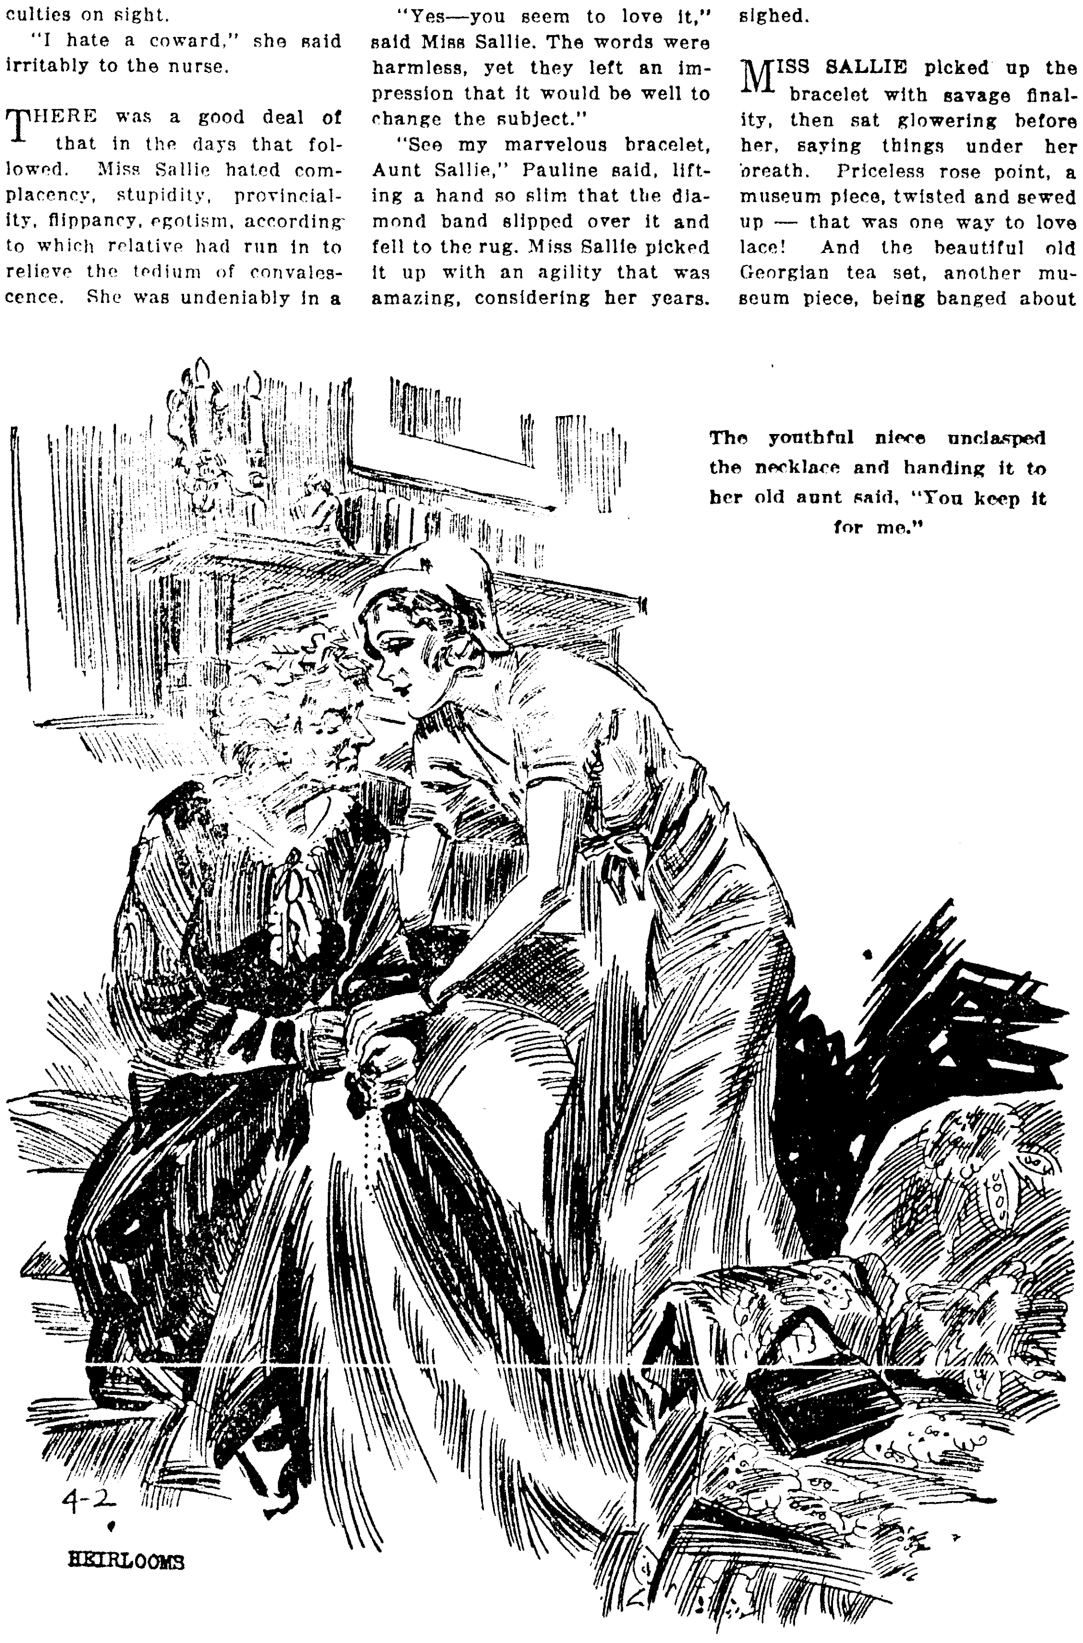
"Yes—and he always brought it back with him," Miss Sallie observed. "You have lost every good umbrella and cane you ever carried, haven't you? I hope you are not going to take it south."

"Oh, I won't leave this anywhere," Percy assured her and presently, going, he did leave it resting against his chair. Miss Sallie hid it in the depths of the cupboard. Percy must have come back for it that evening, for there was whispering in the hall and then a stealthy search of her room. Miss Sallie pretended to be asleep. Percy was heard to say that he must have left it at the club.

Miss Sallie kept her wicked counsel even when Percy, caneless and palpably nervous, came to say good-by before going south. He was so afraid she would ask about the cane that he stayed only a few minutes. Miss Sallie looked on at his uneasy departure as the girl Sallie must often have watched the child Percy when he squirmed away from some difficulty. Sally had always grappled with difficulties on sight.

"I hate a coward," she said irritably to the nurse.

THERE was a good deal of that in the days that followed. Miss Sallie hated complacency, stupidity, provinciality, flippancy, egotism, according to which relative had run in to relieve the tedium of convalescence. She was undeniably in a very bad temper. Greetings went unanswered, conversation was bitten short. The nurse was worn out when she left.



The youthful niece unclasped the necklace and handing it to her old aunt said, "You keep it for me."

"I don't know whether something is bothering her or whether the mind is impaired," she admitted to Katharine. "She always was so nice and considerate, and that night—you know—she gave me this little garnet ring." She held out a finger, prettily adorned. "But ever since then she has been very short with me. I don't know how I could have offended."

"We all seem to have offended," Katharine said thoughtfully. She talked it over with Alicia, who thought that perhaps they had not seemed grateful enough for the family treasures. So, on the day of her daughter Pauline's coming-out tea, the two dressed early and went to Miss Sallie's to show themselves, Pauline wearing the diamond bracelet and Alicia with the point lace bertha cleverly shaped about the top of her velvet gown.

"We wanted you to see how we loved your beautiful things," Alicia said kindly. She was a large fair contented woman, who often said that Aunt Sallie's bark was worse than her bite. Miss Sallie found that vastly annoying. "Doesn't the fichu simply make this gown?"

MISS SALLY'S eyes were fixed on the heirloom with an incredulous stare. It was almost as though her jaw had dropped. "You have — cut it?" she faltered.

"Oh, dear, no." Alicia came closer to show how cleverly it had been turned and tucked in and brought down into a gilet. Miss Sally, lifting her eyeglass, saw the track of common thread crossing and straining the delicate web. For once she had nothing to say; there was still something aghast about her.

"I am so glad that real lace is being worn again," Alicia was saying. "It was sweet of you to remember how I love it.."

"Yes—you seem to love it," said Miss Sallie. The words were harmless, yet they left an impression that it would be well to change the subject."

"See my marvelous bracelet, Aunt Sallie," Pauline said, lifting a hand so slim that the diamond band slipped over it and fell to the rug. Miss Sallie picked it up with an agility that was amazing, considering her years. "It is too big for you," she said. "We must have it made smaller before you wear it."

"Oh, but today—because you came out in it!" Pauline begged. "I will be very careful."

"You won't know whether it is on or not," was the brisk answer. "It needs to be a good deal smaller. Perhaps we can get earrings out of the diamonds that are left over."

PAULINE was consoled by the prospect of earrings, and mentioned that a dinner was being given for her next week. "Don't you want me to see to them?" she urged.

"I can attend to it," Miss Sally said. "I am not quite in my grave yet."

The tartness of that set Alicia smiling in an amused and affectionate fashion that Miss Sallie found infuriating but against which she was curiously helpless.

"I should say not," Alicia said comfortingly. "Why don't you come to the tea? Katharine has lent me the silver tea set — it makes the table look so handsome and dignified."

Miss Sallie started. "Lent you? — How did she send it over?"

"Oh, she brought it in the car." Alicia rose, smiling into Miss Sallie's frown. "Won't you come?"

"That tea set is older than I am," Miss Sallie said in a rising voice. "Too old to go racketing about to teas. I didn't give it to Katharine for her to lend it about, and you can tell her so."

Alicia laughed fondly. "It will be cared for—I promise you. I am so glad you like my gown. We were terribly rushed, but we just would make time to run in and show it to you." She paused for appreciation but none was forthcoming. On the way home she said that Aunt Sallie was failing very fast. Pauline was not so sure. The bracelet incident had left her depressed.

"I don't seem to believe in those diamond earrings," she sighed.

MISS SALLIE picked up the bracelet with savage finality, then sat glowering before her, saying things under her breath. Priceless rose point, a museum piece, twisted and sewed up — that was one way to love lace! And the beautiful old Georgian tea set, another museum piece, being banged about town. . . . Small wonder that family as an institution was dying out.

Then Percy's granddaughter Anne came in, also on her way to the tea, and Miss Sallie was cheered in spite of herself. Anne was far dearer to her than she ever admitted. Her modest estate was going on intact to Anne, though only her lawyer knew. Anne kissed her cheek. No one else but Percy did that, and he really ought to have bitten it, Miss Sallie often felt. She was always resolving that she would treat Percy better.

"'Lo, Sallie." Anne always called her that when they were alone. Barney was so respectful and obliging that he was a nuisance. "I've got the car here. Shan't I take you to Pauline's coming-out party?"

"Coming-out party!" Miss Sallie was scornful. "In my day, when a Warburton came out it meant something. My sister Nannie was said to be the most beautiful debutante of her generation."

"Look what is going with me." Anne threw back her coat revealing the pearl locket. "Isn't it sweet?"

Miss Sallie stirred impatiently in her chair. "The clasp on that chain is very old — it can't be safe."

Anne had had a safety catch put on. "You can also call it a wedding present," she said. "Billie has had a raise. Can you guess what we are going to do?"

"Marry in haste," said Miss Sallie.

Anne laughed, joy boiling over. "Sallie, I know now what life is for!"

"Well, what is it for?" Miss Sallie asked. "I have often wondered."

ANNE took off the locket, opened it, looked inside with eyes that caressed, then showed it to Miss Sallie. Instead of the tiny faded dead soldier, a very alive young civilian looked out.

"It's for Billie! Billie's home—Billie's future—"

Miss Sallie was not listening. She stared into the locket and her mouth had a hurt line.

"You—took out—Fred's picture?" she asked.

"Oh, no. He is there, under my Billie." Anne took out her Billie, uncovering Nannie's Fred, and handed over the locket.

Miss Sallie held it close to her eyes.

"I was only a young girl but I went through it with Nannie," she said presently. "Nannie was five years older. I was a rough peppery girl, but she was a gracious lady always. Fred had to go to the war of course. Nannie cared very deeply. There's a lot of pretense about love but with Nannie and Fred it was terribly real."

"Like Billie and me," Anne said, her cheek against Miss Sallie's shoulder, her eyes on Nannie's lover.

"Yes—yes, I think so. Well, every day was one long watch for news. Then the telegram came and I went with Nannie to say good-by to him. We were just in time. I held Nannie in my arms all that night. And so—I don't like to see Fred covered up." She dried her eyes, then silently offered the locket again.

Anne closed the strong old fingers over it. "You keep it for me," she said slipping Billie's picture into her purse. "We will never cover him up, Sallie. When it is mine, Billie can go on the other side."

"You are a dear girl, Anne. You are like Nannie," Miss Sallie said.

AFTER Anne had gone Katharine called up from Alicia's to ask if the old tea strainer had been sent with the set. She did not seem to have it. Miss Sallie told her sharply that it had certainly gone with the rest, even if it was lost now, and hung up in a high state of exasperation. Lost out of the car probably. Heaven only knew how much of the set would be left when they got it home again. A martial desire to look after things herself drove Miss Sallie out of her chair and into her best black satin gown. The tea was nearly over when she arrived, a small red flannel bag held conspicuously in her hand. The warm family greeting did not soften her.

"I looked on the floor of your car out there and found the strainer," she said severely to Katharine.

"We would have found it when we went home," Katharine remarked.

"Perhaps," said Miss Sallie and passed on.

Chiefly family and oldest friends remained. Miss Sallie found Barney in the dining-room tucking in a hearty meal of sandwiches, cake and chocolate, to save getting a dinner.

"Well, Barney," she greeted him tolerantly and sat down beside him, to his evident consternation.

"Great to see you out," he said.

"It is nice to see you again," she returned. "You used to run in on me quite often." And she watched him squirm with amused malice. "Can you tell me what time it is?"

Barney looked at his wrist and found nothing there. "Oh, my watch got out of order. I'll find a clock," he said and would have jumped up, escape in his eye; but Miss Sallie's finger kept him there.

"I only wanted to see if you were carrying your great-grandfather's watch," she admitted.

Barney went red to his ears. "No—oh, no. I don't carry it."

The red deepened to crimson. "Oh, fine. Great old watch."

'What has happened to it?" Miss Sallie asked suddenly.

"Happened to it?" His surprise was pitifully poor. "Why, nothing has happened to it. Oh, there's Billie—" He started to rise again.

"Barney, stop floundering and tell me the truth," she commanded. "What have you done with your great-grandfather's gold watch? Have you got it still?"

"Well, for the moment, I haven't." A flicker of spirit showed. "Hang it all, Aunt Sallie, didn't you give it to me? I'm sure I—"

"Oh, I wouldn't sell it," Barney explained and his fingers went to a pocket.

"Give me the ticket," said Miss Sallie.

BARNEY handed it over and would have explained the very special emergency that had driven him, but Miss Sallie rose and walked away, her upright back conveying an eloquent description of her grandnephew. Barney found his hat and coat and dejectedly slipped out.

Miss Sallie, still quivering with righteous wrath, made a tour of the rooms. Pauline was carrying on with three young men — much she would have looked after a diamond bracelet! Alicia stood at the door saying good-by to people and Miss Sallie, pausing behind her, lifted her eyeglass for a close look at the rose point bertha. Close to the shoulder, where every motion of Alicia's extended arm strained it, the fairy cobweb had parted.

"Don't stir!" Miss Sallie commanded.

"I can mend it, dear Aunt Sallie;" Alicia was indulgent. "It will never show when I have caught it together."

Miss Sallie had been sorely tried today and the last thread of her patience parted. "Alicia, you're a fool! Caught together! Imitation is good enough for you. You send me that dress in the morning and I will have the lace mended by a professional. Send me the whole thing as it is, sewed and twisted and strained. And you love lace!" She marched off leaving Alicia for once slightly clouded.

Miss Sallie took a cup of tea to restore her spirit. When the maid carried off the tea silver, Miss Sallie followed it to the pantry, and stood watching the washing of the teapot. The girl banged it about, rubbed it half dry and stuffed it into the red flannel bag. Suddenly Miss Sallie spoke, very pleasantly.

"I will take that silver set home and save my cousin the trouble. You can say I took it. I have a cab waiting out here. You can carry it out, can't you?" She gave the girl a dollar and said a brief good-by to her hostesses. She was smiling, alert, even mischievous.

"I don't see much failing about her," Katharine said and went back to gather up the family tea set.

THE cabman carried the silver into Miss Sallie's house and was well rewarded. Miss Sallie went over the pieces one by one, finding a scratch here, a dent there. Late though it was, she had them all polished and put away with the other regained [illegible] Miss [illegible] considered it, then tore it to bits and wrote boldly across a fresh sheet: "I revoke all previous gifts. Everything of which I die possessed I leave to my beloved grandniece Anne." When this was locked up in the cupboard, Miss Sallie sat smiling deeply to herself. The ill humor of past weeks was gone from her face. Once more she felt kindly to all her family. The treasures, going down together, would always be heirlooms.

"I must write to Percy and tell him I found the cane," she said. Percy really was sweet, caring to the point of tears whether she lived or died. "I must be nicer to Percy," she decided.

FAMILY HEIRLOOMS

Juliet Wilbor Tompkins

MISS SALLIE WARBURTON lay on her deathbed. At least the family acted as though it were her deathbed, tiptoeing in and letting her speak her mind with no more comeback than a sweetish "Ye., dear!" Percy, her brother and lifelong victim—for he was a gentle soul of safe and conservative habits of thought—found excuses for not going south, as he usually did at this time. Nieces and grandnieces ran in with flowers, staying only a few minutes lest they tire her. Barney, her grandnephew, sat by her and did not even mention how hard up he was; evidently money had become a delicate matter with the adminstration of her estate so near. Miss Sallie felt a malevolent desire to quash his hopes—which were based on nothing but his perennial need—but was too weak to carry it out.

Her Cousin Katharine was made of stronger stuff. She quite frankly brought the talk around to the silver tea set.

"You must leave that to Percy or to some older member of the family who will really care about it," she said brightly. "The young ones are so indifferent to family heirlooms."

Evidently that fool of a doctor had told them that the end was only a matter of days. Well, it certainly had been a devastating case of grippe and perhaps at eighty-four one could not be expected to weather it.

Katharine had set her thinking about old family treasures. She had not realized before how completely she must give them up. She had the nurse get them out that evening and lay them on the bed. They were poignantly dear to her for they stood for the time when the Warburtons had been the great people of the town. Much can happen to a family in eighty-four years. The old Warburton place had long ago been cut up into building lots, the Warburton mills had been pulled down, the Warburton fortune had poured into many channels and dwindled to unimportance. Miss Sallie lived in a small house on a side street with one maid and had just enough to manage on. Most of the treasures had gone when the family house burned, long ago, but she had clung to these fragments through the lean days.

There was the diamond bracelet that had celebrated Miss Sallie's introduction to society sixty-five years ago, a broad band of big square diamonds, solidly valuable; the point lace bertha that her father had brought back to her mother from Paris, still perfect in its exquisite fragility, lying between folds of blue tissue paper; her father's gold watch, engraved with a hunting scene, and his father's gold-headed cane; the family tea set, kept polished and tied up in red flannel bags; the oval locket covered with pearls, holding the picture of her sister Nannie's soldier lover, who never came back from the war; a few lesser things such as a cameo pin, a filigree bouquet-holder, a fine gold watch chain. Miss Sallie mused over them for a long time, touching them with her weak hands. She hated separating them, sending them on in different directions, As heirlooms they would peter out like the family fortune.

SHE had the nurse make a list of them before they were put away and dictated the name to go after each: Katharine for the silver tea set—since she was so crazy to have it that she couldn't keep from hinting; Grandfather's cane to Percy; the point lace bertha to Alicia who was always saying how she adored lace, though she knew no more of its value than the cat did; the diamond bracelet to Alicia's daughter Pauline who was coming out this autumn, a silly proceeding with no more background than she had to show — Warburton debuts used to be social events: the locket to her grandniece Anne, who had been named for Nannie and was engaged to be married, so there was a chance that she would feel the sentiment in that faded little soldier picture; the watch—well, Barney ought to have that. Miss Sallie saw Barney's face, trying to express touched appreciation over an old watch when what he so desperately and everlastingly wanted was money, and a snort of amusement startled the nurse.

"I'd like to give Barney his watch," she whispered. "Perhaps I will. Perhaps I'll give them all—" She drifted off to sleep.

The next day Miss Sallie's spark of life was very dim. Once or twice it was so nearly gone that Alicia and Katharine stayed in the house, and Percy came in the afternoon. Several others, dropping in on their way home from work, stayed on, talking in hushed voices. Early in the evening Miss Sallie rallied a little and, seeing Katharine beside her, indicated the list.

"Give the things to them now and tell me what Barney said," she murmured, her expression faint but not at all of heaven. "He's down there, I'll bet — I can hear you all whispering. You get the silver tea set of course."

KATHARINE protested, wiped her eyes, but Miss Sallie was weary and cut her short.

"The things are all in that cupboard. Take them down now and distribute them," she commanded. "Then come up and tell me what Barney said. Tell him that is all he gets."

Katharine obeyed and presently stole back with Barney's love and gratitude. "He was almost too moved to say anything," she explained. Miss Sallie's lips twitched but her eyes seemed to have closed for good.

In the morning she was still dimly there. When the bustle of day began in the streets, her eyes opened, looked about.

"I think she wants to say something," the doctor whispered to Percy. Percy, very shaken and miserable, smiled into the asking eyes and bent low for the last words.

"What is it, Sallie?" he asked huskily.

Miss Sallie's voice was a ghost of sound; each word meant a separate effort. "What—did—the—market—do—yesterday?"

"Good lord!" Percy muttered and sank into a chair, wiping his forehead.

"There was a strong recovery in most issues," the doctor said. "Even the oils picked up."

Miss Sallie smiled contentedly and went to sleep. By night she was stronger. The doctor explained that there was often a rally just before the end. In the morning Miss Sallie took her gruel with reluctance.

"Next time, you bring me a chop and a baked potato," she commanded. The doctor admitted that nothing mattered now, so the order was obeyed. A week later, Miss Sallie was sitting up.

"I could have told you that I wasn't dying," she said severely to Percy, and told him that he might as well go south, as there was nothing now to wait for.

"You will get pneumonia again and it will carry you off; you haven't my resistance," she declared. "If I have a relapse you can come back. And you've got the cane anyway."

PERCY had the gold-headed cane with him. "I like carrying it," he said, thinking to please her. "I can see the old gentleman setting out with it in his hand—can't you?"

"Yes—and he always brought it back with him," Miss Sallie observed. "You have lost every good umbrella and cane you ever carried, haven't you? I hope you are not going to take it south."

"Oh, I won't leave this anywhere," Percy assured her and presently, going, he did leave it resting against his chair. Miss Sallie hid it in the depths of the cupboard. Percy must have come back for it that evening, for there was whispering in the hall and then a stealthy search of her room. Miss Sallie pretended to be asleep. Percy was heard to say that he must have left it at the club.

Miss Sallie kept her wicked counsel even when Percy, caneless and palpably nervous, came to say good-by before going south. He was so afraid she would ask about the cane that he stayed only a few minutes. Miss Sallie looked on at his uneasy departure as the girl Sallie must often have watched the child Percy when he squirmed away from some difficulty. Sally had always grappled with difficulties on sight.

"I hate a coward," she said irritably to the nurse.

THERE was a good deal of that in the days that followed. Miss Sallie hated complacency, stupidity, provinciality, flippancy, egotism, according to which relative had run in to relieve the tedium of convalescence. She was undeniably in a very bad temper. Greetings went unanswered, conversation was bitten short. The nurse was worn out when she left.

"I don't know whether something is bothering her or whether the mind is impaired," she admitted to Katharine. "She always was so nice and considerate, and that night—you know—she gave me this little garnet ring." She held out a finger, prettily adorned. "But ever since then she has been very short with me. I don't know how I could have offended."

"We all seem to have offended," Katharine said thoughtfully. She talked it over with Alicia, who thought that perhaps they had not seemed grateful enough for the family treasures. So, on the day of her daughter Pauline's coming-out tea, the two dressed early and went to Miss Sallie's to show themselves, Pauline wearing the diamond bracelet and Alicia with the point lace bertha cleverly shaped about the top of her velvet gown.

"We wanted you to see how we loved your beautiful things," Alicia said kindly. She was a large fair contented woman, who often said that Aunt Sallie's bark was worse than her bite. Miss Sallie found that vastly annoying. "Doesn't the fichu simply make this gown?"

MISS SALLY'S eyes were fixed on the heirloom with an incredulous stare. It was almost as though her jaw had dropped. "You have — cut it?" she faltered.

"Oh, dear, no." Alicia came closer to show how cleverly it had been turned and tucked in and brought down into a gilet. Miss Sally, lifting her eyeglass, saw the track of common thread crossing and straining the delicate web. For once she had nothing to say; there was still something aghast about her.

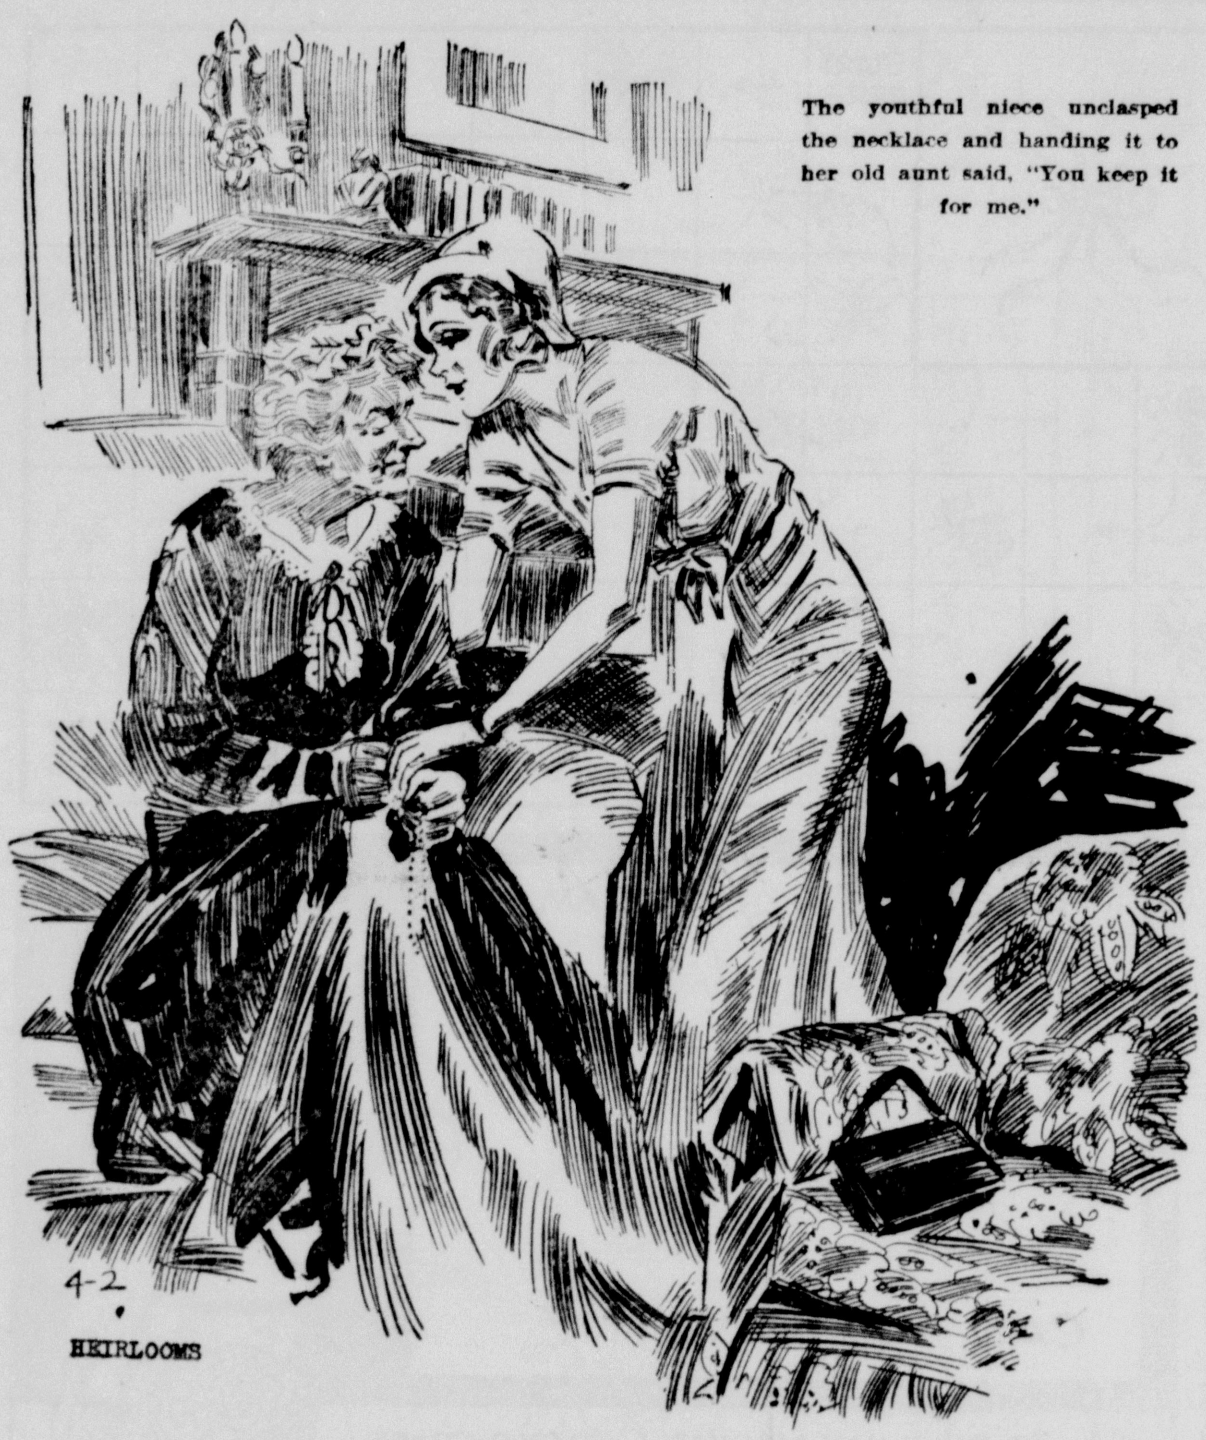
"See my marvelous bracelet, Aunt Sallie," Pauline said, lifting a hand so slim that the diamond band slipped over it and fell to the rug. Miss Sallie picked it up with an agility that was amazing, considering her years.



The youthful niece unclasped the necklace and handing it to her old aunt said, "You keep it for me."

"It is too big for you," she said. "We must have it made smaller before you wear it."

"Oh, but today—because you came out in it!" Pauline begged. "I will be very careful."

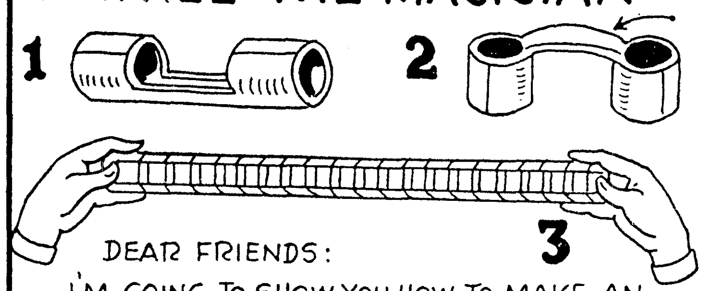
THE SECRETS OF MR. REE THE MAGICIAN



DEAR FRIENDS:

I'M GOING TO SHOW YOU HOW TO MAKE AN AMAZING PAPER LADDER. ROLL A STRIP OF PAPER ABOUT 4 IN. WIDE AND ABOUT 2 FT. LONG INTO A TUBE AND CUT OUT THE CENTER AS SHOWN IN FIG. 1. BEND DOWN THE ENDS AS SHOWN IN FIG. 2. NOW GRASP THE TOP LAYER OF THE PAPER, THE ARROW POINTS TO, AND CAREFULLY PULL IT OUT.

MAGICALLY YOURS, MR. REE.

TWO OR MORE PERSONS CAN PLAY THIS AMUSING GAME. EACH PLAYER TAKES THE PART OF THE SPIDER AND MUST PROVIDE HIMSELF WITH A SMALL BUTTON OR ANY SMALL OBJECT OF DIFFERENT COLORS TO MOVE ALONG THE SQUARES IN THE DIRECTION OF ARROWS. PLACE YOUR MARKER ON THE STARTING POINT AND TAKE TURNS FLIPPING A COIN. IF IT FALLS HEADS, YOU MOVE AHEAD TWO SQUARES, IF IT FALLS TAILS YOU CAN ONLY ADVANCE ONE SQUARE. THIS CONTINUES UNTIL ALL OF THE SQUARES HAVE BEEN PASSED THROUGH. THE PLAYER WHO CATCHES THE GREATEST AMOUNT OF INSECTS IS THE WINNER. ADD THE INSECTS TO YOUR CREDIT ONLY WHEN YOU STOP EXACTLY ON THEM AFTER EACH MOVE.

A.W. NUGENT

HERE'S A TOUGH PROBLEM.
CAN YOU SOLVE IT ?

MR. BEAR HAS MARKED A SIMPLE CROSS ON THE WALL AND NOW HE CHALLENGES YOU TO ADD JUST SEVEN STRAIGHT LINES TO IT TO FORM TEN TRIANGLES, ALL THE SAME SIZE.
